WEST DELEGATES OPEN TALKS FOR SOLID FRONT ON DISARMAMENT

Stassen, Moch, Nutting
Confer Prior to U.N.
Meeting Which Opens
Next Week With Russians.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Aug. 26 (UP)—Disarmament specialists of the Western Big Three and Canada began a round of informal meetings today to form a united front for next week's arms reduction talks with Russians.

British Minister of State Anthony Nutting flew in from London and Jules Moch arrived by ship from France yesterday. Harold E. Stassen, President Eisenhower's special assistant on disarmament, came up from Washington last night.

Paul Martin, Canadian minister of health and welfare, was expected here by plane from Ottawa to join them.

Subcommittee Meeting.
The British, French and American representatives will get together several times between now and Monday, when the subcommittee of the U.N. Disarmament Commission resumes its work at U.N. headquarters.

The Soviet Government will be represented on the subcommittee by Arkady A. Sobolev, who succeeded the late Andrei Y. Vishinsky as Soviet U.N. delegate.

An informed source said the preliminary meetings were being held because "it has been in the pattern of disarmament talks that the four Western powers get together and co-ordinate their approach, since they are fundamentally in agreement."

The United States has prepared a detailed arms plan based on the principles stated by Mr. Eisenhower at Geneva. The central idea is aerial inspection of each other's military capabilities, but the underlying thought is security against surprise attack.

The other Western nations are expected by the United States to go along with the general theme of the Eisenhower plan. The feeling is that any minor differences can easily be ironed out.

No Advance Notice.
The Russians have given no advance notice but they likely will have a proposal to counter the Eisenhower idea, for which they showed no great enthusiasm although they did not actually reject it.

The United States does not claim that the Soviet Union would be a fool-proof method of detecting nuclear weapons. It would, however, be a good way to determine if an attack were being prepared because it would almost certainly have to be accompanied by a visible buildup of manpower and supplies.

Nutting brought with him the details of Prime Minister Eden's proposal for arms inspection by teams from each side. He emphasized on arrival here that the Western powers would continue to work as a team.

HURRICANE EDITH DISPLAYS ODD BEHAVIOR OVER ATLANTIC

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 26 (AP)—Hurricane Edith, still carrying 80-mile winds, displayed eccentric behavior far out over the Atlantic today.

The storm, fifth of the year and third this month, has clung to the development stage for two days, a longer period than usual.

At 11 a.m. the center was 970 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C., moving toward the northwest at 12 miles an hour. Hurricane force winds (75 miles an hour or more) extend outward about 70 miles from the center toward the north-east. Gale force winds reach 150 miles to the north and east and 75 miles to the south and west.

HOOVER REPORT OUT OF DATE, SAYS BRITISH AIR MINISTRY

LONDON, Aug. 26 (AP)—Britain's Air Ministry said yesterday the Hoover commission's criticism of Royal Air Force jet fighters and bombers was out of date.

The commission said Tuesday the United States wasted foreign aid and funds in helping Britain build them. It singled out a $200,000,000 grant to aid in the manufacture of the Javelin, Swift and Hawker Hunter fighters and claimed the planes would be obsolete by the time they went into full line service.

The Air Ministry said the Hoover report was drawn up toward the end of 1954 and "in many respects did not represent the position as it was today." It said hundreds of Hunters are in service and that the Pavlov would come into squadron service before the end of the year.

Farm Delegation Back From Russia

Returning U.S. Farmers Agree On Lag in Soviet Agriculture

Bread and Potatoes Diet, Well and Bucket
Serving Many Families Indicated Living Standard—Saw No Hybrid Corn.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (UP)—An American farmer said yesterday on his return from Russia that Soviet farming is 25 to 100 years behind United States agriculture.

John M. Steddon, Granger, Ia., one of the touring farmers, said he saw both combines and women wielding scythes cutting grain in the same field in Russia.

"The Soviet Union is a country trying to jump several generations, agriculturally speaking, in a few years," he said.

But even so, Steddon said, the Russians are about 25 years behind the United States, even in the modern phase of their agriculture. In some cases, he said, they are 100 years behind, especially in the use of manual labor.

Steddon was one of eight members of the American farm delegation to return yesterday from a 32-day visit in Russia.

Conditions Improved.
J. M. Kleiner, Nampa, Idaho, distributor of Agricultural products and the only member of the group who speaks Russian, said living conditions had improved in Russia since his last visit there in 1932 and 1935. Then many persons were starving, but that was not the case this time, he said.

"I was amazed at the number of people employed in agriculture as compared to the United States," he said. "I wonder how much progress actually has been made."

The Americans said they noticed that women in Russia do all kinds of manual labor, ranging from light to heavy. The farm homes are modest but the farmers are proud of them.

Dean W. V. Lambert of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture said he believed lack of incentive, drought and under-mechanization were hampering the Soviet Government's plans to increase farm output.

"I think we learned a good deal about Soviet agriculture, probably made some friends and drove some wedges in barriers between the two countries, although they are probably small wedges," he commented.

Lambert said he hoped to explore the possibility of using in the United States some plants that thrive in Russia. Among these, he said, were millet, a forage grain; central Asian sweet melons, and "shelter belt" plants, placed around fields to protect them from wind and erosion.

Soviet officials have promised to send him some millet seed.

David G. Johnson, associate professor of agriculture economics at the University of Chicago, said that one of the real problems of Soviet farm production is the lack of incentive. Food prices are much higher than in the United States, he said, and 75 per cent of the farm diet consists of bread and potatoes.

Ralph A. Olsen, Ellsworth, Ia., farmer, said he was impressed with the great size of the Soviet farms and machinery.

Others in Party.
The others who returned were Herbert W. Pike, Whiting, Ia.; Asa V. Clark, Pullman, Wash.; and Herbert H. Plambeck, Des Moines, Ia., farm news editor. The most universal thing they saw was a well with just a bucket and a winch, serving about 10 families," Steddon said.

M'CARTHY RAKES ADMINISTRATION AS APPEASERS

Assails President and Dulles—Would Urge
to Attack China.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—Senator McCarthy (Rep., Wis.), renewed his attacks on President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles yesterday with a statement contending they had appeased Communism for two and one-half years.

As the "only alternative to an appeasement policy," McCarthy said this country should encourage anti-Communist forces in Korea, Viet Nam and Formosa "to launch a huge, three-pronged pincer movement against Communist China."

Even though such an attack might not succeed, McCarthy said "it is morally and practically indefensible for our Government to prevent these nations from making the attempt."

"The free Asiatic peoples want to fight," he said. "In justice to them, and in justice to the millions of American boys who will otherwise be called upon to sacrifice their lives in a total war against Communism, we must permit and help our allies to carry the fight to the enemy."

Handout From His Office.

McCarthy's latest blast at his party's foreign policy leaders was released by his office here. His secretary, Mary Driscoll, said he dictated it before leaving a week ago for a series of speeches in Wisconsin. She did not say why it was held up until yesterday.

Just before the recent Congress session ended, McCarthy, after a bitter floor dispute with Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland, mustered only four votes in his efforts to force the Big Four conference at Geneva to discuss the status of Soviet satellite states.

McCarthy said he took "no particular pleasure in documenting" the Eisenhower Administration "has appeased the Communists."

He said most of this "knuckling under to Communism" had been in the Far East.

In Korea, he said, "even though we could have won the war, the new Eisenhower policy of firmness never got beyond the talking stages." He said the Korean armistice released communist forces who later scored a similar victory in Indochina.

"Record of Appeasements."
McCarthy said the "bellicose Formosa resolution" to defend that Chinese Nationalist base and related positions was followed by a request for a cease-fire that would be "just another instance of appeasing Communism."

Such is the record of the Eisenhower Administration in its first 2½ years of office—a record of giving ground in every instance in which the Communists exerted heavy pressures against free world positions," he said. "It is a record of appeasement, retreat and surrender in the pattern of the Truman Administration—and it shows not the slightest sign of abating."

McCarthy criticized Dulles for saying that this country would not support "aggressive wars" to recapture subjugated lands from Communist control.

"Characterizing such liberation efforts as 'aggressive wars' is only an attempt to rationalize a weak, cowardly and immoral American foreign policy," he said.

Patman Charges SBA Conducts Security Checks in Secret

Representative Claims Small Business Men
Seeking Loans Are Placed Under Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (UP)—Representative Wright Patman (Dem.), Texas, charged today that small business men seeking Government loans have been secretly subjected to security risk investigations by the Small Business Administration.

Patman accused the SBA, a federal agency, with giving only "microscopic" aid to little businesses it is organized to help. He questioned whether it is worth the money it takes to run it.

Patman is chairman of the House Small Business Committee. He made his complaint in a "chairman's report" to the House, which was published today in the Congressional Record.

It is "proper and necessary," Patman said, that business reputations and credit standing of small business men seeking SBA loans, should be investigated. But, he said, it has "recently been revealed" that besides such inquiries "SBA has secretly been subjecting small business men who apply for loans to 'security' or 'suitability' investigations similar to those required for federal employees."

Patman said this "raises questions for reappraisal, as to both the necessity and propriety of federal prying into personal histories beyond the requirements of prudent commercial safeguards."

In his report Patman also: 1. Said testimony last month showed that the general counsel and two assistant general counsels of the Federal Power Commission's Bureau of Laws issued opinions "strongly condemning" the now-dead Dixon-Yates power contract while it was being negotiated last fall. He said the opinion had been requested. But he added that FPC Chairman Jerome K. Kuykendall told the joint congressional atomic committee, when asked last November, that the Bureau of Laws had not been asked for an opinion.

2. Charged that Edward F. Howrey, retiring chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, joined the "Attorney General's national committee to study the anti-trust laws," while chairman "and assisted the group in repairing a major lobbying effort against the anti-trust laws." Patman called the committee a "private lobbying group" composed almost entirely of lawyers who specialize in defending big business clients in anti-trust suits.

3. Reported that profits of small business firms have "drastically fallen" in recent years while profits of big corporations have risen. He also said small business failures in the retail and commercial service fields have been "considerably greater" in the last six months than in the preceding two years.

lowed by a request for a cease-fire that would be "just another instance of appeasing Communism."

GENEVA DECISION ON U.S. CIVILIANS IS BELIEVED NEAR

Speculation Grows as American Envoy Gets Talks Postponed for Four Days.

GENEVA, Aug. 26 (AP)—The United States today requested a four-day postponement of tomorrow's scheduled meeting with Communist China on the question of Americans detained by the Peiping government. There was growing speculation that the issue was near settlement.

United States Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson, who has been carrying on the talks with Red China's Ambassador Wang Ping-nan since Aug. 1, requested the postponement. He gave no reason. The Communists agreed to the request and the next meeting was set for 8 a.m. Wednesday.

The postponement request came on the heels of official confirmation in New Delhi that the United States is discussing with India a proposal involving the help of Prime Minister Nehru's government.

Indian officials said the United States suggested informally that the Indian embassy in Washington and Indian consulates be placed at the disposal of Chinese nationals in the United States who might wish to be repatriated to Communist China.

There also have been reports from Washington that the talks here might take a decisive turn soon.

The two Ambassadors have been meeting regularly here on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for nearly four weeks. There has been only one other postponement in the 11 meetings held so far.

Johnson, the United States Ambassador in Prague, and Wang, the Peiping Government's envoy in Warsaw, have kept the closest secrecy concerning the talks. Both refused to discuss the reports from New Delhi.

The two envoys have been unable to get off the first item of their agenda in nearly a month of talking. This item covers the return of civilians of both sides to their respective countries. The second agenda item is "other practical matters at issue between the two sides."

2 MORE WOMEN CALLED BY GRAND JURY IN POLICE PAY-OFF INQUIRY

2 Others Gave Valuable Information, Dowd Says—Panel Expected to Recess Today Until Tuesday.

The circuit court grand jury was to hear testimony from two more women today in its inquiry into reported pay-offs to policemen by brothel operators, Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd announced.

Two other women, described as a brothel operator and an employee, appeared before the jury yesterday. Dowd said, and supplied valuable information, which can be checked and ultimately used in the investigation. The jury is expected to adjourn today until next Tuesday.

A letter from Dowd in which he withdrew objections to the Police Department inquiry into the alleged pay-offs will be submitted to the Board of Police Commissioners at its meeting Monday at 2 p.m. Dowd's letter said he realized the board was becoming "uneasy" concerning the long investigation and added that "if you feel that you should begin taking action at this stage without further investigation, I, of course have no objection."

The board had indicated it would like to question some of the eight police officers who received from Dowd financial questionnaires in the pay-off investigation. Dowd, however, had asked that the board's inquiry be delayed until the grand jury finished its work.

With the removal of Dowd's objections the Police Board could call in policemen whose names have been connected with the inquiry and questioning could take disciplinary action, if evidence warranted it.

The pay-off investigation started last June after an employee of the late June Alma Lutz, operator of the June Bath & Massage Parlor, 308A North Theresa avenue, reported that Mrs. Lutz paid policemen to prevent raids on her disorderly house. Since then the inquiry has spread to other reported pay-offs.

The employee was Pauline Cloin, who sought to obtain from police $14,335 which she claimed Mrs. Lutz was keeping for her. The money was found in the massage parlor by police while conducting a search of the place following Mrs. Lutz's murder.

Burglary Case Inquiry. An investigation also is being made into an alleged offer by a policeman to effect the return of $14,000 taken in a recent burglary if he and his sergeant were given $1000 rewards each. The burglary was reported from the home of Roy Laxton, 1472 Graham avenue, where $20,900 in cash and a diamond ring valued at $1072 were said to have been stolen.

Laxton's sister, Miss Telsie Laxton, operator of a tavern at 1657 Jefferson avenue, told authorities the policeman made the offer in her tavern to her. She told her brother, he was and arranged a meeting between the officer and Laxton.

Last Sunday Laxton met the policeman in her apartment, 1657A Jefferson avenue, and the policeman made the same offer, she said. Her brother presumably accepted it and the policeman was to bring the $14,000 to Laxton's home the next day, but he did not show up, she related.

Denied by Policeman. The policeman under suspicion denied making the offer, but said Miss Laxton did offer him a $1000 reward for the return of the money. The sergeant is out of town on vacation.

Police are looking for a suspect in the burglary. He was released on bond from City Jail three days before the burglary Aug. 17 and neighbors of Laxton have identified his picture as that of the man they saw forcing the front door of Laxton's home.

The suspect, police said, bought a new automobile and paid for it with $100 bills. He is reported to have gone to Hillsboro where he spent money freely.

BIG-STORE SALES IN DOLLARS RISE 5 PCT. FOR WEEK

Department store sales in the St. Louis area were 5 per cent greater in dollar volume last week than during the corresponding week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

For the four weeks ended last Saturday, dollar volume was 11 per cent above the corresponding period last year. Sales since Jan. 1 have been 6 per cent higher than in 1954.

Dollar volume of sales rose 6 per cent for the Eighth Federal Reserve District as a whole last week. For the four-week period sales were 12 per cent higher than a year ago. Cumulative sales for 1955 through last Saturday were 6 per cent greater than for the corresponding period in 1954.

Nationally, department stores reported a 6 per cent increase last week and a 7 per cent gain in the four weeks ended last Saturday, the Federal Reserve Bank announced in Washington. Sales in the flood-affected New England area were off 13 per cent last week, however.

PHOTOS OF VICTIM, SUSPECT CONCERN SEPARATE HOLDUPS

In its early editions today the Post-Dispatch published a picture of Mrs. Floyd Risinger, under the caption "Figures in Holdups."

Mrs. Risinger, wife of the manager of the Alsam Surplus Store, 4325 Manchester avenue, was held up by a robber who forced her to give up $76 as he threatened her with a knife yesterday.

Her picture appeared at the side of one of William F. Durbin, charged in a warrant with three robberies. So far as is known, Durbin is not the man who held up Mrs. Risinger and there is no connection between the two.

Samuel C. Waugh Promoted. DENVER, Colo., Aug. 25 (UP)—President Eisenhower today promoted Samuel C. Waugh, who will become president of the Export-Import Bank Oct. 1, to Deputy Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs. Waugh, now Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs, will hold the new job until Oct. 1, when he takes over the Export-Import Bank post.

FRANK MOORE SEES BEEBE ON GAMING STAMPS

The Playdium is operated by a syndicate headed by Frank Moore and his brother, Terry Moore. Frank Moore is a well-known St. Louis professional golfer and Terry Moore formerly was a star outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Beebe said East St. Louisans obtaining gaming stamps would be kept under surveillance. Five of these men already have been questioned by Chief of Police George Dowling who warned they would be arrested if found violating gaming laws.

Sheriff Leonard O. Reinhardt said he had instructed Chief Deputy Sheriff Clifford Flood to investigate every St. Clair county applicant for gaming tax stamps. If any are found to be engaged in gambling, arrests will be made, he said.

State's Attorney Richard T. Carter of St. Clair county said investigation of gambling law violations did not come under his jurisdiction. He said this was the duty of the sheriff or police departments.

In Alton, where eight individuals obtained gaming stamps and 10 clubs and fraternal organizations were issued gaming device stamps, Mayor Leo J. Struif and Chief of Police John Heafner said they would hold a conference to determine what they could do about the list.

"I don't know what we can do about it if they (the gamblers) remain quiet and no one makes a complaint about them," Mayor Struif said.

Chief of Police Reese Dobson of Belleville, pointing out that only two gaming stamp applicants actually lived in Belleville, said he had checked them and found they were not engaged in gambling within his jurisdiction.

Asked about the large number of Madison county applicants appearing on the list, Sheriff Kenneth T. Ogle of Madison county replied: "No comment."

In the past, Madison county officials have adopted a policy of permitting private clubs and fraternal and patriotic organizations to operate slot machines in violation of state gaming laws.

Wagering stamps cost $50 each. Recipients of gaming device stamps must pay $250 for each device in operation.

E. ST. LOUIS SCHOOL BOARD BOOSTS PAY FOR TEACHERS

Annual salary increases of $200 for teachers and $400 for principals in the East St. Louis School system, effective Sept. 1, were approved last night at a meeting of the Board of Education. Custodial and clerical employees were awarded a $10 a month raise. Present salaries of the 530 teachers in the system range from $3250 to $5300.

The board also awarded contracts to low bidders for construction of a proposed new high school at Fifty-first and State streets, totaling $3,484,633. The cost estimate for the school was $4,000,000.

Contracts were awarded for general contracting to J. J. Altman & Co., $2,383,000; plumbing, heating and ventilating, Maag Plumbing & Heating Co., $738,686, and electrical work, Lowry Electric Co., $362,947. Work on the high school, which will accommodate 2000 students, is expected to be completed in June 1957. The present senior high school at Tenth and Ohio streets will be converted into a junior high school.

MAN STABBED TO DEATH, SUSPECT GIVES SELF UP. Willie Fields Jr., 2007 Franklin avenue, was stabbed to death early today in a scuffle outside a barbecue stand in the 900 block of North Twentieth street. Fields, a Negro, was 22 years old.

A man who said he was Clarence Hayden, a laborer, of the 4600 block of Cottage avenue, walked into the Deer street police station shortly before noon and, police said, told them he had killed Fields in the course of a dispute which started when Fields made insulting remarks to him about Hayden's wife.

Hayden showed police where he had thrown away his knife, in the 2000 block of Cole street. He was held suspected of homicide at the Carr street police station.

Alberto J. Pani Dies. MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26 (AP)—Alberto J. Pani, who held three cabinet posts in various Mexican governments, died of a cerebral hemorrhage yesterday. He was 77 years old. Mr. Pani was foreign minister in 1921 and minister of finance from 1923 to 1927. He also served as minister to France, Spain and Portugal.

'TWIN' STORY FALSE, MAN HELD IN HOLDUP SERIES

Suspect Says His Identical Brother Might Have Been Robber but He Has None.

William F. Durbin, of the 1100 block of South Fourteenth street, was charged with two St. Louis county holdups and implicated in two others today, after police disproved his story that he had an identical twin with whom he might have been confused by holdup victims.

Durbin, 20 years old, an unemployed tuckpointer, was charged with the $800 holdup of the Ritchey Drug Store, 8554 St. Charles road, Charlack, on Aug. 12; the $260 holdup of the Weiss Drug Store, 8200 Gravois avenue, Gardenville, Wednesday; and the theft of $22 from a customer, Dr. John M. Collins, 6928 Hampton avenue, who was in the Weiss store at the time of the Wednesday holdup. Warrants issued.

Three first-degree robbery warrants were issued against Durbin by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis at Clayton.

Police said Durbin admitted the Charlack and Gardenville holdups after lengthy questioning today, although he refused to sign a written statement. They said he also admitted holding up the McCarthy Pharmacy, 8816 Gravois, Affton, taking about $100 Aug. 18.

He was identified by Ray Staley, manager of Darby's Liquor Store, 1040 South Kirkwood road, as the man who robbed him of $129 Aug. 6. Elmer J. Donly, of the 2800 block of Hadley street, was held as Durbin's accomplice in the holdup of the Gardenville drug store and Dr. Collins. First-degree warrants were issued against him by Magistrate Lewis. Donly denied any connection with the robbery.

Identified by Druggists. Durbin was identified yesterday by Harry Ritchey, proprietor of the Ritchey store; Gus Weiss, proprietor of the Weiss store; Dr. Collins, and a clerk in the Weiss store, police said.

After the first identification, by Ritchey, Durbin told police he had an identical twin who lived in St. Charles county.

He added he could lead police to the "twin." But a clubhouse in St. Charles county to which he took police yesterday proved to be empty. And a police check of St. Louis City Hall records showed Durbin's birth was a single birth. Durbin finally retracted his story about the twin.

Revolver in River. Police said Durbin today, in admitting the holdups said he had bought his .32-caliber revolver from an East Side pawnshop for $15. After the holdup of the Weiss Drug Store, he drove to the East Side over the Veterans' Bridge and threw the weapon into the river, he told police.

Police quoted Durbin as saying he split the money from the holdup Wednesday with an accomplice, whom he refused to name. He spent all but $15 of his share the same night in company with a woman in East Side night spots, police said he told them.

Durbin maintained he did not use bullets at any time in the holdups, and placed an inch and a quarter metal band in the barrel of his revolver to make

Eisenhower Goes Fishing Again, Plans to Cook if Luck Is Good

President After Trout in Well-Stocked Stream—His Recipe for Open-Fire Cooking.

DENVER, Aug. 26 (AP)—President Eisenhower went trout fishing again today. He planned to cook fish on the bank of the stream, if he catches any.

The President left at 7:32 a.m. on a drive to the ranch of Bal F. Swan at Pine, Colo., about 45 miles southwest on a fork of the South Platte river. Swan, a Denver business man, is an old friend of Mr. Eisenhower's and the stream always is well stocked for the President's visits.

The President was accompanied by Tom Belshe, retired Army colonel who frequently plays golf with Mr. Eisenhower in Washington, Aksel Nielsen, Denver banker and friend, and James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary.

Mr. Eisenhower has fished at Pine several times in other years while vacationing in Colorado. The President and his party usually set up camp in a pine tree grove just off the river. He and the others fish until they have an adequate mess of trout, then Mr. Eisenhower turns to another favorite hobby—cooking.

He puts on an apron, helps set an open fire going on the bank, and then cooks em a la Eisenhower.

That consists of shaking the fish in a bag with corn meal seasoned with salt and pepper. When the trout are well coated with meal, Mr. Eisenhower flips them into a hot skillet with plenty of melted butter and bacon drippings.

Well cooked to a golden brown, they are eaten without benefit of plates, knives or forks. You just take the trout in your fingers and go at it in a sort of mouth organ style.

The President fished a week ago at a Rocky mountain ranch across the Continental Divide at Estes, Colo. He caught several there, including a 17-inch two pounder.

OLD COURTHOUSE FLAGLESS; HELP IS TOO OLD TO CLIMB

The American flag has not flown above the historic Old Courthouse at Broadway and Market street for more than a year, but only one person, a resident of the nearby MacArthur Hotel, noticed the absence and registered a complaint, it was reported today.

Julian C. Spotts, superintendent of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, of which the old structure is a part, said flying of the flag was discontinued because all but two of the 13 employees in the building are too old to climb 162 feet to the flagpole. "The two younger men are not available for the job," Spotts explained.

The present flagpole probably was erected in 1862, Spotts said. "The flag was flown regularly up to a year ago, but we will be unable to begin displaying it again until arrangements are made to do it on a regular basis," he said.

doubly sure it would not fire, police reported.

Durbin and Donly were arrested early yesterday in Maplewood, along with another man and a woman who were later released. Police said the arrests came after an unidentified woman drug store proprietor on U.S. Highway 66 phoned them Wednesday night shortly before the Gardenville holdup.

She told them a suspicious man was loitering in her drug store and gave them the license number of his 1952 dark green Buick. When a report of the Gardenville holdup came in, police checked the license number of the car and located its owner, a Maplewood resident. The Maplewood man said he had lent the car to a friend.

A police watch on the home of the owner of the Buick led to Durbin's arrest as he drove up early yesterday in his own car, followed by two men in the borrowed Buick.

SUSPECTS ADMIT SHOOTING STORE OWNER IN HOLDUP

Two Armed Robbers Who Fled Empty-Handed Also Held in Attacks on Women.

Police today arrested two young men who, officers said, admitted they shot and clubbed Gus Gellman, operator of a clothing store at 3304 Easton avenue, in an unsuccessful attempt to rob him yesterday.

The men also were identified by a woman as the ones who criminally attacked her last Saturday in the 4000 block of Fairfax avenue, police said, and the youths have admitted another criminal assault and a robbery Wednesday in the 3600 block of Aldine avenue.

The robbers, who said they were Jesse Davis, 1200 block of North Prairie avenue, and Michael Acres, 3600 block of Windsor place, were found sleeping early today in O'Fallon Park by Patrolman Glenn O'Connor and Probationary Patrolman Edward Chrun of the Ruskin avenue station.

Then the officers found the men were carrying pistols and arrested them. Later, Davis and Acres, Negroes, admitted the attempted robbery and were identified by Gellman, police reported.

The robbers had gone in Gellman's store and demanded money, but before Gellman could comply, they beat him with the butts of their weapons. Acres admitted firing one shot which pierced Gellman's left arm, and Davis admitted firing two other shots, which went wild. The men fled, empty-handed.

Gellman was treated at Homer G. Phillips Hospital and released. He lives at 714 Leland avenue, University City.

William Newton, operator of an ice cream store at 3122 Laclede avenue, was shot in the elbow early yesterday in an attempted holdup of the store.

A man entered the store and handed Mrs. Newton a note which demanded money. She did not comprehend the note at first and started to ask the robber a question. He apparently became excited and fired one shot, the bullet striking Newton. The man then fled without any money.

Newton was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital. A Negro, he lives at 4316 Enright avenue. His assailant also was a Negro.

Hunt for Greenlease Ransom Bills Intensified

seeking complete details of his visit with Costello.

The FBI did not announce until last night the finding of the $20 bill at the Federal Reserve Bank here. The delay in announcement was explained by the fact the agency was checking to make certain the bill actually was part of the missing ransom.

No information was given on the serial number of the bill, nor whether the FBI has been able to learn which bank sent the $20 to the Federal Reserve Bank.

However, it was learned from other sources that the bill was in good condition, indicating it had not been used extensively. It was pointed out that, unless FBI agents had found the bill shortly after it was received in a shipment from another bank, there was little chance they could trace its movements outside the Federal Reserve Bank.

The Post-Dispatch was told the bill was uncovered when it was in the sorting process, which would make an attempt to trace the bill virtually impossible.

However, the appearance of the bill here and the one in North Dakota—the first two bills to be identified by the FBI as recovered ransom—was considered an important development in the investigation since it showed the missing money was being put into circulation.

Money From Many Banks.

The St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank handles money from banks in all of Missouri, except 19 counties in the western section; all of southern Illinois, a northern section of Arkansas and a small part of Indiana.

The Eighth Federal Reserve District is divided into four zones for handling money. The St. Louis zone includes 803 banks, of which 329 are members of the Federal Reserve System.

The bank here could have received the $20 from any of the member banks. Under ordinary conditions, it is likely that the bill would have been in the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank for no more than a few months at the most before its discovery.

It is possible, of course, that it was found within a few days after being shipped here from a member bank.

Numbers Widely Distributed.

Appearance of the bills here and in North Dakota disposed of persistent speculation that the missing ransom money might have been burned or otherwise destroyed because it was "too hot to handle."

Pamphlets listing the numbers of the $303,720 in $10 and $20 notes were distributed widely by the FBI a few weeks after the kidnapping, to banks and business concerns handling large amounts of currency. The Post-Dispatch published the list in a special section.

Last year there were reports that a $20 bill turned up at Petoskey, Mich., another at Petersburg, Ind., and a $10 bill at Detroit, but the FBI never confirmed that they were part of the Greenlease ransom.

It was significant, therefore, that the federal investigators announced that the $20 bills found at Minot and here definitely were part of the missing portion.

Robert C. Greenlease of Kansas City paid $600,000 to Carl Austin Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Heady the night of Oct. 4, 1953, for the return of his 6-year-old son Bobby, who was kidnapped Sept. 28. Hall and Mrs. Heady drove straight to St. Louis and were arrested two nights later.

With their arrest it developed that they had killed the child immediately after they kidnapped him, and buried him at the rear of Mrs. Heady's home at St. Joseph.

Kidnapers Executed.

The kidnapers were put to death in the gas chamber of the Missouri State penitentiary at Jefferson City Dec. 18. Hall maintained to the last that to the best of his knowledge he had all of the $600,000 when he was arrested, except a relatively small amount that he had spent.

Hall and Mrs. Heady were arrested by Shoulders and Elmer Dolan, a patrolman, after a taxi cab driver, John Hager, a former convict, tipped Shoulders that one of his passengers had been spending money freely.

The officers entered Hall's hotel apartment and found two suitcases stuffed full of currency. It soon became apparent that about half of the $600,000 paid by Greenlease was missing.

An intense investigation followed, and eventually Shoulders and Dolan were convicted in United States District Court at Kansas City, on perjury charges based on their conflicting testimony as to how the suitcases were handled immediately after the arrest of Hall.

The federal grand jury started a new inquiry in the case of the ransom money last January, and Hager was among the witnesses. Costello and a close associate, John J. Vitale, were upheld by Judge George H. Moore in their refusal to testify. The investigation was dropped and no results were announced.

The missing ransom consisted of 13,401 $20 bills and 3570 $10 bills.

The FBI issued the serial numbers of the lost ransom bills after waiting three weeks in hope of finding the money in gross quantity before it could be scattered.

The $20 bills have serial numbers beginning with A and running through L, except that there are no Js. The $10s have numbers beginning with B and running through L, excepting C, E and F.

SULTAN REFUSES TO QUIT, OBSTACLE TO SETTLEMENT

widely representative Moroccan government. This regime would negotiate with the French for some measure of home rule in the protectorate which the Europeans have run almost completely.

Reports from Morocco expressed fears Grandval's departure would touch off more fighting between his colonial critics and the nationalists who like him. There was also apprehension that removal of the present Sultan would set off jubilant nationalist demonstrations which might develop into bloody French-Moroccan riots.

Grandval was to come here tomorrow to meet Faure. Reports persisted that he already had resigned or was about to, but Faure told newsmen Thursday that the resident general had neither quit nor been recalled.

Reports of sabotage continued to trickle in from all parts of Morocco. Telephone poles were felled around Casablanca to cripple communications. Farms and shops were put to the torch in the Meknes region. But generally calm prevailed in both Morocco and neighboring Algeria.

Reports from Algeria said one man was shot in the city of Constantine yesterday and about 100 rebels staged a hit-run raid on the village of St. Charles, making off with 13 rifles.

About 2800 Jews caught in the Morocco rioting have asked to go to Israel. Many were burned out of their homes. Newspaper accounts said these Jews were victims of a "veritable pogrom" in the native quarters of Mazagan on the seacoast.

Many of them are now quartered in the town's athletic field and other makeshift areas. They telegraphed their appeal to the Israel government in Tel Aviv.

By official count, eight Jews were killed and 30 injured in Mazagan over the weekend, but the newspaper Paris-Presse said unofficial figures put the toll at 20 dead and about 100 injured.

(United Press said there were reports that France planned to withdraw more troops from North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces guarding Europe and rush them to help pacify its North African empire. France already has withdrawn the equivalent of two divisions.)

(The troops withdrawn from NATO would be replaced by 50,000 to 60,000 trained reservists called up early this week on an emergency basis.)

Tunisian Party Leaders Holding Discussion in Cairo.

CAIRO, Aug. 26 (AP)—A delegation of the Tunisian Neo Destour party arrived in Cairo last night for discussions with party leaders here aimed at reconciling viewpoints on the French-Tunisian agreement.

The delegation, headed by party political bureau chief Jal-louli Fares, is holding secret talks today with party general Saleh Ben Youssef, who has publicly attacked the agreement with France which party members in Tunisia have accepted. The agreement gave Tunisia a large measure of internal self-government but not complete independence.

Like Morocco, Tunisia is a French protectorate.

SENATE GROUP HEARING SET ON LADEJINSKY CASE

Eleanor V. Waxer of Detroit, a former Army employee, and her husband, Sanford Waxer, and their experiences with the Government's security program. Waxer last May was denied an honorable discharge from the Army on grounds he associated with known Communist party members or sympathizers.

Paul Hadlick, subcommittee counsel, told a reporter Mrs. Waxer was fired from a stenographic job at Fort Knox for "associating with a person"—presumably her husband—and that the subcommittee wants all the facts on her case. Hadlick said that as he understands it Mrs. Waxer never was told who the "person" was.

Johnston's subcommittee, a branch of the Senate Civil Service Committee, was instructed in a Senate resolution to study the employe security program and report back next year.

Other Cases Listed.

The Senator's prepared statement said other cases to be examined in the four days of hearings will be those of Joseph E. Vargo of Washington, a former overseas employe of the State Department who worked in embassy construction and management; Joseph H. Sumner Jr. of Providence, R.I., fired from a job as a metallurgy's helper for the Navy at Quonset Point, R.I.; George H. Roitman of Cranston, R.I., another former naval employe; Edward R. Dixon of Washington, a former Government printing office employe; Mrs. Beatrice Murphy Campbell of Washington, formerly with the Veterans Administration; Jonathan Thurz, former State Department employe, and Benjamin Sher of Washington, former Commerce Department employe.

Sumner, a Navy veteran, was fired July 20. He told reporters then: "They told me I was a security risk. They told me they have nothing against me. It's my parents."

He said Navy officials told him his parents were members of an organization on the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations and that Sumner was "apt to tell my parents something about my work."

Sumner's parents later denied they belonged to any proscribed organizations.

Hadlick said the Vargo case is not, on its face, a security risk firing, but he quoted Vargo as saying he believes he was dropped on security charges because he had married a Russian. Vargo married the Russian while he was assigned to the United States Embassy in Moscow, first getting consent from the Navy. Hadlick said the Soviet Government also authorized the marriage with a proviso that Mrs. Vargo would leave the country and not return.

U.S.-BUILT PLANE TO TAKE ADENAUER TO RED CAPITAL

Adenauer and his top advisers will leave Bonn airport Sept. 8 in a four-engine Constellation chartered from the German Lufthansa airline, the announcement said. The Chancellor is due back today from a six-week vacation at Murren, Switzerland.

His talks with Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and other Soviet leaders on establishing normal German-Russian relations, the outlook for German unity and the release of war prisoners will start Sept. 9.

SAILOR SENT HOME TO EVICT GHOST ADMITS FAILURE

PLYMOUTH, England, Aug. 26 (UP)—Seaman William Hampson admitted failure today in his efforts to rid the family attic of a headless ghost with hairy arms that keeps his wife and children awake nights. Hampson, probably the first sailor ever to get home leave to exorcise a ghost, was granted it after he approached his commanding officer aboard the aircraft carrier Eagle in the Mediterranean and said, "My wife is having trouble with a ghost, sir." The navy flew Hampson here from Malta. His 29-year-old wife, Dorothy, who has the nickname of Betty, said the ghost wanders through the attic calling "Betty." She said "two of the children, Dorothy, 7, and Tony, 5, have been bumped in the back by an unseen hand," and that she has "felt unseen hands tugging my skirt and touching my shoulder." Hampson said "I haven't seen the ghost myself but I have experienced the sensation of death-like cold and its sultry closeness—and it has nothing to do with the weather." His two-week leave has expired and the Navy has reassigned him here. He has been seeking a new home.

CITY WORKHOUSE WARDEN CALLED BY GRAND JURY

made of the various personnel needs.

Pending such a study, the board suggested that he employ a stenographer-clerk to help him with this type of work.

A manual arts supervisor for the Workhouse shops was another need pointed out by Baynes. He said the shops, which make park benches and other items used by the city, have been in charge of a maintenance man whose duties require him to be in various other parts of the institution much of the time.

With a proper supervisor, many city-owned items could be renovated and useful work could be provided for the inmates, many of whom are now idle, Baynes said. The board suggested he discuss this need with the Board of Education, which might provide a supervisor under it adult education program.

Medical and dental service at the Workhouse leaves much to be desired, Baynes went on. He said this service is provided by City Hospital, but the physician is available for only one hour a day for the more than 400 Workhouse inmates. He suggested more time should be allotted to the visits and that a physician should be on call 24 hours a day.

Inmates needing dental service are taken to the dental clinic at the hospital, but visits are limited to mornings, Monday through Thursday of each week, and the service is confined largely to extractions. He urged some arrangement whereby a dentist could visit the Workhouse at least three times a week to examine teeth and give preventive dental care. Baynes was told by the board to discuss these needs further with Mrs. Brungard and the Hospital Commissioner.

In other action the board approved a plan to buy two tracts of land adjacent to Lambert-St. Louis Field for $100,000 at the request of Director of Public Utilities Conway B. Briscoe.

Briscoe said, in a letter to the board, that one tract of 14.7 acres fronted 1600 feet on Natural Bridge road east of the Naval Air Station while the other, of 5.28 acres, fronted 300 feet on Natural Bridge west of the Naval installation.

Acquisition of the two tracts is part of a program to obtain about 125 acres along the present boundaries of the field which will be needed soon when work gets under way on installation of an underground fuel system, he said.

COUNTY COUNCIL AND BOND CAMPAIGN LEADERS TO MEET

A meeting between the St. Louis County Council and members of the county bond issue campaign executive committee has been scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m. at Medart's Restaurant, 7036 Clayton road, Council Chairman Frank L. Martini announced today.

Purpose of the dinner meeting is to permit the Council to explain to the campaign committee the items proposed for inclusion in the bond issue and to get the advice of the committee on the amount of time that would be required for a successful campaign, he said.

Council members also hope to get the feeling of the campaign group as to which items can be presented successfully to the voters so that the Council could have this information before it in considering the exact scope of the proposals at its next meeting on Wednesday.

FINED FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING, SAYS HE WAS JUST NERVOUS

William Rooney, 3205 Vista avenue, was fined $75 and his driver's license suspended for 90 days by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd today after he was found guilty of driving when intoxicated.

Police testified that Rooney, a packing house employee, was arrested Aug. 3 near the intersection of Vandeventer and Chouteau avenues after his automobile collided with another machine. Officers said Rooney was intoxicated. Rooney, who denied the charge, said he was nervous.

ISRAELIS ACCUSE EGYPTIAN FORCES OF TWO ATTACKS

TEL AVIV, Israel, Aug. 26 (UP)—An Israeli military spokesman accused Egyptian forces of two "completely unprovoked attacks" in the Negev area of southern Israel today.

Maj. Dan Gov said an Israeli officer was killed when a patrol jeep was ambushed near Yad Mordecai. Another officer in the jeep radioed for help and reinforcements drove off the attackers.

In the second raid, Gov said armed Egyptians blew up a vital water well at Miflissim, a settlement which was the scene of an Egyptian attack earlier this week.

Egypt Wednesday broke off direct talks with Israel on means of reducing tension along the Gaza border strip. The United Nations-sponsored talks opened June 26 but ran into a deadlock Aug. 9 over the proposed establishment of direct contact between Egyptian and Israeli commanders on the frontier.

GROUP FOR RENOMINATION OF EISENHOWER ORGANIZED

HACKENSACK, N.J., Aug. 26 (AP)—An organization known as "Eisenhower Bandwagon, Inc." filed incorporation papers with the county clerk here yesterday and announced as its aim the renomination of President Eisenhower for 1956.

William Cohen, a Teaneck attorney, who filed the papers, said the group would circulate petitions nationally urging Mr. Eisenhower's renomination. The Men's Republican Club in Teaneck had already started petitions around, he said, and the idea caught on so rapidly it was felt a formal organization was needed.

Budget Outlook Raises Prospects for Tax Cut

Government spending for the year, as now estimated, will run much higher than the figure laid before Congress in January by President Eisenhower.

Highlights of Report.
The Budget Bureau report were:

1. The Government in fiscal 1956 will spend $63,800,000,000, which would top President Eisenhower's January forecast by $1,400,000,000. The revised figure still would be $700,000,000 lower than was expended in fiscal 1955, ended last June 30.

2. Tax receipts, bolstered by the booming economy since late 1954, now are estimated to reach $62,100,000,000 in the fiscal year. This would be $2,100,000,000 more income than Mr. Eisenhower's estimate on which he submitted his estimate to Congress, and $1,800,000,000 more than the Government collected in fiscal 1955.

3. The new estimates of what the Government will spend and take in, when solidated, would result in a total deficit for the year of 1.7 billion dollars, or $700,000,000 less than the President predicted in January and 2.5 billion dollars less than the deficit in the fiscal year 1955. Should the budget be balanced in the current fiscal year it would be the first time since 1951 the Government has taken in more than it has spent.

Previous Deficits.
Deficits since President Eisenhower took office were: 1953, $9,400,000,000; 1954, $3,100,000,000; 1955, $4,200,000,000.

Compared with the estimated $63,800,000,000 in expenditures for 1956, spending in previous years under President Eisenhower has been: 1953, $74,300,000,000; 1954, $67,800,000,000; 1955, $64,500,000,000.

The Budget Bureau estimate reduced by one billion dollars the earlier prediction for the public debt at the end of fiscal 1956, cutting it to 275 billion dollars. By act of Congress, the public debt may go up to 281 billion dollars in the year, but must not be above 275 billion dollars by next June 30.

In this connection, Humphrey told reporters that he did not believe in holding taxes at their present high levels for the purpose of reducing the national debt. He added he believed there could be no substantial reduction in the debt until the world situation changes and the pattern of spending for national defense is altered.

There were hints in the Budget Bureau report that the prospects for the current year might

Budget Summary for 1956

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP).

THE Budget Bureau yesterday announced the following new estimates for Government spending, income and deficit in fiscal 1956, compared with estimates made in January and with totals for fiscal 1955, which ended June 30:

	New Estimates, Fiscal 1956.	January Est., Fiscal 1956.	Actual, Fiscal 1955.
Spending	$63,800,000,000	$62,400,000,000	$64,500,000,000
Receipts	$62,100,000,000	$60,000,000,000	$60,300,000,000
Deficit	$1,700,000,000	$2,400,000,000	$4,200,000,000

be brighter than a prudent officialdom might wish to present them.

"In the present fiscal situation," the report said, "with united teamwork and public support for efforts to cut out all non-essentials, it is believed that a balanced budget will be brought into sight as the year unfolds. While this Administration will strive for further reductions in taxes, these must be justified by increased revenues or reduced expenses or a combination of both.

"Barring basic change in the international situation, the anticipated combination of reduced government expenditures and of rising revenues resulting from widely-shared increasing prosperity should bring a balanced budget within sight within the year. Still further progress would justify lower tax rates."

The Budget Bureau report, along with the remarks of Humphrey and Hughes, left little doubt that the Administration is relying heavily on continued prosperity and resulting higher tax revenue, rather than reductions in expenditures, to open the way for Administration-sponsored tax cuts in politically-important 1956.

The Budget Bureau report said it expected that tax receipts would grow in nearly every category. Personal tax collections, it predicted, will top the list with an increase of about 1.25 billion dollars over last year's total. Corporation taxes, it estimated would rise by about $900,000,000 over last year.

The predicted increases would boost individual income tax receipts from 31.6 to 32.8 billion dollars and corporation income tax receipts from 18.3 billion to 19.2 billion dollars.

The tax experts undoubtedly were encouraged in framing their estimate of a 3.5 per cent rise in tax receipts since the January forecast by the growth of the economy since the first of the year. The Commerce Department reported that the economy had sprinted along at a 385-billion-dollar-a-year pace in the second quarter of this year, compared with 375 billion in the first quarter.

Budget results, the bureau said, depend primarily on the total expenditures for the four major national security programs, which account for 61 per cent of the total expenditures for fiscal 1956.

Cut in Security Spending.
On one of these programs, atomic energy, spending was left at a record high but the other three—the Armed Forces, military aid and defense stockpiling—were cut in the budget revision. The revisions amounted to a reduction in security spending for the current fiscal year of $38,750,000,000, one and one-quarter billion less than the January estimate and $1,665,000,000 less than the 1955 defense outlays of $40,410,000,000. Military personnel will decline in the current fiscal year to a total of 2,859,000, a reduction of 76,000, the bureau said.

A group of Senators, led by Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri, fought in the last session of Congress against any sharp reductions in defense spending which might affect adversely the national security. They forced the Administration to drop its plans for a substantial cut in the Marine Corps personnel.

Most other spending programs showed increases in the revised budget both over the January estimates and the spending in the 1955 fiscal year.

Stronger Defense Claimed.
"Great savings have been made in these (defense) programs," the Budget Bureau said, "while at the same time our ability to defend ourselves has increased because we have acquired new types of weapons and adopted new techniques. Further savings may be expected as a result of continued effective efforts to get more real defense from every dollar spent."

This last declaration has been interpreted by some Democrats from time to time as meaning "a bigger bang for a buck."

Military aid to allied nations will cost $2,150,000,000, about $62,000,000 less than last year. But, the Budget Bureau said, deliveries of equipment to the Allies will not go down because of equipment already paid for and awaiting transfer.

Spending for atomic energy for the 1956 fiscal year was estimated at $1,900,000,000, a new record and $44,000,000 above the outlay in fiscal 1955. The estimate increase was ascribed by the bureau to a bigger output of material for bombs and added effort toward the development of nuclear reactors for generation of electric power and for propulsion of ships and military aircraft.

The final phase of the major national security spending, stockpiling, was estimated by the bureau to cost about $700,000,000 in the current fiscal year. Last year the cost of building up stockpiles of strategic material was about $102,000,000 greater than that figure. The bureau said the reduction was made possible by completion of stockpiling goals for certain materials and by less spending through diversion of material from stockpile purchases to private industry to alleviate shortages of such items as copper and aluminum.

Crop Support Saving.
Farm crop support spending for fiscal 1956 would amount to about $2,200,000,000 in fiscal 1956, the bureau reported, about $1,100,000,000 less than the record outlays in fiscal 1955. The bureau said it predicted the decline because of tighter acreage controls on some crops, lower price supports on others and expectations that private banks would share in holding crop support loans. Moreover, the bureau said, the Commodity Credit Corporation, which administers price supports, is expected to obtain some revenue from sales of farm surpluses it now holds.

Expenditures by the Health, Education and Welfare Department will go up $12,000,000 over 1955. The figure includes a $10,000,000 appropriation for the National Science Foundation's projected satellite program.

Spending on schools will drop $14,000,000 to a total of $116,000,000, it was estimated. Veterans' Administration expenditures are expected to reach $2,798,000,000, which is $120,000,000 more than in fiscal 1955.

"Together with the return to fiscal soundness evidenced by this review," the Budget Bureau said, "there has thus been achievement of steadily growing military strength, and the other necessary and valid functions of Government have been maintained and where necessary have been expanded. The Administration remains fixed in its resolve to continue to reduce Government expenditures as rapidly as our national security and economic well-being will permit and is determined to continue the unremitted emphasis on economy and on the elim-

SOUTH SUDANESE MUTINY BELIEVED TO BE SPREADING

But Foreign Office
Minimizes Report That Situation Has Become Worse.

By JOSEPH NEWMAN

LONDON, Aug. 26—A report from Khartoum, capital of the Sudan, published here yesterday said that the mutiny of soldiers in the southern Sudan has now developed into a popular uprising against the Government.

If the report should prove correct, then colonial Africa is beginning to erupt at both sides — French-controlled Morocco and Algeria in the northwest and the British-controlled Sudan in the northeast.

A Foreign Office spokesman minimized the report which appeared in the London Times.

Asked if the southern Sudan had become a grave threat to the government of Khartoum, he said, "There is no reason to suppose that the situation is worse. The mutinies seem to be coming under control. There is no need to think that the Sudan government is in any difficulties.

These conflicting versions raise the question of whether the correspondent in Khartoum or the Foreign Office in London is being misinformed on events in Sudan.

The press has been barred from the troubled area and the outside world has had to depend largely on versions by officials who tend to minimize outbreaks which are directed against them.

(An Associated Press report from Khartoum, said Gov. Gen. Sir Alexander Knox Helm today ordered the mutineers to surrender and promised to send a personal agent to the captive village of Torit to arrange details. He gave the rebels 24 hours to comply with his order.

Helm arrived during the day from Britain, where he had been vacationing.

(Reports from the south Sudan said mutineers in some areas were surrendering in large numbers to Uganda protectorate authorities.)

Trouble in the Sudan this time arises from a deep-seated feud between north and south rather than from the traditional struggle of natives versus their imperial rulers.

The latter struggle is being resolved and the Sudan as a whole is in the process of achieving self government and independence. The joint rule by Britain and Egypt is coming to an end.

This has presented an opportunity to southern Sudan to break away from northern Sudan. There is a parallel with India which broke into two states when British rule was withdrawn.

Race, Religion Splits. There are differences in race and religion between north and south, with the southerners feeling themselves dominated and exploited by the more highly developed Sudanese in the north who control the capital at Khartoum.

The British government is backing the Khartoum government, which it hopes will thwart Egyptian desires to secure control of the country after the British withdraw.

British military aircraft have been made available to the Khartoum government and more aid undoubtedly will be offered should that be necessary to put down the uprising.

It is being said here that the Egyptians have been fomenting trouble in the south as part of their general policy of seeking an intervention.

Britain has just refused an Egyptian proposal that both countries should send troops into southern Sudan.

MEXICAN FIGHTING DEPORTATION SUIT, IN U.S. 41 YEARS

A court fight against deportation to Mexico was instituted yesterday by Jose Rodriguez-Esperiqueta, an alien who says he has lived in the United States for 41 years.

A petition filed in United States District Court at East St. Louis said he had made the mistake of leaving the country for 10 days in 1914 without getting permission to re-enter the United States.

Rodriguez-Esperiqueta, who is 48 years old, lives in Fairmont City and is employed as a pipe-fitter in the American Zinc Co. plant there. His attorney, Joseph H. Goldenhersh, said he wanted to visit his sister, who was ill in Mexico, so he applied to the United States Immigration Service for a re-entry permit. On learning that his sister was much worse, he flew to Mexico without waiting for the permit.

After the sister got better, Rodriguez-Esperiqueta came back to Fairmont City, where he has a wife and two stepchildren. In checking his application, the attorney said, the Immigration Service learned that the alien had pleaded guilty of assault in Michigan in 1929 and had served six months in jail. He was ordered deported last March, and the Board of Immigration Appeals rejected his appeal in June.

4 IRON LUNGS FROM AREA ON WAY TO MADISON, WIS.

Four iron lungs from the St. Louis and St. Louis county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis were to arrive today at Madison, Wis., where an outbreak of poliomyelitis has been reported.

The respirators were requested by the University Hospital at Madison, through the Missouri foundation headquarters in Jefferson City. The local chapter has furnished iron lungs to hospitals at Springfield, Mo., and Kirksville this year.

A total of 38 cases of polio has been reported in the St. Louis area so far this year. Fifty-one cases were reported in a similar period last year. None of the new patients here is using an iron lung, a spokesman for the foundation said.

SOUTHERN MINE OWNERS AGREE TO $2 WAGE BOOST

40,000 to Get $1.20 a Day Hike in September, 80 Cents More on April 1, 1956.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (UP)—The United Mine Workers and the Southern Coal Producers association today signed a new wage contract providing for a $2-a-day wage increase for 40,000 soft coal miners.

The agreement provides for a $1.20 a day pay increase effective Sept. 1, and 80 cents more on April 1, 1956.

The contract also provides the benefits of those contained in the recently-signed new contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, which represents about two thirds of the industry.

The Pochontas Operators Association, one of the largest southern soft coal producers groups, signalled the signing by the southern group when it agreed two days to the $2 a day boost.

By the Associated Press.

There were no reports of any coal operator group balking at the new contract. Operator associations representing Indiana and Illinois producers are due to sign with the union tomorrow.

Others signing the contract today included the Buchanan coal interests of Illinois, Virginia and West Virginia; the Alabama Commercial Mines, and the Retail Coal Producers Association of Greater Johnstown, Pa.

The Buchanan group operates the Old Ben Coal Corp. in Illinois, the Raleigh-Wyoming Coal Co., Edwight, W. Va., and the Coal Processing Corp. (Dixiana mines) in Southern Virginia.

It was reported that scattered mining interests west of the Mississippi river were signing on the same terms with union representatives in the field, rather than come to Washington as has been true with mining managements east of the Mississippi.

DISPUTE OVER AUTOMOBILE RESULTS IN KILLING OF MAN

William McHarden, a laborer of 2926 (rear) Chouteau avenue, was shot and killed yesterday in a dispute with Richard Elean of the 3000 block of Hickory street.

Police said both men, Negroes, started shooting after tempers flared in an argument over Elean's action in pushing his automobile into a lot at the rear of 2932 Chouteau, to which McHarden objected violently.

McHarden, 43 years old, was dead on arrival at Homer G. Phillips Hospital. Elean was held suspected of murder.

ARMY INVITES 3 RUSSIANS TO VISIT FT. BENNING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—The United States Army has invited three military attaches of the Soviet Embassy here to visit the infantry center at Fort Benning, Ga., next week to observe operations at that key American defense post.

The Army said in response to inquiries that the invitation was a return courtesy for a recent visit by United States military attaches in Moscow to a Soviet military installation.

This is the first exchange of such courtesies for several years, an official said.

The Russian visit to Fort Benning will include calls on the commandant of the Infantry school, dinner at the officers' club and "observation of various activities" at the installation.

TWO SENTENCED TO THREE YEARS FOR WHISKY THEFT

Ivory V. Norman and David Gibbs, former convicts, were sentenced to three years in a federal penitentiary today for stealing a case of 1½-ounce bottles of whisky, which they were selling at 50 cents a bottle at the curb at Eighteenth and Cole streets when they were arrested Aug. 15.

They admitted stealing the small "shot" bottles from an interstate shipment and said they were going to use the money from the sale to buy narcotics. The case of whisky was valued at $170 and contained 240 bottles.

United States District Judge Roy W. Harper, who passed sentence, read from the record that Norman, 2700 block of Dayton street, and Gibbs, 3600 block of Finney street, admitted they were shoplifters and narcotics addicts.

PURINA EMPLOYEES TO CONTINUE STRIKE

They Ignore Urging by Union Leaders to Return to Work.

Striking employees of Ralston Purina Co. continued their unauthorized walkout today despite requests by union leaders to return to work.

Lawrence W. (Larry) Long, business agent of AFL Longshoremen's Local 1642, said he urged the men to resume their jobs at a special meeting of the local in the Longshoremen's building, 3631 Marine avenue, attended by 215 of the 235 striking employees.

The walkout, described by both the company and the union as unauthorized, has halted production at the firm's livestock and poultry feed plant, 827 Chouteau avenue, where 175 production workers are out, and at a farm sanitation products plant, 4142 Union boulevard, where 30 production workers left their jobs today.

The first pickets since the outbreak of the dispute appeared today at the two struck plants. Also picketed were the firm's general offices, at 835 South Eighth street, near the feed plant. Police reported there were 20 pickets, bearing small hand-made placards, at the offices and feed plant and two with no placards at the Union boulevard factory.

Also on strike are 30 men at the firm's distribution warehouse in East St. Louis.

Long said the union members gave no indication of their future actions at today's meeting. He said he told them he wanted them to return to work so that the points in dispute could be settled through the grievance procedure in the company-union contract.

The walkout started at the feed plant Wednesday night following the dismissal of an employee there earlier that day for what the company termed incompetence. The strike spread to the warehouse yesterday.

Long said the company, in firing the man, failed to abide by a long-standing practice of discussing such dismissals with the union in advance.

He said he felt this and what he termed "recent pushing around" of feed plant employees caused the walkout. Until recently, he declared, relationships between the company and the union had been good.

by 16 Nations.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Aug. 26 (AP)—The United States wants a veto-free agency controlled by 16 nations to operate the proposed international atoms-for-peace program. The United States and the Soviet Union would be among the 16 members of the agency's governing board.

Diplomatic sources here last night disclosed details of the "confidential" American plan, which the United States delegation to the U.N. has circulated for study and comment to the more than 70 countries in the U.N. or its specialized agencies. The Russians turned down a similar American proposal at disarmament subcommittee meetings last year in London. They objected to the agency's independence from the Security Council—where the Russians wield a veto.

The United States plan will be debated in the General Assembly sessions opening here Sept. 20. Discussion is also expected in the disarmament subcommittee, which resumes meeting here Monday, and in the Big Four foreign ministers meetings at Geneva in October.

Diplomatic sources gave this outline of the American proposal: 1. The atoms-for-peace agency would buy or receive donations of nuclear materials and sell them at cost to countries needing them. It would be a clearing house also for information on production and use of nuclear energy.

2. All members of the U.N. or its specialized agencies could join the agency. Their representatives would form an international AEC, the Atomic Energy Council.

3. The 16 nations of the governing board would include (A) the five nations now in the forefront of atomic research or production—the United States, Britain, France, Canada and Russia; (B) the five other countries now producing atomic raw materials—South Africa, Portugal, Belgium, Austria and Czechoslovakia, and (C) six other nations elected by the atomic council.

4. A majority vote would prevail in decisions of the governing board. No country would have a veto.

Some Asian countries already were objecting because their continent was not allotted a place on the governing board. Observers also noted that the plan promised the Communists only 2 of the 16 votes—Russia's and Czechoslovakia's.

'World's Smallest TV Camera.' FUERTH, Germany, Aug. 26 (AP)—A Fuert company today announced development of a television camera only 5.2 inches long, and 2.6 inches wide. Describing it as "the world's smallest TV camera," the company said it would be especially useful in factory production control, and in exploration of ocean depths.

BOY, 15, ADMITS TRYING TO WRECK LONG ISLAND TRAIN

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 — A 15-year-old high school boy was held in $20,000 bail yesterday on a charge of trying to wreck a Long Island Railroad train.

The attempt was made a few blocks from the scene of the railroad's 1950 Thanksgiving eve disaster in which 79 persons were killed. The boy was arrested after two days of investigation by FBI agents.

Assistant United States Attorney Frances Wolfe said the boy placed a 10-foot, 140-pound I-beam across the tracks. The beam was hit by a crowded train late Tuesday night.

The train dragged the I-beam several hundred yards until the beam hit the third rail and caused a short circuit, stopping the train for 20 minutes. There was no damage.

Miss Wolfe said the boy admitted the attempt to wreck the train but gave no motive. Under the Federal train-wrecking statute, the maximum penalty is 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

TONSILLITIS HAS TONSILLITIS, NAVY GOES INTO ACTION

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 26 (AP)—The Navy is willing to have Tonsillitis a second time, but without tonsils.

This came about when Tonsillitis Jackson of Ardmore, Okla., offered himself at the San Diego amphibious base a few days ago for a second six-year enlistment.

Doctors were about to pass him when they looked into his throat. They said: "Oh! Oh!" Tonsillitis had tonsillitis.

He was sent to the Balboa (Calif.) naval hospital to get the pesky things removed. Then he will return to his amphibious force tank landing ship, the U.S.S. Russell County.

Tonsillitis was given as his name by his mother, who had tonsillitis when he was born at Ardmore 22 years ago. The family after that, while generally healthy, just took to diseases for names. A brother, two years younger, was named Meningitis. There are four girls—Appendicitis, Laryngitis, Peritonitis and Jekitis.

CHILDS

Pope Has Consistently Spoken
Out for Peace Through Long
Years of Global War, StressPontiff's Pronouncements All Stress Urgency of Finding Way to End Conflict—He Early Developed Theme of United Nations.By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
Copyright, 1955, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.
VATICAN CITY, Aug. 26.

THROUGH all the alarms of the cold war, when often it seemed that another global conflict was inevitable, one voice has spoken out unflinchingly and unceasingly for peace. The pronouncements of Pope Pius XII during the 16 years of his pontificate stress, on almost every occasion, the desperate urgency of the need to find a way to peace.

When the whole story of the struggle for peace is written, the Pope's words, broadcast to the world again and again, will be shown to have weighed heavily in the balance on the side of a peace negotiated with full realization of the total destruction of modern war. From the appeals he made on the eve of the outbreak of World War II down to the present moment, he has condemned the recourse to war, insisting that those who resorted to it could not escape the burden of individual guilt for the incalculable loss and suffering their acts brought on.

In his Christmas message of 1941 he spoke of the need, when the war should end, to impose a progressive, lasting peace. He stressed the need for a peace which would be based on the production and possession of offensive weapons. Earlier, he developed the theme he has constantly repeated, and which is in essence the concept of the United Nations. This is the conviction that all men are members of "one large human family, to be guided by the principles of justice, legality, equity and charity, and by mutual pacts that are to be respected with the conviction that true patriotism consists, not in denying the rights of other nations, but in participating for the greater common good in the family of nations, in which each one has a contribution to make and a place of honor."

Refuses to Take Sides.
In 1951, when the cold war was at a peak of intensity, the Pope declared that the Church would not take sides in the struggle. His declaration was obviously in response to great pressure to take an active part in the conflict that during the previous 12 months had seemed certain to erupt into hot war. But in his Christmas message he said that those who wanted to make the Church "their ally, or the instrument of their political alliances," would "bring her down to the same level on which conflicting temporal interests are locked in struggle."

Again and again, the Pope has condemned the materialism of both the East and the West. He has warned too of the dangers of reviving nationalism and the threat to peace inherent in the "nationalistic state." As an alternative, he has urged European unity, putting special emphasis on this in 1953, when there seemed still a hope that European union would be ratified.

Responsibility of the Individual.
A passage in the long Christmas message of 1948 sums up the Pope's convictions on the responsibility of the individual. "A convinced Christian cannot confine himself within an easy and egotistical isolationism when he witnesses the needs and the misery of his brothers; when pleas for help come to him from those in economic distress; when he knows the aspirations of the working classes for more normal and just conditions of life; when he is aware of the abuses of an economic system which puts money above social obligations; when he is not ignorant of the aberrations of an intransigent nationalism which denies or spurns the common bonds linking the separate nations together and imposing on each one of them many and varied duties toward the great family of nations."

It has been not only in his pronouncements, but by diplomatic means as well, that the Pope has sought to mediate the difference between East and West, in accord with his declaration of 1944 of "war against war." Much of his career before he became Pope was spent as Vatican representative abroad, and later when he was made a cardinal, he became secretary of state to the Vatican. In those years, he proved a skillful diplomat and he has shown this same capacity for statecraft in his papacy, which has been marked by the most terrible war in history, the development of nuclear weapons, and a long period of tension in which another and more terrible conflict often seemed inevitable.

Keeps Hope Alive.

"Those close to the Pope say that he has never abandoned hope, even in the darkest hours of the cold war. While he has not commented directly on the summit meeting at Geneva, and the renewed hope of peace it has brought, the Vatican secretary of state has referred reporters to passages from the last Christmas message in which the Pope confirmed his view of war as an immoral act, resting on the consciences of those who resort to it."

In a front page editorial, just before the conference began, the Vatican City newspaper "Osservatore Romano," hailed the summit meeting as an important first step toward ending the cold war and fulfilling the desires of mankind for a rebirth of true peace. The newspaper said that the Pope had received the "innermost satisfaction" from the very fact the conference was taking place. The meeting was significant of the will for peace, according to "Osservatore Romano" and this in itself was an important step forward.

Vatican and the Atom.
The Vatican sent a delegation, to the atoms-for-peace conference at Geneva, headed by Prof. Enrico Medi, director of the Italian Geo-Physical Institute. The Vatican newspapers carried an interview with Medi, toward the end of the conference, in which the old distinctions between rich and poor would lose all meaning.

All this reflects the profound preoccupation of the Pontiff with the prevention of the catastrophe of nuclear war, and the necessity to insure access for all peoples to the world's resources. The story has often been told of how Stalin at a wartime conference, when reference was made to the views of the Vatican, asked how many divisions the Pope had. In the words the Pope has spoken, again and again across the years, there was a power of which the Russian dictator could have no comprehension whatsoever.

PEARSON

Ellender Threatened Colleague
To Get Sugar Quota Bill PassedBy DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1955.)

WASHINGTON.

SENATOR ALLEN ELLENDER of Louisiana tried to push a sugar bill through Congress revising import quotas on future sugar consumption. Although the sugar quota bill had a full year to run, Ellender was vigorous in his demand that a new sugar bill be passed. Simultaneously he purchased from the South Downs Sugar Co. four acres of choice land at the very low price of $2500 an acre.

The sugar company's president was among those testifying before Ellender for his sugar bill. It was suggested that the Senator's purchase of choice land from a company that was pushing a change in sugar quotas before Ellender's committee might be the same kind of conflict of interest which caused Harold Talbot's exit from the Cabinet.

Threatened Cooley.
I have now learned that the Senator from Louisiana did some surprising things to push the sugar bill.

First, he threatened Representative Harold Cooley, Democrat, of North Carolina, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, that if he, Cooley, did not pass the sugar quota bill, then he, Ellender, would not pass the price support bill to increase parity. In other words, Ellender was pushing a bill which helped one type of farmer, though it chiefly helped the cane and beet sugar companies, but he wanted interested in the Cooley bill which helped practically all farmers by giving them higher price supports.

On top of this, Senator Ellender took two lobbyists for the beet and cane sugar industry into an executive secret session of the Senate Finance Committee which was considering the sugar bill.

He did this on the last day of Congress when the fate of the sugar bill hung in the balance. Executive sessions of a Senate committee are attended only by Senators or their own executive assistants. The public, the press, and representatives of private companies are barred.

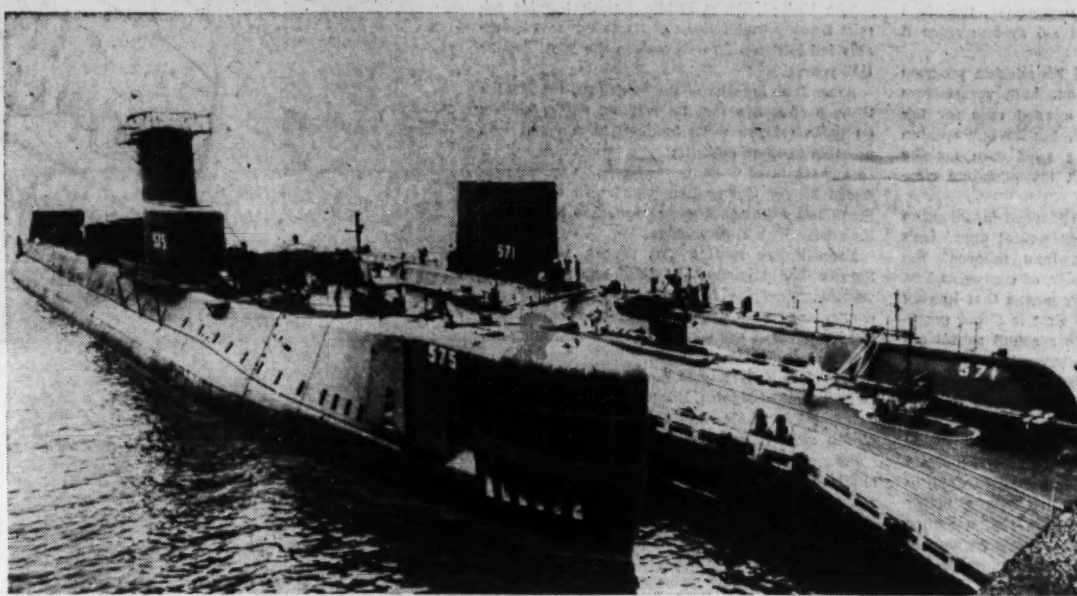

This rule is almost never broken. The last time it was broken, the Senator who broke it, Hiram Bingham, Republican of Connecticut, was officially censured by the Senate. In fact, Bingham is the only other Senator, besides Joe McCarthy, censured in the past 25 years.

Bingham took a representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association, Charles L. Eyan, into an executive session of the Senate Finance Committee when it was considering the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act.

Ellender did exactly the same

Atomic Submarines at Builder's Dock

The Navy's two atomic-power submarines, Nautilus (background) and the Seawolf, at the dock of their builder, the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp., at Groton, Conn. The Nautilus, back from a series of shakedown cruises, was being overhauled before being sent out for vibration tests which were under way today; the Seawolf is being fitted-out following its launching last month.

Eisenhower Says Aid Bolstered
Security and Reduced TensionDeclares Assistance Enabled Allies to Raise and Maintain 180 Divisions, 280 Air
Squadrons, 550 Warships.By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER said today United States aid to friendly countries had put the free world in "a position of measurably greater security" and had contributed to a "lessening of international tensions."

In his semi-annual report to Congress on the mutual security (foreign aid) program, Mr. Eisenhower said American assistance had enabled this country's friends and allies to raise and maintain more than 180 Army divisions, about 280 air squadrons and more than 550 combat ships.

"These forces, together with the strategic overseas military bases which our allies make available to us, give this nation security which it could not otherwise obtain," the report stated.

11.4 Billion in Arms.
From 1950 through last June 30 the United States shipped $11,400,000,000 worth of military equipment "to bolster the defense efforts of more than 35 friendly countries," the President said. Included were 7575 airplanes, 38,400 tanks and combat vehicles and 1079 naval vessels.

In the field of economic aid, American assistance since World War II has enabled the free world "as a whole" to achieve "a better economic position than ever before," Mr. Eisenhower declared. He noted that western Europe's gross national product had risen 35 per cent since 1948. The peoples of the free world, Mr. Eisenhower continued, "are better clothed than ever before in this century, and their governments and their boundaries are better protected from external aggression or internal subversion."

The President made it clear he believes this country gets its money's worth on foreign aid, since recipient nations put up additional money of their own, usually exceeding American contributions.

In Western Europe, "where the most powerful concentration of free world strength outside of the United States has been established" through the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Mr. Eisenhower said NATO countries were spending about $12,300,000,000 of their own money each year on armed forces.

"These outlays for defense, which are double what they were in 1950, are being made by an increasingly self-supporting the first half of this year but also gave some totals for the five-year period from 1950 to 1955. It made these other points:

1. The United States is shifting emphasis on its lending and aid from Europe, whose "recovery has made it possible virtually to terminate non-military assistance there," to the Far East, particularly Southeast Asia, and to the Middle East.

2. The Eisenhower Administration now believes the free world's economic recovery has made it possible to cease viewing foreign aid as an emergency measure and to place it on a sustained, long-range basis.

Foreign aid in the period covered by the report—Jan. 1 to June 30, 1955—was administered largely by the International Cooperation Administration, a semi-autonomous agency of the State Department, and its predecessor, the Independent Foreign Operations Administration.

American economic aid to under-developed and war-ravaged countries dates from the Marshall plan of 1948; but the mutual security program—a joint endeavor between the United States and about 70 countries—came into being in 1950. Not all countries in the program receive military aid.

In the fiscal year 1955, a total of $3,300,000,000 in mutual security funds was earmarked for direct military assistance—tanks, guns and the like—the report said. Other forms of aid, and the amounts allotted, were:

Direct forces support, involving items other than weapons needed by armed forces: $525,000,000.

Defense support, consisting of economic aid needed by nations to support their military forces: $795,000,000.

Point IV type technical cooperation, involving American know-how in such fields as industry, health, agriculture and education: $125,000,000.

Outright economic assistance: $256,000,000.

Goods and Services.

"By far the largest portion of expenditures made under the mutual security program has been for goods and services procured in the United States," Mr. Eisenhower reported.

"In fiscal year 1955, over 75 per cent of all program expenditures were paid to American suppliers."

"Added together," he said, "these measures have brought the free world as a whole to a position of measurably greater security and have made the ground firmer for further forward movement."

"Events of the last six months, particularly in Europe, but also in Asia and other parts of the free world, have given an additional demonstration that the United States investment in cooperative programs abroad is paying worthwhile dividends in stronger and more self-reliant partner nations and a lessening of international tensions."

Spirit of Real Inquiry Missing

BERLIN, Aug. 26.

AGRICULTURAL research and education in the Soviet Union have failed to keep up with advances made in the United States and other western countries.

This is one reason why some Russian farm methods are a quarter of a century behind those in America.

Iron Curtain isolationism has cost Russia dearly in the field of agricultural science. But political domination of scientists has cost even more.

The American farm delegation touring Soviet Russia visited at least 10 agricultural institutes and research stations. These visits provided information for a more thorough appraisal of Soviet research in agricultural science than has been possible for 20 years. The delegation was able to see what research institutes are doing and then to observe the application of their results on state and collective farms.

Much of the actual breeding work in the Soviet Union is quite good, especially in wheat where Russia has been a world leader. But the Lysenko explanation of how better varieties are developed is held to be incorrect by most western scientists.

They say it is the selection of better-adapted strains by nature or by man which improves breeding stocks, not alteration of heredity by environment.

Breeding Confined.
Lysenko beliefs have been a handicap to agricultural research by keeping plant and livestock breeding in Russia confined to the Lysenko type of selection. There is practically no development of inbred lines in five desirable characteristics in plants and then crossing to produce hybrid seed.

In the United States, great advances in plant varieties have been made by this inbreeding method based on the Mendelian theory of stable inheritance factors carried in genes. Hybrid corn is the most dramatic example.

Russian scientists do a lot of talking about hybrids but we could find little evidence that hybridization is being practiced. One Ministry of Agriculture official told us that 95 per cent of the corn in the U.S.S.R. is hybrid. But we saw no evidence that "hybrids" were anything more than straight crosses of open-pollinated varieties.

Corn fields contained a mixture of short and tall stalks, ears placed from two to six feet

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Beating the Tax Collector

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This is in answer to Reader Milton W. Bierbaum's letter that the only hope of full financing for the state school foundation program lies in the 2-cent cigarette tax. Before saddling ourselves with a cigarette tax, get the tax dodgers first.

I have worked on a citizens' advisory committee to the school board in C-6 Jefferson county for the past two years and it has been an amazing revelation on easy ways to beat the tax collector.

1. Anyone can buy a lot in Jefferson county and put it on the tax books for a $200 valuation. Since we are a third-class county no building permits are required and, sometime later, you can build your own home or have it built and never report this improvement to the assessor. So you ride the other taxpayers' backs until you are caught, secure in the knowledge that nothing will ever be done to collect the back taxes.

2. Our school board, under authority from the assessor, sets the valuation on our property. At the yearly meeting of the County Equalization Board in Hillsboro, the smart tax dodger tells a hard luck story and gets his taxes cut. If it is against the law to fail to make a report on major improvements to a vacant lot and if it is against the law to make false statements to an equalization board, why is nothing done about it?

3. In Jefferson county you get a tax bill for personal property which is not itemized in any way. Why is the collector not required to give a list similar to the one in St. Louis which lists the make and year of the automobile? Our system practically invites you to list your household furniture and any old make of car for the tax record, because the State License Bureau will accept any kind of personal tax receipt. This system works even better if you own more than one car or truck.

In the first year's work of the advisory committee we put $105,000 of assessed real estate valuation on the tax books. This year's returns have not been completed.

Personally, I am sick of paying the tax dodger's share of the load. I will vote against any increase in my share as long as nothing is done about the free riders. Vote No on Oct. 4. WALTER W. BATTEFIELD, Imperial, Mo.

As to a Business Man

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In answer to Reader Charles Bates of Webster Groves who evidently thinks it is great to have business men in government, let me say this: The Republicans got a man who has never been an official of a large firm, never been in business for himself and never voted until elected President. And what has he accomplished?

FERGUSON DEMOCRAT.

Where Delinquency Starts

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I was delighted to read Drew Pearson's article, "Truman Tells Kefauver how to curb Juvenile Delinquency."

I have read many reports and have heard many discussions on how to curb "juvenile delinquency" and I believe that the letter sent to Senator Kefauver by former President Truman comes closer to the truth than anything that I have read.

One paragraph which stands out to me more than anything else is, "I do not believe in baby sitting or sending children to boarding schools, just because the parents are too lazy to look after them." Children nowadays have too many gadgets to fool with and not enough chores.

I always believe that you cannot do much with a child once he becomes a delinquent. The only way to curb delinquency is to start at the home and teach the parents. It has been said that there are no delinquent children, but there are a lot of delinquent parents.

ANTHONY CANZONERI,

Member, Board of Children's Guardians.

Ignoring the Handicapped

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It seems as if a lot of industrial organizations here in St. Louis and surrounding areas are guilty of harboring a prejudice against hiring the handicapped despite the nationwide publicity given to their efforts to advance the cause of humanity.

All this sounds swell until you ask them for a job. A physically-handicapped person is put at the bottom of the list of applicants regardless of how much better he can do the job.

JAMES E. BUCKMAN,

East St. Louis.

After the Damage Is Done

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

When are our law-enforcement agencies going to crack down on the racing on our city streets of these teen-agers in their hot rods, flagrantly violating all traffic laws?

Another innocent person killed at Murdoch and Sulphur avenue, and the same old story of charges AFTER the damage is done.

After observing these youngsters in their souped-up cars at almost all the hamburger drive-ins with liquor bottles sticking out of their pockets, racing around at high speeds, right before the eyes of our law enforcement officers—why, I ask, is this not stopped BEFORE they cause damage and take innocent lives? R.J.J.

Poor Case for a Tax

Missouri voters will decide two referendum propositions at the special election Oct. 4. Referendum 1 proposes a state cigarette tax of two cents per package. Referendum 2 proposes a new "Foundation Program" of state aid for public schools, a systematic and in many ways laudable program which represents the first basic change in the school aid system since it was inaugurated in 1931.

Supporters of the school Foundation program are urging voters to approve both referendum propositions. They have a good case for the approval of Referendum 2, but in our opinion they have not yet made a good case for the approval of Referendum 1, the proposed cigarette tax.

Basically, the arguments advanced for adoption of the cigarette tax are sentimental ones. Isn't education more important than tobacco? the voters are asked. The answer, of course, is Yes. But it doesn't follow by any means that levying a state cigarette tax at this time is either necessary or desirable to finance a sound school aid program. If the school lobby wants to persuade Missourians to adopt a cigarette tax, it will have to present much stronger reasons than this appeal to emotion.

It is quite conceivable that Missouri voters might some day justifiably decide that a cigarette tax was a proper way to help pay for aid to schools, or that a cigarette tax was a better expedient for that purpose than, say, a higher sales tax. But there are some strong arguments against the present cigarette tax proposal in the present circumstances.

One such argument is that the present proposal was apparently hastily drawn up without adequate study, and contains serious weaknesses.

The measure does not provide adequate penalties for either the evasion of the tax or the counterfeiting of tax stamps, according to spokesmen for tobacco distributors. If true, this would mean that a premium would be placed on evasion of the tax, and that honest dealers and consumers would carry a burden which the unscrupulous could evade.

A second argument is that the need for revenue from a new state tax has not been clearly and unmistakably shown.

The recent Legislature increased from 33 to 37 per cent the share of general state revenue set aside for aid to schools. Campaigns are now under way to tighten up collections on both the state sales tax and the state income tax. The State Tax Commission is also in process of equalizing county property tax valuations, which eventually may result in increased local contribution to school support in some cases.

For all of these reasons, it is possible that adequate state school aid—which has been substantially increased in recent years—can be provided from existing sources of revenue. The possibility is strong enough, in any case, to suggest that a trial run would be appropriate before imposing a new tax. If experience showed that the broad objectives of the school Foundation plan could not be obtained without new sources of revenue, then the state could act deliberately in the light of that experience.

Such are two of the principal arguments against approving a cigarette tax at this time. Unless they are answered with arguments of equal weight, many Missourians are likely to vote No on the cigarette tax and Yes on the school Foundation plan Oct. 4.

In the Path of Peron

The Colombian Government of President Gustavo Rojas Pinilla has assumed control over the price and distribution of newspaper. Two weeks ago the Government imposed censorship on all newspapers in the nation because they had criticized handling of an anti-guerrilla campaign against political opponents. And the Government also closed one of the principal Bogota newspapers, El Tiempo, because it refused to print a dictated retraction on its front page every day for 30 days.

Nothing now is left of a once-free press in Colombia, a once-democratic nation. And of all the blows the latest—control of the paper supply—is the most generally severe. For this was the very same technique used by the Peron dictatorship in Argentina to control press criticism; even before Peron took over that great South American newspaper, La Prensa.

How much farther can its government drag Colombia down the totalitarian path of Peronism?

Japan's Empty Hands

The State Department will have one of its more difficult postwar visitors in Japanese Foreign Minister Manoru Shigemitsu, now in the United States and on his way to Washington. Indeed, he was given a strong hint to stay at home, but on second thought was told to come on—before the Department got busy with the October foreign ministers conference.

The trouble is that the present Japanese government, like the one which preceded it, is not sure about what it can do. The visit will gain face for it, and Shigemitsu may get assurance about the handful of Japanese prisoners still held by the United States. But these are the trimmings around such big issues as Japanese rearmament. Or increased trade with the West as well as with Red China. Or the reduction of the American occupation force despite a spreading and disturbing anti-Americanism.

Strong leadership in Tokyo would help. But there is no such thing. The physical violence in the Diet less than a month ago shows how divided the Japanese are. For all practical purposes, there are two conservative parties, two socialist parties and even two Communist factions. Military men and industrialists also are sharply divided. And the people are apathetic and indifferent. There are few, if any, signs of their once sacrificial patriotism.

Yet with less territory than before the war, Japan's population is near 90,000,000—the figure set by prewar leaders as the "explosion point" at which the nation would have to fight for space and supplies. Now there is opposition to defense, let alone aggression. Even though Red China has budgeted 24 per cent of its income for arms, Finance Minister Hisato Ichimida declares Japan can afford no more than 3 per cent.

This may be as political as the anti-American statements made by politicians to placate voters. But the hard fact is that Premier Hatayama's government has made no more progress toward rearmament than to have the Diet agree to a committee to study constitutional changes in that direction.

Thus the Foreign Minister is bringing few inducements for trade concessions or any other kind of help. Yet the time is gone when the United States could impose almost anything on the Japanese. It would be courting trouble to do other than to let the Japanese make their own decisions.

True, we need this bastion in the Orient. But on its side, Japan is hardly independent of the West. A mutually advantageous relationship should henceforth be based on co-operation rather than conquest. This calls for stronger leadership and a less passive attitude in Japan. And it is hard to believe that a nation so dynamic in the last century will not recover its old poise.

The Polio Story

The United States Public Health Service admits frankly that failure of its safety tests probably led to the polio outbreak in the West earlier this year.

After four months of investigation, the Health Service concedes that its original safety checks on polio vaccine were inadequate. Thus it was possible in some still unknown way for live virus to appear in at least three lots of vaccine produced by the Cutter Laboratories in California. Some 169 polio cases were connected directly or indirectly with that vaccine.

Even before issuing this report, the Health Service had improved its final safety tests for vaccine. Thus the federal agency not only has exonerated the Cutter firm of any culpability but has cleared the way for a safer and more inclusive inoculation program.

The Cutter affair was the excuse used by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to suspend the whole vaccination program only a month after it had begun.

Former Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby announced the licensing of vaccine manufacture in a dramatic television performance. But she had left advance planning to the Polio Foundation, and still insisted that the program had to be left in the main to private initiative, though her department had already assumed principal responsibility.

Finally, after the nation's greatest expectations had been aroused, the outbreak occurred and Mrs. Hobby and her department retreated at the first sign of trouble.

So the whole program ground to a halt and its objectives were scaled down and down. Mrs. Hobby had first stated that some 30,000,000 children aged 1 to 9 would be inoculated with two shots this year. After the licensing was suspended, President Eisenhower told reporters that vaccinations could still be given to first and second graders—some 9,000,000 children.

It now seems unlikely that even that limited goal can be reached. By the middle of August, only 1,000,000 children had received two shots. Some 6,500,000 had been inoculated once. But Associated Press figures showed that the number of polio fatalities had dropped 46 per cent below last year's level. The decline in deaths was even greater in states supplying second shots.

Thus a full-scale polio inoculation program as originally announced might have saved many more lives this year. Millions of children who could have been immunized have gone unprotected.

The fault did not lie in a few batches of polio vaccine, because the Public Health Service knew months ago that only those batches were involved. The backing and filling in the polio program was the result of official timidity and weak political leadership. Scientific errors do not account for that.

Enough Delay

The County Council's continued delay with respect to the important bond issue decisions which the people expect from the councilmen is disappointing but not at all fatal—as of the moment, at least.

Assuming a Nov. 8 date for the special election on the various improvement propositions, the Council still has time to complete a review of each item to be submitted to the voters. The $55,000,000 total that has been recommended by a citizens' group is close to the legal limit of bonded indebtedness in the county. That fact alone suggests that the Council act with prudence.

If the councilmen nail down the exact size of the program at their meeting next Wednesday, as Chairman Martin believes is possible, there will be enough days ahead to comply with the legal formalities and to conduct an intensive educational campaign. The latter is especially important; people usually do not vote to tax themselves for projects they do not fully comprehend.

Let us hope that Mr. Martin's expectations are realized for a Council decision Wednesday on the size of the bond issue. That would permit the campaign for county improvements to get under way at once, and that may be none too soon.

A Helping Hand

Just as the eight flooded Northeastern states need all the help they can get for rehabilitation, the American Red Cross needs all the help it can get for immediate relief work in the area of tragedy.

President Eisenhower directed speedy governmental action by a host of federal agencies. The Army Engineers have $100,000,000 available if necessary for clearing debris and repairing damaged public property. The Labor Department offers unemployment insurance to flood victims; the Small Business Administration can make loans to business men who must now rebuild their businesses, and so on.

Federal action, however, is for the most part directed at rehabilitation and reconstruction. The major burden of providing direct relief—food and clothing and medicine and temporary shelter—for thousands upon thousands of citizens falls upon the Red Cross.

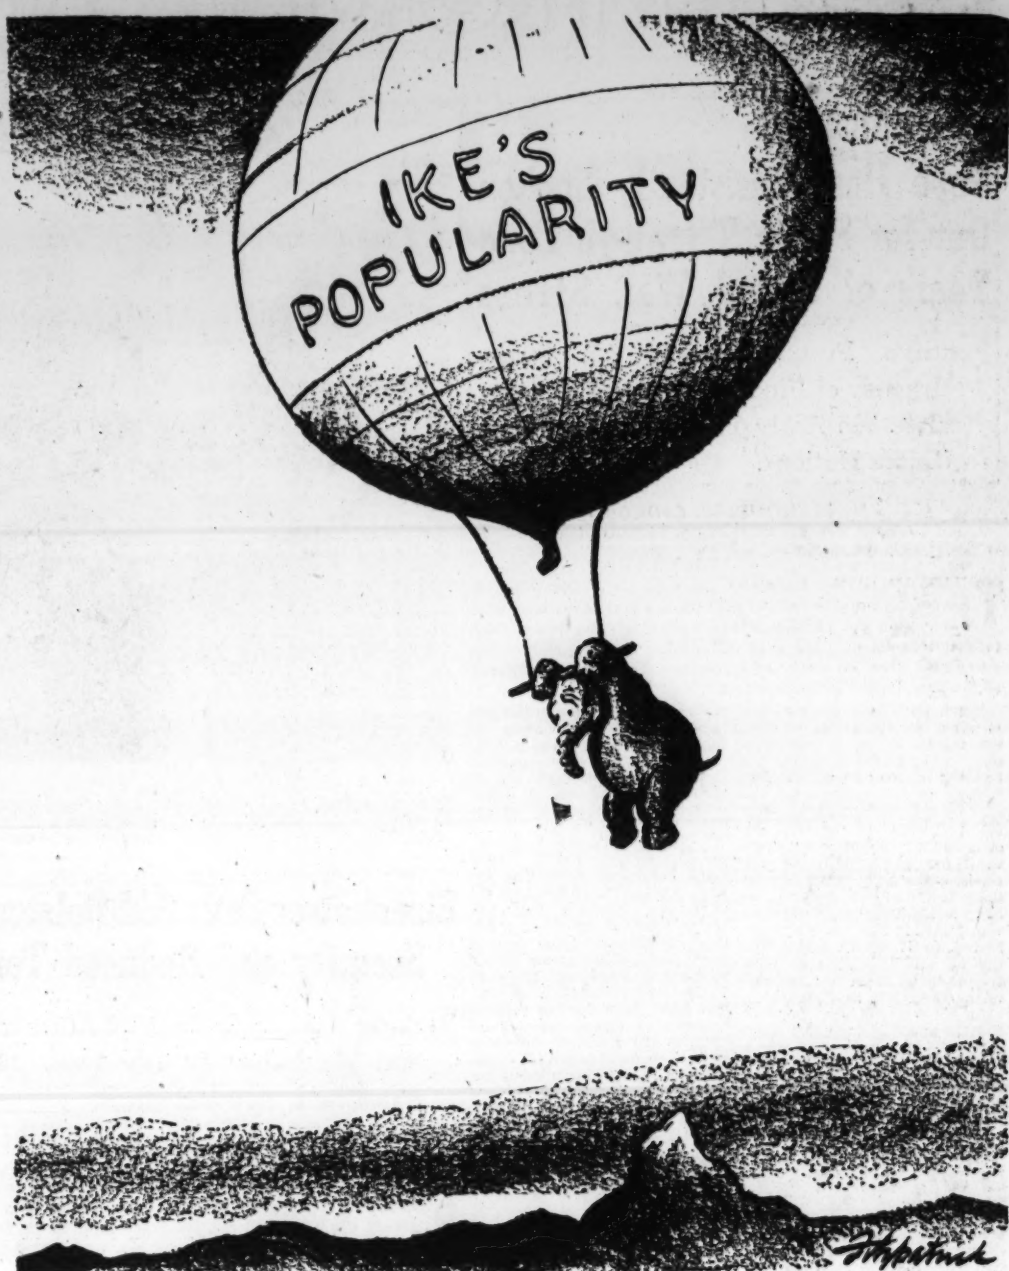

The Northeastern floods are known to have killed at least 176 persons and caused nearly two billion dollars in property damage. Faced with this tremendous emergency, the Red Cross has been compelled to raise its goal for disaster funds from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000.

Here in St. Louis, the local Red Cross chapter is not conducting an organized relief fund campaign because it will join in the United Fund campaign in the fall. But Red Cross officials nevertheless report an excellent response from corporations and individuals making unsolicited contributions.

This area, where the Missouri and Mississippi rivers meet, knows what floods mean. Our Midwestern region has received Red Cross help from other parts of the nation in times of flood. Now eight Northeastern states need help from the rest of the nation through the Red Cross. It is up to everyone who can to give a helping hand.

What It All Goes to Show

On the same day it comes out that a cashier for a New York brokerage house stole $180,000 in installments over a period of 22 years, and a welder in a Quebec gold mine took home with him bit by bit in his lunch pail during three years a pump which he reassembled in his basement and which it took six policemen and a truck two hours to carry back. Both banker and welder are now in the hands of the police. It all appears to go to show that the old-fashioned virtues of steadfast purpose, patience and persistence pay off nowadays about the same way they always did. Viz., sometimes yes and sometimes no.

Florida Supreme Court reverses Miami Red-hunters who disbar lawyer and convict 31 others for pleading right against self-incrimination; paper which praised court for ruling against conviction without proof finds support in Post-Dispatch editorial.

Two Editorials from the Fort Myers, Fla., News-Press

Presumption of Innocence

The doctrine that a man is presumed innocent until proven guilty is fundamental in this country. But it was brushed aside in a Red hunt which has been under way in Miami for some months under the leadership of State Attorney George A. Brautigam, a local McCarthy (J.G.).

The Florida Supreme Court now has reinstated this doctrine by its 4-to-1 decision reversing the widely-touted disbarment of a Miami lawyer named Leo Sheiner who pleaded the Fifth Amendment in a political investigation and refused to say whether he once was a Communist, although he did say he is not one now. This is the second time the Supreme Court has called the Miami Red-hunters to account; it ought not to be necessary again.

The first time was last winter when Brautigam hauled more than 100 citizens up before a grand jury and questioned them about their political beliefs and affiliations and then got contempt of court convictions in the local circuit court against 31 who pleaded the privilege against self-incrimination and declined to answer.

The Florida Supreme Court reversed every one of the 31 contempt convictions on the basis of United States Supreme Court precedents clearly establishing the right of witnesses in political investigations to invoke the Fifth Amendment.

Against the doctrine of a man's being presumed innocent until proven guilty, Brautigam set up his own doctrine—"In the eyes of the law, once a Communist always a Communist, unless they can prove otherwise." But in freeing the 31 citizens, the State Supreme Court said in effect that it was up to Brautigam to prove they were Communists and if he did so, then they could be jailed under the state law which makes membership in the Communist party or a Communist front illegal.

Brautigam proclaimed that this decision was "just what we are looking for. Now we can go forward and seek indictments on mere membership in the Communist conspiracy." But this was a lot of hot air.

In reversing the disbarment of Sheiner the State Supreme Court said substantially the same thing. The disbarment was ordered by Circuit Judge Vincent C. Giblin who said it was the first such case in the country and whose opinion was reprinted in pamphlet form with a laudatory foreword by Brautigam for public distribution—before the appeal had been decided.

Giblin, too, set up his own doctrine counter to the one about presumption of innocence. He said of Sheiner that proof that he was a Communist was "not essential" for disbarment. "All the proof required was that he refused to disprove the justifiable doubt which existed as to his loyalty."

But the State Supreme Court said that if he is to be disbarred, "the state should come forward with proof adequate to support the charge."

In affirming this doctrine the State Supreme Court does honor to itself and enhances its standing as a paladium of justice.

Concurring Opinion

While both of the Miami papers and some elsewhere in the state fulminate against the Florida Supreme Court's decision in the Sheiner case, the eminent St. Louis Post-Dispatch terms it just what it was called, here—a significant affirmation of the vital American principle that a man is presumed innocent until proven guilty.

The Miami News and the Herald have assailed the court in vigorous terms for this decision. They claim it is a blow to the American bar and the courts and that it seriously weakens the hand of the authorities in striving to combat subversion.

But the Post-Dispatch in an editorial makes the same points in lauding the decision that were set forth in this paper. The St. Louis paper notes that the court "did not rule on the question of what penalty, if any, might attach to past membership" in a Communist organization. "It emphasized that no disqualification may be based on mere inference or assumption."

The Post-Dispatch points out that the decision does not deny "the power to act against internal threats," but it does "deny that mere denunciation or mere silence are warrant for punitive action."

"Rights may not be abridged," says the Post-Dispatch, "without a factual demonstration of guilt. In the end, this is the only assurance of individual freedom in a free nation. And it is good to hear American courts say so."

It is good also to hear a paper with a somewhat larger readership and wider influence than either the News-Press or the Miami papers say so.

Minimum Family Budget for '55

From the St. Louis Labor Tribune

The University of California's Heller Committee, which for some years now has been making annual surveys to determine the income needed to provide a decent, healthful living for an average family of four, has come out with its 1955 budget, based on late 1954 living cost items.

Taking the San Francisco Bay area as its norm, it found that such an average family of four (husband, wife, son 13 and daughter 8) would have to have an income of $469 a month, if it was a home-owning family, or $445 a month if it rents. This would put the weekly wage or salary of the home-owning wage earner at $108 a week, or $2.95 an hour. This is about $10 a week below the norm for building tradesmen in the Greater St. Louis area where the average wage is $3.20 an hour. But it is well above the weekly earnings of many other workers, especially white collar workers and some self-employed workers, who have unusual skills and experiences that can not be easily filled through an employment agency.

The United States Bureau of Labor

Statistics, which also has formulated a 1955 budget, which it believes a family of four must have to live in frugal comfort, estimated that the breadwinner should earn an average of $52 a week. This would provide rent for a four-room apartment, but a wool cloth coat for the wife once every four years, and provide the husband with one bottle of beer a week—yes, that's right, one bottle a week. And that's the frugal, brother.

The Heller Committee budget is a bit more generous. It allows $16.69 a month for family recreation, but that includes the cost of a one-week vacation.

However the indubitable fact remains that there are millions of American families which enjoy neither the Heller or the BLS annual income. Sub-standard living is the average, the norm among families where there is only one wage or salary earner.

Sitting at Hitler's Elbow

DEVIL DIARY DOCUMENTARY RECORD OF NAZI CONSPIRACY AND AGGRESSION, by John L. Stipp. (The Antioch Press, 235 pp., $2.75.)

If you, gentle reader, have a penchant for being a strategist, here is your chance to sit at the elbow of Herr Adolf Hitler and his War Staff and observe how World War II was engineered.

John L. Stipp, associate professor of history at Knox College, has based the information contained in his book, "Devil's Diary," on the documents captured in Germany in 1945-46 which were later used as evidence in the trials of the leading Nazis at Nuernberg. From this vast material Mr. Stipp has selected those memoranda, minutes of staff meetings, monitored telephone calls, etc., dealing with the conspiratorial aspects of the two years preceding World War II.

These diverse sources (all properly identified and fully authenticated) are held together and given historical perspective by excellent and concise summaries of the events preceding and following the documents used in each chapter. This technique gives Mr. Stipp's book a contemporary flavor which makes it read as if it were all happening now instead of 17 years ago.

The curtain to Stipp's drama goes up Nov. 5, 1937, when Hitler summoned to a secret meeting Reichminister of War Blomberg, Army Commander-in-Chief von Fritsch, Grand Admiral Raeder, Luftwaffe Chief Goering, Foreign Affairs Minister von Neurath, and the Honorable Dr. Goebbels. Here Hitler announced his philosophy of "Lebensraum"—that space was never empty, hence it would have to be taken from others—as the British and Romans had done—by force.

The timetable was laid down—first Austria, then Czechoslovakia, France, Poland, England, Russia. Each chapter is devoted to the specialized diplomatic techniques used in accomplishing the absorption of a specific country—how to bluff France, assuage England, pacify Mussolini. Nextest piece of diplomatic surgery was the dismemberment and final swallowing of Czechoslovakia without firing a shot. The skill and deftness has to be admired even though the intent was infamous.

It seems incredible that voices are still heard in the land saying that if we had done this instead of that, war could have been avoided. The documents show irrefutably that no matter what the West did or did not do, Hitler was going to go after what he wanted, war or no war.

"This book," says Mr. Stipp, "was presented in the belief that contemporary Americans need a refresher course in recent history. . . . Time tends to soften and blur memories. Today 'new histories' are coming out; tomorrow there will be more. Learned men, unworriedly motivated, are making a new devil and new deceived."

Victory Over Disease

WISH I MIGHT, by Isabel Smith. (Harper and Brothers, 224 pp., $2.)

Isabel Smith was a tuberculous victim who spent 21 years of her life in bed, never giving up a struggle toward a normal life. She won. Within her autobiography is also the story of the medical progress in the treatment of the disease, from the time when rest was the only known cure, through the surgical feats in collapsing lungs, to the wonder drugs. Miss Smith, now married and keeping house, writes enthusiastically of her life, the happiness and beauty she learned to find in spite of illness, and her eventual emergence as a housewife.

WALTER LIPPMANN

America Turns Back Toward Sanity

WASHINGTON. WHEN the outgoing president of the American Bar Association is cheered as he calls for a "bloodless revolution" to be led by lawyers to restore our "ancient liberties," there is no doubt that the times have changed.

We are in the early stages of a great popular reaction against the hysteria and the demagoguery, the lawlessness and the cruel injustices which we call quite rightly the Era of McCarthyism. There are undercurrents, or projected, many investigations which are in effect reviews and reappraisals of what was done in the name of security and patriotism and anti-Communism to the ancient liberties which Americans share with other free and civilized peoples.

The great majority of the leaders of American opinion are no longer willing to stand for the theory that espionage, sabotage and subversion can be dealt with only by ignoring the Constitution, and by convicting at what is nakedly and simply lynch law.

Zealots Always Wear White.

There are, however, a minority who hold that such is the danger of Communism and such is the threat to American security that no patriot should question the methods or the results of the anti-Communist investigations and prosecutions. They hold that nothing, not even the constitutional guarantees, must interfere with the detection, the exposure, and the punishment of those who may be security risks.

And if in this process innocent men and women are tortured and ruined, these are the fortunate incidents—not to be talked about too much—in the work of saving the American republic.

These zealots consider themselves the purest and highest patriots in the land. They are in the habit of insinuating that all who do not take them at their own valuation are in some measure suspect—suspect perhaps of treason, perhaps of disloyalty, certainly of softness and blindness.

The zealots are due for a reappraisal, most particularly for their pretension that the lawlessness which they incite and defend is necessary to the security of the United States.

Ever since McCarthy was riding high, it has been as plain as the nose on his face that he did more than the whole Communist propaganda to turn the world against us, to deface the good name of America, to ruin confidence in our leadership. His goings-on fed our enemies and silenced our friends.

The Security of Lynch Law.

What was not so immediately and blatantly evident was that the application of lynch law to men suspected of being security risks threatened to become in itself a major cause of national insecurity. McCarthy carried the lawlessness he represented to its logical end when he charged the Democratic party with 20 years of treason. That was an effort to divide the American nation implacably, and to create an issue within our people which pointed in the direction of civil war.

At that extreme point, to be sure, the tide of American opinion began to turn against McCarthy. But the zealots who still adhere to McCarthyism continue to advocate and justify lawlessness. They continue to demand and to praise the subversion by congressional committee and by private vigilantes of the guarantees of the Constitution.

Were they to prevail, which happily they will not, they would leave the innocent who are injured with no lawful redress. That is the way to disorder. For when a state subverts its own laws, it opens the way to violence.

Running parallel with the reaction against McCarthyism, there is under way a re-examination of security itself. One can distinguish four principal attacks on our national security. The first is spying in order to obtain military secrets. The second is infiltration by secret agents for the purpose not only of spying but of influencing policy.

Science Is Not Secret.

The third is the organization of sabotage in case of war. The fourth is subversion by propaganda and other means of conversion in order to build up a revolutionary opposition.

It is with the first of these—the spying out of secrets—that informed opinion is changing. The Geneva Conference on Nuclear Energy has proved conclusively what scientists have long been saying—that scientific secrets do not last long because what one scientist can discover, others—since they deal with the same natural world—will discover too.

It is also plain that what was a few years ago that what you can hide temporarily from the Russians, you must hide also from your own scientific community. The net of it is that the preservation of scientific secrets is not nearly so important as it once seemed because there are so few real scientific secrets.

The real secret, we have come to realize, is not what weapons and devices the adversary possesses. It is what he intends to do with his weapons. Our "disarmament" policy is based on this new secret. It looks toward making public, making visible and unambiguous the purposes of the governments that command the military forces. The objective of the new policy is not to hide secrets but to bring about the disclosure of secrets.

Rolling Up Our Curtain.

This will have, in fact, is already beginning to have, a big effect here at home. Until recently we have regarded the Iron Curtain as some of the permanent furniture of the world, and we have felt compelled to own our own secrets with our own home-made and improvised version of an iron curtain.

Now, as it is our policy to induce and encourage the Soviet Union to roll up the Iron Curtain, we are rolling up our own iron curtain at home. We are not so worried about our secrets because we do not have so many secrets to worry about.

Why, we ask ourselves, has there been this great change in the tide of American opinion? Is it because McCarthy overplayed his hand and, having attacked the Democrats, let fly also at the Republicans? Is it because the innate decency of our people was revolted by the cruelties and the injustices?

And yet the ultimate reason for the change is, I believe, the enormous emotional relief which has come since all the great powers have acknowledged publicly that there is no alternative to peace, that they cannot contemplate war.

TV CRIME SHOWS CALLED RISK TO YOUNG

Senate Subcommittee Finds Danger in Constant Viewing by Children.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—A Senate subcommittee reports it cannot prove that television crime programs cause juvenile delinquency but says there is a "calculated risk" in constant viewing of such shows by children.

The Juvenile Delinquency subcommittee, in an interim report on its study of crime and violence on TV, urged last night that parents, the Government and TV broadcasters all take steps to "minimize the risk."

The report analyzed TV programming in 10 of the nation's major cities to show that at some late afternoon hours, as many as three crime shows are on the air simultaneously.

Potentially More Harmful. "There is reason to believe," the subcommittee said, "that television crime programs are potentially much more injurious to children and young people than motion pictures, radio or comic books."

"Attending a movie requires money and the physical effort of leaving the home, so an average child's exposure to films in the theater tends to be limited to a few hours a week."

"Comic books demand strong imaginary projections. Also, they must be sought out and purchased."

"But television, available at a flick of a knob and combining visual and audible aspects into a 'live' story, has a greater impact on its child audience."

The Senators said they had been "unable to gather proof of a direct causal relationship between the viewing of acts of crime and violence and the actual performance of criminal deeds."

Evidence by Broadcasters. The report said that TV broadcasters had produced evidence of experts who asserted TV programs did not cause juvenile delinquency.

But the subcommittee said "there is a calculated risk incurred through the repeated exposure of young boys and girls to TV crime programs, and added it believes it would be wise to minimize this risk insofar as possible."

The subcommittee's recommendations included:

1. Stricter control by the Federal Communications Commission over TV programming, including power to levy fines for violations of "certain minimal standards."

2. Information of citizens' councils to report "offensive materials" to responsible sources promptly.

3. Establishing of "collective" responsibility of station managers for television programming.

4. Extension and tightening of the industry's code. The subcommittee said the check-points of the code now are by-passed or ineffective in many instances.

Kefauver Comments. Senator Kefauver (Dem., Tennessee, subcommittee chairman, emphasized that the report was directed only to that part of TV programming "which appeared to rely too heavily on crime and violence."

"The subcommittee," he explained, "did not concern itself with the excellent children's programs produced by the networks and individual stations, nor the many outstanding public service telecasts suitable for viewers of all ages of which the industry is rightfully proud."

The cities whose TV programming was analyzed were Atlanta, Chicago, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Kansas City, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Seattle and Washington, D.C. The subcommittee also conducted public hearings in New York and Washington.

Subcommittee members are Senators Hennings (Dem., Missouri), Daniel (Dem., Texas), Langer (Rep., North Dakota), and Wiley (Rep., Wisconsin).

Youth in Acting Debut

JAMES MacARTHUR, 17 years old, going over his lines with actor EDWARD ARNOLD before making his acting debut on television program last night. He is the adopted son of playwright Charles MacArthur and actress Helen Hayes.

HELEN HAYES'S SON SCORES HIT IN DEBUT ON TV

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 26 (AP)—Helen Hayes's adopted son, 17-year-old James MacArthur, made his big-time television debut as an actor last night on CBS in "Deal a Blow," a story of juvenile delinquency, and acquitted himself admirably. His father is Charles MacArthur, playwright.

Edward Arnold, veteran of the stage, movies and TV, said: "During my many years on the stage and in movies, radio and TV, I've appeared in many gangster roles with many so-called 'tough' youngsters, so I feel quite qualified to say that he did a magnificent job and has an excellent future in the theater if he puts his mind to it. I had the pleasure of working with his mother in 'The White Sister' in 1943, so naturally got quite a kick out of working with her son tonight."

His mother coached his theatrical career. She watched him between her embraces in "Skin of Our Teeth" in her dressing room in New York. She will see the entire show by television recording.

The senior MacArthur said in New York that he was very proud of the boy, "and he didn't fluff one line, either."

Sinatra did not report for work at the "Carousell" location at Booth Bay, Maine, this week. Last night the studio announced that MacArthur had been instructed to report to the studio Monday for pre-recording sessions.

On Sept. 2 he will fly to Booth Bay for three weeks' shooting. Shirley Jones, MacArthur's co-star in "Oklahoma" will play opposite him.

Sinatra told reporters in the East that he left the location because the film is being photographed in two processes. He said he did not intend to make two pictures at once.

METHODIST BISHOP DECRIES 'LUST FOR SECURITY' IN U.S.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Aug. 26 (AP)—Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles told the national convocation of Methodist Youth at Purdue University today.

"There has come over our society what can hardly be described as a lust for security," he said. "We are afraid of Communists, or ideas, or change, or controversy, or analysis, or facts," the Methodist bishop said.

"Too many people seem to be saying by their attitude, 'I have made up my mind. Do not confuse me with facts. We want to tie things down and make everything quiet, safe and dead.'"

"The Christian faith has been an adventurous faith. It has turned old customs upside down, it has not been afraid of truth and it has preached a divine discontent. It has challenged all the might of the world with a courage rooted in God."

'SOUTH PACIFIC' TIES OWN MUNICIPAL OPERA RECORD

Attendance at the Municipal Opera production of "South Pacific" last night was 12,137, which ties the theater's attendance record set only last Saturday by another South Pacific performance.

"South Pacific" closes the opera's season Sunday night. Tickets for $1 and 50-cent seats are still on sale at the Arcade Building, Famous-Barr Southtown, at the theater ticket office in Forest Park.

MALCOLM ELLIOTT DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Deputy Civil Defense Director Here, Retired Army Colonel.

Malcolm Elliott, a retired colonel in the Army Corps of Engineers and St. Louis Civil Defense deputy director, died last Wednesday night in Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, associates here learned today.

He had been in ill health for some time but the exact cause of death was not immediately learned. He and Mrs. Elliott had been vacationing on the West Coast when he was taken to the Army hospital.

After service here from 1935 through 1945 as division engineer for the Upper Mississippi Valley Division of the Corps of Engineers, Col. Elliott retired, serving the city thereafter in various capacities. He is the author of the Elliott Expressway Plan which was adopted, with some modifications, by the Missouri Highway Department for the construction of three radial expressways in the metropolitan area.

After his appointment to the city's Civil Defense office, he employed the knowledge gained in the expressway study to devise a plan for evacuating the city in the event of an atomic bomb attack.

Born in Vallejo, Calif., 74 years ago, he attended Stanford University. He left the university in 1898 to help quell the Philippine insurrection and remained in the islands as an employee of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. From 1906 to 1910 he was principal hydrographer in the construction of the Panama Canal.

After service in France and Germany in World War I, Col. Elliott joined the Corps of Engineers as a civilian employee and later as a commissioned officer. Important assignments included work on the Muscle Shoals dam in Alabama, on the Ohio river, on the lower Mississippi river, in Alaska and on the upper Mississippi.

While president of the Alaska Road Commission, 1927 to 1932, he helped in the early planning of the Alcan Highway. He received the Legion of Merit for his work in St. Louis in 1940 to 1942, when, in addition to the duties of division engineer, he supervised more than $400,000,000 in construction work. The projects included the Weldon Spring Ordnance Plant, the Small Arms Ammunition Plant in St. Louis and the Army Engineers Depot at Granite City in 1946. He was given the Distinguished Service Medal for his services to the Engineer Corps.

Survivors include his wife, Elsie, and three daughters. Funeral arrangements have not been completed. The Elliott home is at 230 North Newstead avenue.

DOCTOR FEE HIKES UNDER WELFARE PLANS CHARGED

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Discusses Special Disputes Copyright 1955.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—A committee of the AFL Plumbers and Steamfitters Union has reported "a definite tendency of doctors to raise their fees wherever (insurance) benefits are payable, so as to create the same charge to the patient as before."

The committee, made up of local union officials, was appointed in 1953 by Martin Durkin, president of the union and former Secretary of Labor.

The committee described the fee-hiking practice of some doctors as "indefensible," and recommended that local officers and trustees of union benefit plans try to reach some agreement with local medical associations on a "reasonable schedule of fees."

The report also disclosed that employers in the plumbing and pipe-fitting industry are now making payroll contributions into 106 local union health and welfare funds at the rate of about $20,000,000 a year.

CHARLES BONFILS, BROTHER OF DENVER PUBLISHER, DIES

DENVER, Aug. 26 (AP)—Charles A. Bonfils, a brother of the late Frederick G. Bonfils, co-founder of the Denver Post, died Wednesday night after a long illness. He at one time was assistant publisher of the Post.

Born in Troy, Mo., Bonfils won an engineering degree at the University of Missouri and later worked for the Mississippi River Commission on a survey of deltas near New Orleans.

When F. G. Bonfils and Harry H. Tammen started the Post, Charles came here to work on the paper. He later became managing editor of the Kansas City Post after Bonfils and Tammen bought it.

THIRD LUTHERAN PASTOR QUESTIONED

Appears Before Group Which Charged Two Other Ministers With Heresy.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 26 (AP)—An investigation committee of the Northwest Synod of the United Lutheran Church, which brought heresy charges against two pastors—questioned a third minister yesterday.

The Rev. Victor K. Wrigley met with the committee for three hours behind closed doors. Pastor Wrigley has been head of the congregation at Gethsemane Lutheran Church at Brookfield, in neighboring Waukesha county, for seven years.

No charges were filed against him by the committee and synod president Dr. Paul Bishop of Minneapolis, said another meeting with him probably would be held later.

The synod's second heresy trial is to open here next Tuesday. The Rev. John Gerberding of Menomonee Falls, also, in Waukesha county, is charged with eight counts of doctrinal deviation. He has denied them.

A synod trial board last month found the Rev. George P. Crist of Durham, another small Waukesha county community, guilty of nine of 14 charges of deviating from official church doctrine. The board recommended he be suspended from his pulpit and the recommendation was followed by the synod executive committee. The suspension was approved Wednesday.

Wounded by Pastor Crist's congregation. He denied all 14 of the charges.

Pastor Crist said yesterday he was considering an appeal to the synod of the trial board's findings. He said he had been offered the pulpit of the Unitarian church at Mukwonago, also in Waukesha county, but said he would not take it.

"I'm still goofy enough to think that I'm a Lutheran," he said.

No Interference Here?

GRANNY HAMNER (right) made sure RED SCHOEN-DIENST wouldn't get off his intended throw to first base in the eighth inning of the first game at Philadelphia, yesterday. Hammer was forced at second on Del Ennis's grounder to Alex Grammas. Hammer's shoulder block prevented a possible double play.

Phils Sizzle Against Cards on Field But Are No Better at Gate

Redbirds Are Dealt Twi-Night Drubbing

By Bob Broeg

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26—If the National League only had possessed a little more foresight, there would have been a split season this year or Shaughnessy playoffs. And in either case the box office and probably the Philadelphia Phillies, not the Brooklyn Dodgers, would be the winners.

There are furrows of frowns around the ancient circuit now on two counts. For one thing, proud National Leagueers, certain they've got the power loop and the better one, too, are fearful that the Dodgers have lost their momentum and with an injured pitching staff are likely to drop the World Series.

For another thing, more important to the clubs than prestige, league attendance was hurt by that rapid Brooklyn break-away, which left no club waiting more motionless at the gate for Katy than the Phillies, a halting and inept team that lost 13 straight before the race was two weeks old.

Since the All-Star game, however, Philadelphia has been the winningest club in the N.L. with 29 triumphs in its last 43 starts, including the fabulous record of 21 victories in the most recent 23 contests at Connie Mack stadium, where last night a standing-room crowd of 38,545 saw freshman Manager Mayo Smith's club slug the Cardinals in a doubleheader, 11 to 9 and 8 to 3.

Since the halfway point of their schedules, the Phillies have won 32 games, lost only 18 while the league-leading Dodgers have won 25, lost 22.

Del Ennis Honored.

Despite the magnificent turnout on the occasion of a night honoring native son Del Ennis, a 10-season thumper who drove in four runs with four hits before his left hand was struck by a pitch in the second game, General Manager Roy Hamey was glum.

"Sure, it's fine, a real tribute to a good kid and we've done pretty well at the gate, better than a year ago," said Hamey. "We're hot and might even finish second if we can keep it up, but the race has been run."

So the Phillies figure to do no better at the gate, if as well as the tag-along Cardinals, meaning about $50,000, and consequently they would have been most interested indeed if there had been two half-season races or playoffs like those of the minor leagues.

They're sizzling, no doubt of it. No one in his right mind would make any kind of claim for the Cardinals these days, but still no team has triumphed them as regularly as have the Phillies. They've romped over the Redbirds in nine of 10 games since the All-Star interlude. Philadelphia has a two-to-one edge on the season's play, 12 to 6.

Thus, the Phillies, short-changed by their own slow start and Brooklyn's rapid getaway, won't be champions of the National League, but they sure own title to the Cardinals.

Nine Runs Off Roberts.

Why, man, the Phils are so sharp right now they even won a game for Robin Roberts when he allowed all of nine runs, overcoming deficits of 4-0 and 9-3 to enable their red-faced ace to post his twenty-first triumph and his fifth without defeat against St. Louis.

The Cardinals wallowed five hits for four runs in the first inning of the twilight game against Roberts, then came back in the fourth with three more blows when the famous control pitcher walked two men. Wally Moon made it a rousing five-run frame with a grand-slam homer, his sixteenth of the season and the second of his career with the bases loaded.

But Manager Harry Walker, as a result of Larry Jackson ailing, decided to take a look at Johnny Mackinson as a starter. It must have been a shocking experience. Between 6 o'clock, the time the first game started,

Film Cowboy Allen Gettel Packs Light Guns in Debut as Redbird

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26—Even if he doesn't turn out to be much of a major league pitcher—that's getting to be an awful lot to ask—towering Allen Gettel is likely to give the Cardinals their first touch of Hollywood since Ernie Osratti.

The swarthy, little Orsatti of the slick-backed patent-leather colored Auburn convertible, was an acrobatic outfielder and first baseman of the late 1920s and through the mid-30s, a dashing member of the Gas House Gang and a celebrity for another reason. In the off-season he doubled for Buster Keaton, movie comedian.

Gettel, grayling at the temples, and good-looking in a rugged sort of way, has a filmland background and is scheduled to return to Hollywood some time around Jan. 1. He recently played the part of a villainous cowboy in his first TV horse opera—"killed a couple of homies," he explained with a wink—and has contract for two more hourlong shoot-'em-ups.

The foot 3-inch, 200-pound Norfolk (Va.) Dutchman, a pitching professional since 1936, explained that he had raised horses for a time and finally got rid of his last two a year ago, but not before a Hollywood talent scout saw him ride a palomino into a Pacific Coast League ball park as a stunt.

"He liked what he saw and I got a movie contract, but I still consider myself a ball player first," said the 26-year-old Gettel, accompanied here by his wife and three young children en route back to Virginia and a new school year.

Birds Must Be About Philled Up

Sixty-One at Houston. USTON, Tex., Aug. 25 (UP)—Sixty-one candidates for the University of Houston football team were to report to Bill Meek, the school's new head coach, today. Serious practice will begin Monday.

Ennis Hits Gift Jackpot.

Del Ennis's gifts from the fans included a hard-top Cadillac convertible, a deep freeze, console television set and air-conditioner unit, all of which were presented by Senator James H. Duff of Pennsylvania. Ennis's teammates gave him a $500 diamond ring. Philadelphia writers and broadcasters awarded him a plaque and the ball club gold-plated the bat and ball with which he recently achieved his 1000th R.B.I.

Philadelphians Baseball Writers Have More Pet Projects Than Luther Billis.

The latest is a batting title for Richie Ashburn, as eight years ago it was for Harry Walker. And in their devotion to the project's success, the baseball writers have Ashburn now, like the grounder Wally Moon palpably fumbled TWICE last night, insult the baseball fan's intelligence and threaten the integrity of official scorers.—B.B.

Vic Wertz Stricken With Polio, Lost to Indians Rest of Season

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 28 (UP)—Vic Wertz of the Cleveland Indians baseball club has suffered an attack of infantile paralysis, the team physician announced today.

Wertz, who played both the infield and outfield for the Indians, became ill Wednesday but he played against the Boston Red Sox.

Last night, Wertz developed a high fever, and some stiffness of the neck. He was kept out of the lineup.

This morning Dr. Don Kelly, the team physician, ordered Wertz to the Lakeside Hospital where his condition was diagnosed as polio.

"There is no sign of paralysis," Kelly said, "but the condition is polio."

It was believed that Wertz would be out for the remainder of the season. His loss would hurt the tribe, now in the midst of the hot American League pennant race. He was a major factor in the team's winning the American League pennant last year.

A team spokesman said that the entire Indians team would not be put under observation. "It will have the other effect on the rest of the team," the official said.

Wertz, who batted .500 for Cleveland in the 1954 world series against the New York Giants, has been sidelined at least three times previously this season by various injuries. His batting average is only .253, but he has driven in 55 runs and hit 14 home runs in 74 games to date.

Yanks Win 13 of Last 16, Pull Away From Rivals

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26 (UP)—Casey Stengel's big gamble paid off—and so today the New York Yankees were rolling at an 813 pace which threatened to leave their three rival contenders in the American League race rolling in the dust.

Stengel gambled and won last night when he tossed rookie pitcher Larry (Rip) Coleman against Early Wynn in the pressure-steeped opener of a three-game series with the Indians. Coleman, recalled recently from Denver, was making only his second start in the majors but he out-pitched Wynn and received credit for the Yankees' 5-2 triumph.

As a result, the Yankees scored their thirteenth triumph in 16 games and dropped the second-place Chicago White Sox one and a half games off the pace. The third-place Indians fell two games behind and the fourth-place Boston Red Sox now are five full games out of first place.

Moreover, the Yankees' torrid pace of the last 16 days seem to be telling on all their rivals. During the same period the White Sox are 12-5, the Indians 11-5 and the Red Sox 9-7. The White Sox suffered their third loss in five games with seventh and eighth-place teams yesterday when they bowed to Bob Porterfield and the Washington Senators, 6-1. The Red Sox, meanwhile, had to rebound from a 6-1 loss to gain a split ## the American League's 1955 high.

Jackie Jensen became the first American League to drive in 100 runs this year when he hit a two-run homer and two-run double to lead the Red Sox's 10-hit attack in their nightcap. The Tigers, however, had routed Willard Nixon in the opener to win handily behind the eight-hit pitching of Ned Garver, who posted his eleventh triumph.

Art Ceccarelli pitched four-hit ball behind a 13-hit attack as the Kansas City Athletics routed the Baltimore Orioles, 9-2, in the other American League game. Vic Power had three hits for Kansas City.

In the National League, the slumping first-place Brooklyn Dodgers lost their first doubleheader of the campaign when the Cincinnati Redlegs scored 8-5 and 6-5 triumphs. The Dodgers still lead by 11 games but have lost seven of their last 10 games and 11 of their last 17.

Warren Spahn won his thirteenth game as the Milwaukee Braves beat the New York Giants, 3-2, and Elroy Face out-pitched Paul Minner to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 verdict over the Chicago Cubs in their National League games.

Stronger Cardinals and Redskins to Tighten Up Race, Says Lions' Coach

By Robert Morrison

Buddy Parker, whose Detroit Lions in his four seasons as coach have "batted" .750 in league games and .875 in exhibitions, had reason to be unconcerned today about the present .500 state of things.

In fact he was anticipating numerous pleasant developments as he prepared to send his club through workouts at Washington University today and tomorrow.

The pro football Lions arrived here yesterday for their pre-season benefit game with the Chicago Cardinals Sunday night at 8:30 at Public Schools Stadium. They flew in from Mobile where they beat the Washington Redskins to make their record one and one for two exhibition games.

Their defeat by the Philadelphia Eagles was by a 14-8 score. Their victory over Washington was surprisingly close, 17-14. But Parker, the 41-year-old coach who has directed the Lions to two National Football League championships and three Western Division titles before the Cleveland Browns upset the applicant, had many things to be happy about.

In the first place Bobby Layne's old arm injury that sent him back to Detroit for treatment in mid-week is now regarded as not serious.

Happy With Gilmer. "He won't be here for this game but the doctors think he'll be all right and will be ready for the regular season," Parker said. It is an old burstitis condition, he explained.

Layne, of course, is a big wheel, a seven-year man in the league who has thrown passes for 103 touchdowns, a number that is topped in the career records only by Sammy Baugh (187) and Sid Luckman (139).

In addition to this cheerful development, Parker had just observed Harry Gilmer's excellent quarterbacking job as a substitute for Layne in the game with the Redskins.

"We were very happy with Gilmer," Parker said. "It was the first time in three years that he had played quarterback and he handled the team exceptionally well." The veteran Gilmer was a defensive player with Washington before the Lions obtained him in a trade for this season.

"Actually," Parker continued, "we've just been taking things slow and easy. We were the last team to go into training on Aug. 1. Washington started July 12 and the Eagles opened July 16.

Veteran Backs Ready. "So, for the first game we were not ready, especially against a good club like the Eagles, and even at that we could have won the game if it hadn't been for a misjudged touchdown pass and a fumble close to the goal line.

"We've been working a lot with new men and this game with the Cards will be the first time we will have had our veteran secondary together. We've just got part of our offense in at this point, and we're progressing satisfactorily. In two

Football Lions in Workout at W. U.

THE Detroit Lions pro football team, scheduled for a workout about 4 p.m. today at Washington University's Francis Field, also will work out there at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow afternoon, Coach Buddy Parker said.

Interested coaches or players are welcome to attend, the Lions coach said, but there will be no formal clinic-type demonstrations as previously indicated in announcements here.

The Chicago Cardinals are scheduled to arrive in St. Louis tomorrow for their Lake Forest training camp. The Lions' headquarters is at the Chase Hotel, the Cardinals' at the Park Plaza.

or three weeks we'll be a good football team."

The Lions topped the Western Division last year with a 9-3-1 record, averaging 28.2 points per game to the opposition 18.9. Their current exhibition scoring average is 12.5, as opposed to 14 points made in each game by the Eagles and Redskins.

"Defense is always ahead of the offense this time of the year," Parker remarked. There haven't been many big scores yet.

Better Balanced League.

"It looks as if it will be the best balanced league in a long time. I can't recall that it happened, as it did recently, that all the western division clubs were beaten by the eastern division teams. That's a 1000 to 1 shot usually.

"And, incidentally, Washington looks like it has the best team in many years."

Parker also noted that his team's upcoming foe, the Cardinals, were getting attention with their backfield.

"Our scout (Bob Nussbaumer) says the Cards have a better backfield than the Forty-Niners and everybody has regarded the Forty-Niners as the best," the Lions coach said.

The famed Doak Walker, now going into his sixth pro season, will be the big figure in the Lions' offensive backfield here, of course. Gilmer will be subbing as before for Layne at quarterback and second-year man Bill Stits (ex-U.C.L.A.) or Dave Middleton, rookie from Auburn, will be at right half, Parker said.

Leon Hart in Action.

At fullback, veteran Lew Carpenter is a doubtful player, however, because of a bruised shoulder. If Carpenter doesn't play, 10-year veteran Bob Hoernschmeyer will move up to the No. 1 offensive spot.

But likely to catch the eye of spectators at the high school stadium Sunday night will be the noted Leon Hart at defensive end.

"He really looked great against the Redskins," said Parker. "He gave Guglielmi fits."

Ralph Guglielmi (ex-Notre Dame) is, of course, the quarterback who gave the Cleveland Browns fits in the all-star game recently at Chicago.

Rees Winner In Disputed Shooting Event

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 26 (AP)

—F. B. Rees of Heyworth, Ill., today was declared the winner of yesterday's preliminary handicap at the Fifty-sixth Grand American Trapshoot after the executive committee of the A.T.A. cleared up a controversy regarding the handicap yardage from which he fired.

Rees defeated Weldon Hopman, 23-year-old Buckley, Ill., farmer 25 to 20 in a shootoff after the pair defeated a field of 1759 by scoring 98x100. Records in the A.T.A. Handicap office showed Rees, who fired from 20 yards, should have been at 21 yards following a 95 he was reported to have scored in the Illinois State Shoot, June 10. Had the records been upheld, Rees would have been disqualified, lost several thousand dollars in prize money, deprived of the title and disqualified for a year.

However, the executive committee's investigation following an explanation by Rees showed the Illinois shooter actually fired a 92 in the Illinois event and that he fired yesterday from his correct yardage.

Kayo for Moore, Maxim Predicts

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Aug. 26 (UP)—Joey Maxim, former world light-heavyweight champion, predicted that Archie Moore will knock out Rocky Marciano in their heavyweight title match Sept. 20, because "he's a far superior boxer."

"Archie Moore can call his shot against Marciano," Maxim told a Cleveland sports writer, who promptly relayed the remarks to the light-heavyweight king here in training.

"I'm picking Moore to win the fight," continued Maxim, who lost the 175-pound crown to Archie in December of 1952 at St. Louis. "Archie is by far the superior boxer. Marciano is a 'nothing' boxer. Rocky is so easy to hit, I'm sure Archie will win by a knockout, in spite of Marciano's ability to absorb punishment."

"Moore hits terrifically hard with one punch, and I think he can call his shot," Maxim reiterated.

FARM RESEARCH IN RUSSIA LACKS SPIRIT OF INQUIRY.

above the ground, some flint ears, some rubbings, and so on.

It would be a mistake to underestimate Soviet science. In many fields it undoubtedly is very good. The Geneva conference was further confirmation of the excellence of Russian atomic physics. Probably some Soviet biological scientists are equally advanced but only afraid to speak their minds.

Held Back by Isolation.

Agricultural research undoubtedly has been held back by adherence to officially approved theory and isolation from the outside world.

Another example: It is official doctrine now in the Soviet Union to cultivate corn at least four times a year. Party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev himself said so. As a result corn is planted in check rows and cultivated twice or more each year throughout Russia.

This doctrine is based on the belief that capillary action in the soil results in the loss of moisture so cultivation was needed mainly to control weeds which sap moisture and fertility. Most Iowa farmers now cultivate only once enough to keep weeds down. In general, years chemical treatment has been substituted for at least one cultivation.

Dr. Reed argued with several of the Russian officials on this point. But it soon became apparent that they would not differ with him from Moscow.

No Spirit of Inquiry.

Dr. D. Gale Johnson, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, and I talked with some farm economists at Khar'kov Agricultural Institute. We found the same sterile adherence to dogma and no spirit of inquiry and capitalism.

These economists were interested only in helping to prove the "laws of development of Socialist enterprise."

It was clear that studies which might raise questions about economic organizations as laid down by Lenin and Stalin would never be contemplated.

The Russians seem anxious now to exchange ideas with the outside world. The Government is encouraging more delegations to visit the Soviet Union and wants Soviet delegations to visit other countries, especially America. The rigid totalitarianism and isolationism of Stalin are being relaxed.

If this continues it could result in a gradual change in the Soviet system and in advances in agricultural and other sciences. But it is far too early to predict any such change. On the basis of Soviet history it would be far safer to predict that the rulers of Russia will become alarmed and clamp down long before real freedom gets a foothold.

ELLENOR TOOK DRASTIC ACTION FOR SUGAR BILL

thing, except that he took two lobbyists into the secret session instead of one. They were Robert Shields, of the American Sugar Beet Industry Policy Committee, and Josiah Ferris, of the American Sugar Cane League.

Representatives of the Cuban sugar industry, the Mexican and Peruvian sugar industries, wanted to appear before the Senate Finance Committee, but Ellender barred them and admitted only the two lobbyists for whom he introduced the bill.

TRUMAN PREDICTS PEACE IN TIME

Expresses Optimism in Talk
Far East.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 26 (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman said yesterday he believes peace eventually will come to the entire world, but he said he couldn't forecast when. His statement was made in reply to a question put to him at his office by a group of seven newspaper men from the Far East, Truman said.

"I think so. I certainly hope so. I've always been an optimist. I think that peace will come to the entire world."

In reply to a question whether he thinks peace will come in the foreseeable future, he replied: "Liberty is a continuing fight. We've got to keep after it. Each generation can add to it."

Chang Kl Young, South Korea, then told the former President his name would live forever in the memory of Koreans. "I did what I thought was right," Truman replied. "A man in a responsible position has to make decisions, which I did."

Asked if he would be the "brains behind the Democratic campaign," Truman said: "Well, it will be terribly lacking in brains if I am. I will just lend my support to the campaign as an individual."

Besides Chang, the men in the party were: Osmundo Abad Santos, the Philippines; Tran Van Hoan, Viet Nam; Nair Khemayodin, Thailand; Peter Hill, Singapore; Aladin Ismail, Hong Kong, and Wang Chi Hsu, Formosa.

NIXON'S MOSCOW TRIP MAY HINGE ON BIG 4 MEETING

MOSCOW, Aug. 26 (AP)—Representative Hillings (Rep.),

California, said yesterday Vice President Richard M. Nixon may visit Moscow this fall. "I would not be surprised if Vice President Nixon comes to the Soviet Union during his Middle East tour in November," Hillings told a reporter. Hillings said such a trip would be in line with responsibilities President Eisenhower has placed on the Vice President. He added that whether Nixon makes the trip may depend upon the outcome of the big power foreign ministers' meeting in Geneva in October. (Vice President Nixon's aides and State Department officials in Washington said yesterday the present plans for his Middle East trip did not contemplate a visit to Russia. The Vice President has been reported wanting to go to Russia, but no official invitation has been received.)

STATE TAXES IN U.S. $72.25 PER CAPITA

But Average in Missouri Is Only $54.35 a Person in Fiscal 1955.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (UP)—State taxes paid in fiscal 1955 amounted to an average of $72.25 for every man, woman and child, the Census Bureau reported today.

The total of state taxes collected by the 48 states was a record $11,584,000,000, an increase of $495,000,000 over the previous year.

Most major types of tax collection were higher than in the preceding year. Notable exceptions: Taxes on corporation income and tobacco products.

California was front runner again. The golden state, which has a general retail sales tax, collected $1,334,000,000 compared with $1,200,000,000 for second-place New York, which has no state-wide sales tax. California collections were equal to $106.29 per person; New York $77.77.

The state of Washington had the highest per person tax take, $115.54; New Jersey the lowest, $48.35.

The largest share of state tax revenues came from general sales and gross receipts taxes. These taxes, imposed in 32 states, netted $2,637,000,000. The next ranking source was the tax on motor fuel, imposed by all states. It brought in $2,353,000,000.

Individual income taxes yielded $1,084,000,000 for the 31 states which have them. Corporation income taxes produced more than $737,000,000 for 33 states.

Auto, truck and trailer licenses and drivers' licenses brought in $1,184,000,000 and state property taxes, $412,000,000.

Only seven states showed a drop in tax revenues during fiscal 1955. Kentucky, with a rise of 17.4 per cent, showed the biggest increase.

State tax collections account for approximately two-thirds of all state revenues. Local taxes take about the same amount from taxpayers as do state taxes, and federal taxes take more than twice as much as local and state taxes combined.

Missouri collected $226,000,000 in state taxes in fiscal 1955, an increase of 0.6 per cent over 1954 and a per capita take of $54.35. Illinois collections totaled $552,000,000, a rise of 1.1 per cent over the previous year, and $80.21 per capita.

EX-PREMIER OF THAILAND REPORTED VISITING MOSCOW

TAIPEI, Formosa, Aug. 26 (AP)—A Nationalist Chinese news agency reported today that ex-Premier Pridi Phanomyong of Thailand is visiting Moscow. Pridi, a fugitive from Thailand, is leader of the "free Thai" movement sponsored by the Chinese Communists.

The report of his visit to Russia came from the Tatoo agency, operated by the Nationalist Ministry of Interior. It says it has underground contacts on the Red mainland.

SHIGEMITSU SAYS JAPAN MUST GET FULL FREEDOM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese foreign minister, said today the time has come when his country "must go forward constructively" toward complete independence.

The 68-year-old diplomat, who arrived last night for talks with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, told a press conference it is "high time we get off to a fresh start for the real reconstruction of Japan." He did not give details of how the "fresh start" might be made.

Shigemitsu said Japan must put itself on its feet both in economic recovery and in its ability to defend itself.

"This means that we must talk things over frankly with the United States and see that the two governments understand each other," he said.

A spokesman said Shigemitsu brought a general outline of Japan's long-range defense plans which he will discuss with American officials. The foreign minister's talks with Dulles began officially on Monday.

ASSERTS COLD WAR'S END NEED NOT MEAN DEPRESSION

Hugh B. Patterson Jr., publisher of the Arkansas Gazette of Little Rock, Ark., told a joint meeting of the National Association of Life Underwriters and the Life Underwriters Training Council at Hotel Jefferson yesterday that the end of the cold war would not necessarily create a depression.

Patterson said disarmament would create problems for "an economy which has been geared for the last 20 years to the demands of a vast war machine."

But he added that peace would not inevitably plunge the country "off the end of our present plateau of prosperity."

Stanley C. Collins of Buffalo, N.Y., an agent for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. for 22 years, was elected president of the National Association of Life Underwriters for the coming year. He succeeds Robert L. Walker of Orlando, Fla. Other officers elected were A. Jack Nusbaum of Milwaukee, Wis., vice president, and Albert C. Adams of Philadelphia, secretary.

James E. Bragg of New York was re-elected treasurer.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH SCHOOL ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL NAMED

The Rev. James A. Reinert S.J. has been appointed assistant principal of St. Louis University High School, it was announced today. He succeeds the Rev. Gerald R. Sheahan S.J., who was appointed principal last month.

Father Reinert, who received his M.A. degree from St. Louis University in 1948, completed high school administration courses at the University of Missouri this summer. He is the brother of the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., president of St. Louis University.

Other new members of the Jesuit faculty include Patrick Carney, Thomas Denzer, Donald Murphy and John Beck.

Mr. Beck teaches English. Mr. Murphy is Gene Hart, Edward Dunn, Henry Schroeder, John Dietzler and Miss Carol McCarthy.

KILLED CROSSING U.S. HIGHWAY 61

Man Struck by Auto South of Meramec Bridge in Jefferson County.

David E. Chamberlain of Hickman, Ky., was killed last night when struck by an automobile as he was walking across U.S. Highway 61 south of the Meramec river bridge in Jefferson county. He was 55 years old.

Driver of the machine, Earl C. Hawes of Clarksdale, Miss., told the State Highway Patrol he was driving south in the four-lane highway when he saw Chamberlain standing in the middle of the highway. He suddenly stepped into the path of the machine, Hawes said.

Chamberlain, an oiler for Mississippi Valley Barge Line Co., died at City Hospital four hours after being struck. His body was thrown about 15 feet by the impact, the State Patrol reported.

Leo F. Webb, a diesel engineer, 2211 Hodges avenue, Granite City, died yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital here of head and internal injuries suffered last Tuesday. Webb was 48.

The automobile he was driving turned over after running off Illinois Highway 162 near its intersection with Illinois Highway 111 about five miles east of Granite City.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Gerald Cuquet, 319 Tulip drive, Webster Groves, were seriously injured last night when the automobile Cuquet was driving collided head-on with another machine on U.S. Highway 66, south of Springfield (Ill.). Six persons in the other car, all from Springfield, were less seriously hurt.

Cuquet operates a jewelry store in the Arcade building. They were taken to St. John's Hospital in Springfield.

PICKETING VIENNA DOCTORS FIGHT WITH CLINIC WORKERS

VIENNA, Aug. 26 (AP)—Fist fights broke out today between striking Vienna doctors and employees of several non-striking clinics. Two doctors suffered cuts and bruises.

The clashes occurred on the second and final day of a nation-wide strike of Austrian physicians and dentists. A majority of Austria's 15,400 doctors are protesting against a government proposal to extend the national health insurance to the entire population. It now applies only to employed persons.

The strike call was disregarded by several hundred doctors working in clinics operated by Vienna city health insurance companies, which are backing the proposed law. The clashes occurred when picketing doctors tried to prevent the non-striking from going to work.

CLUB TO CIRCULATE PETITIONS

The Airport Township Democratic Club announced today it will begin circulating petitions calling for the appointment of freeholders to formulate a plan for city-county co-ordination.

The action was taken after a club meeting was addressed by A. J. Cervantes and H. Jackson Daniel, co-chairman of the City-County Co-ordination Committee.

BENSON 'FAVORS' SELLING SURPLUS FOODS TO REDS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said today he was "inclined to favor" sales of surplus perishable foodstuffs to Iron Curtain countries.

"I should be inclined to favor such sales if it fitted in with our foreign policies, as I believe it would," Benson said. "There is nothing to stop any private trader from buying any agricultural commodity for export if he can get an export license from the Commerce Department, as he no doubt could." Benson told a press conference.

In January 1954, the Commerce Department refused a license to a United States business man who said he wanted to purchase surplus butter for export to the Soviet Union.

TWO SEEK DIRECTIONS, THEN ROB LEMAY DELICATESSEN

A delicatessen at 1900 Telegraph road, Lemay, was robbed of $125 last night by two men who entered the store and asked for directions to St. Louis before displaying a pistol.

William Trunko, 3842 Courdes drive, Melchville, operator of the delicatessen, said one of the men drew a pistol while the other stood guard at the door. Trunko was forced to lie on the floor behind the meat counter while the men emptied the cash register.

They left by the front door and drove north in Telegraph road toward St. Louis in an automobile bearing Illinois plates. They spoke in a soft southern drawl, Trunko said.

INDIA COMPLAINS TO EDEN, MOLOTOV ON S. VIET NAM

NEW DELHI, Aug. 26 (AP)—A government spokesman said today India has complained to British Prime Minister Eden and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov about South Viet Nam's refusal to negotiate on unification elections.

Eden and Molotov were co-chairmen of the Geneva conference which worked out the Indochina armistice last year and India heads the international commission supervising the truce.

The armistice provided for elections next July to unify South Viet Nam and the Communist-controlled northern half of the coastal Indochinese state. The agreement also specified the north and south governments would begin talks in July 1955 to arrange the voting.

A check for $550 was sent to the flood relief fund of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, New York; from the union's southeast regional office, 110 North Ninth street, Meyer Perlstein, vice president of the office, said.

INDIAN DEPUTY SUSPENDED OVER 'FANTASTIC NONSENSE'

NEW DELHI, Aug. 26 (AP)—"Fantastic nonsense" is an unbecoming phrase in India's Parliament.

Deputy speaker Anatasayanam Aiyangar today suspended Socialist member H. V. Kamath for a week for using it after an argument with the speaker over an adjournment motion.

After the House upheld his action by voice vote, Aiyangar said he might permit Kamath to return before the week's time if he apologized.

4 BREWERIES HERE ADOPT PENSION PLAN

Effective Oct. 1—Negotiated by AFL, Extended to CIO Employees.

A pension plan covering brewery workers in four major St. Louis breweries and several supply companies will become effective Oct. 1, it was announced yesterday by Robert F. Lewis, chairman of the AFL Brewery Workers negotiating committee.

Representing the first industry-wide pension plan in the city, it was formulated and negotiated by the AFL Teamsters Brewery Workers, representing 2500 employees and extended by the companies to CIO brewery employees.

The over-all plan will replace plans operated by individual concerns in the field of employees covered. Breweries involved are Anheuser-Busch, Falstaff, Carling's, and Griesedieck Brothers. Smaller companies adopting the pension plan include St. Louis Breweries Co., Elam Grain Co. and Beer Distributors Co.

The plan provides for a maximum monthly pension of $122.50 exclusive of Social Security payments. An employee receiving the maximum amount upon retirement at 65 would have had 35 years of service in the industry.

Pensions will be calculated on a basis of $3.50 per month for each year worked. Credit is given for time worked prior to and during the prohibition era.

The plan is financed on a contributory arrangement. The employer will pay into the fund $5 per employee for each week worked, including paid vacations and holidays. Each employee contributes $1 weekly. The plan will be administered jointly by a board of trustees. Investments will be handled by St. Louis Union Trust Co.

Additional pension benefits include provision for earlier retirement. Workers with 15 years' service may retire between the ages of 55 and 65 with a reduced pension income. A full pension will be allowed an employee 50 years old or more and with 15 years' service if he becomes permanently disabled.

The four teamsters locals included in the plan are Brewers and Malsters Local 6, Brewery Drivers Local 133, Brewery Firemen Local 367, and Mill, Grain and Syrup Workers, Local 368.

OKLAHOMA GROUP 'UNSEATS' DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEEMAN

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 26 (AP)—The Oklahoma Democratic party's executive committee voted yesterday to declare vacant the office of William C. Doenges, national committeeman from Bartlesville, then named Representative James Arington of Stillwater to the post.

The action was taken by 10 members of the 15-man committee who attended the special session. It climaxed a four-month battle led by Gov. Raymond Gary to unseat Doenges.

State Chairman Smith Hester and Mrs. Elizabeth Whetsel, co-chairman, did not attend the meeting. Both had opposed the attempt to oust Doenges, and questioned the legality of the meeting. The national committee still must approve the state group's action.

Doenges was an appointee of Johnston Murray, Gov. Raymond Gary's predecessor. An Oklahoma governor, by tradition, is allowed to name his own national committeeman. Doenges refused to resign.

ARMAN'S 'QUOTES' ON RED RADIO HAVE A FAMILIAR RING

TOKYO, Aug. 26—The Communist radio today made propaganda hay over the release of Air Force Lt. Guy H. Bumpas—complete with selected "quotes" from the young officer purportedly made while he was in North Korean hands.

The Red radio quoted the Jackson (Miss.) flyer as using Red catch-phrases such as have been used frequently in Communist propaganda. For example, the North Korean Pyongyang radio quoted Bumpas as saying:

"I had heard through the American propaganda and bourgeois publications the so-called barbarism of the North Korean side. But as days passed, I learned how false American propaganda was and I realized how ignorant I was."

Far East Air Forces headquarters had "no comment" on the broadcast. Bumpas was shot down by North Korean fire while flying a reconnaissance plane over the buffer zone along the cease-fire line. His companion was killed and Bumpas suffered a fractured skull.

MOSCOW SKIMS OVER EISENHOWER SPEECH

Red Radio Touches Lightly on Wrongs Laid at Soviet Door.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (AP)—The Moscow radio today gave the Russians an abbreviated version of President Eisenhower's Philadelphia speech. It skimmed over the wrongs laid at the door of the Communists.

The broadcast was put out first for foreign listeners, then for the home service with selected British and American press comment.

The account, from the Tass news agency, stressed the President's plea for world peace in his address Wednesday before the annual convention of the American Bar Association.

It omitted Mr. Eisenhower's remark that "division of Germany cannot be supported by any arguments based on boundaries or language or racial origin."

Nor did it report his assertion that "domination of captive countries cannot longer be justified by any claim that this is needed for purposes of security."

Instead, the broadcast said "Eisenhower expressed some views regarding the philosophy of the two social systems which he pointed out were struggling against each other for the support of the peoples of the whole world."

Final judgment of these systems, the broadcast's paraphrase of the speech continued, "would depend, not only on peaceful relations with other countries, but to the same extent on the progress within the borders of these countries and on their proved capacity to help others advance."

"Eisenhower said it was the duty of Americans resolutely to defend our cause in the eyes of the world, the Russian version went on. 'Peace and security, he said, can be ensured for all those who are intimidated, who are oppressed, for the weak and the strong.'

"However, this can only be done if we defend the principle, the great deed without making compromises." The broadcast made much of Mr. Eisenhower's references to the Geneva conference and said he "admits great historic changes are taking place in the world."

TURKEY WARNS BRITAIN OF VIOLENCE ON CYPRUS

LONDON, Aug. 26 (AP)—Turkey has warned Britain that disturbances may break out on the island of Cyprus Sunday in which the island's Turkish minority might be massacred, the Foreign Office disclosed today.

British authorities here said they doubt disorders can take such a drastic turn on the troubled eastern Mediterranean island. But, they added, precautions have been taken against disorders likely on the eve of the three-power conference to Cyprus, meanwhile, Archbishop Makarios called on Cypriots seeking reunion with Greece to insist on immediate self-determination. He spoke at a convocation of the Church National Assembly in Nicosia. A resolution condemning the "British police state" and "unilateral laws" was sent to the United Nations and the governments of Greece, Britain and the United States.

Molten Steel Kills 8 Poles.
VIENNA, Aug. 26 (AP)—Eight steel workers at the Polish Bobrek plant in Upper Silesia died when a cauldron of liquid steel overturned on them, the Polish newspaper Trybuna Robotnicza reported today. It said the factory management had not taken sufficient safety measures.

NIXON LISTS SIX WAYS SOVIET CAN SHOW GOOD FAITH

Tells Bar U.S. Is Off
Defensive and Russia
Must Act Now if It Wants Peace.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26 (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon last night outlined six ways in which Russia can show the world it wants to reduce East-West tensions and "live in peace."

If the Soviet Union "honestly" seeks peace, Nixon told 1200 guests at the annual banquet of the American Bar Association, "it must act now, by positive steps," adding:

"What Russia does will determine whether there is a real thaw in the cold war, or just a brief warm spell before an even bigger freeze."

Six Steps He Suggests.

The Soviet "actions" Nixon demanded were free elections and unification of Germany, withdrawal of Chinese Communist troops in Korea and unification of Korea, implementation of President Eisenhower's aerial inspection plan and eventual disarmament, lifting the Iron Curtain in Europe, freedom to the satellite countries, and suspending Moscow-control over organizations in free nations.

He said that the "next three or four months" will tell us whether Russia "honestly" wants peace.

What Nixon told the lawyers, who end their seventy-eighth annual convention today, paralleled the position enunciated here two days ago by President Eisenhower.

Nixon hailed the success of the recent Geneva Big Four conference, and said that as a result of it the United States "is off the defensive and on the offensive on the great issue of peace."

Nixon said he hoped that Russia's recent cordiality wasn't "calculated to get us to drop our guard" for "if we weaken our defenses, Geneva will have been a disaster for the cause of freedom."

On Communism in U.S.
The Vice President's address, interrupted by applause a half dozen times, was in two parts. The first dealt with the world situation and the second discussed Communism in the United States and how the Federal Government should deal with it.

Nixon had high praise for congressional investigating committees which, he said, "expose the Reds."

"It is apparent that the basic objection of most of the critics is not how congressional committees investigate—but what they investigate," he said.

Nixon said he believed that the subject of Communism—"its theories and practices"—should be taught in the nation's public schools. This statement was loudly applauded.

Only Monday the Bar Association adopted a similar stand, asking Congress to pass a bill that would permit the subject of Communism to be taught alongside that of the American way of life, so that the two systems might be compared.

Talk by Finletter.

Thomas K. Finletter, Air Force Secretary in President Truman's cabinet, told University of Pennsylvania law school alumni—in an offshoot of the B.A.A. conference—that he favored creation of a United Nations army that would enforce a general disarmament treaty.

Finletter said he doubted the Eisenhower Administration would approve such a military force but "my own belief is that the people of the United States will go very far indeed to prevent a hydrogen war."

The House of Delegates, governing body of the A.B.A., was on record as opposing American entrance into an international trade regulation body. A resolution voiced disapproval of a bill now before the House Ways and Means Committee that would give the President authority to accept membership in the organization for trade co-operation.

Dr. K. C. Wu, former governor of Formosa, urged an immediate attack on the mainland of Red China "because the Communists can be beaten easily on the defensive."

Dr. Wu told a meeting of the American Juridical Society "Red China is really formidable only on the offensive, as it was in Korea when it fought the United States to a standstill."

Canada's commissioner of motor vehicles said that about 3 per cent of drivers are "character" cases who should be barred from the roads. Robert R. Bailie told an A.B.A. group that the legal profession must consider isolating drivers who tend to be killers. He said that symptoms of what he called "motoritis" could be detected by a point system administered by a driver improvement bureau.

Bar on Whipping Advanced

NEW DELHI, Aug. 26 (AP)—The upper house of India's parliament voted unanimously yesterday to abolish a 46-year-old act under which criminal offenders can be sentenced to whipping. The bill repealing the act goes before the lower house next week. It is expected to win final approval.

Service Man's Wife Complains To Senator, Puts Husband on Spot

Her Letter About Coast Guard Sets Off Chain Reaction Inquiry—She Begs Johnson to Forget Whole Thing.

ANGUAR, Caroline Islands, Aug. 26 (UP)—Honest, Senator Johnson, things aren't as tough down here with the Coast Guard as Mrs. Jo Clegg of Abilene, Tex., thinks they are.

Mrs. Clegg's husband, Jesse, electronics technician second class, United States Coast Guard, says so.

Jesse, 23 years old, of Hereford, Tex., loves his wife dearly, but wishes she'd stop writing letters to Senator Lyndon Johnson complaining about the tough time Jesse and his buddies are having on this South Pacific Coast Guard station.

"Darn it," Jesse protested, "Jo just misunderstood my letters, and now nobody in the state of Texas, Washington, D.C., or the Coast Guard will believe that we're getting along fine down here. What's worse is that they all seem to think I'm being pressured and threatened because I told Jo to stop writing to Senator Johnson."

The trouble started about six weeks ago when Jo got a couple of gripe letters from Jesse who grumbled about the delayed mail and how much he missed her good cooking.

Jo wrote Senator Johnson demanding the Coast Guard speed up its mail service, and treat Jesse and his 15 shipmates lots better than they had been.

"Sure I wrote Jo, griping about no mail and no milk," Jesse explained. "Everybody writes gripe letters home once in awhile, but my wife is the one in a million who decides Washington had better do something about it."

"The bad part about it," Jesse said, scratching his red goatee and sideburns, "was that Jo would send me copies of the letters she was writing Washington. It got so I was afraid to open her letters, wondering who all would get into the act next."

It got to be quite an act, too. Johnson's office queried the Coast Guard commandant, V. Adm. A. V. Richmond. Adm. Richmond messaged R. Adm. Frank Kenner, commander of the Fourteenth Coast Guard District in Honolulu, who radioed Capt. Elmer Comstock, commander of the Coast Guard's Marianas section.

Capt. Comstock personally flew from Guam to Anguar to put his staff to work investigating.

The wires carried the explanations back through the chain of command, and Jo got a letter from Adm. Richmond assuring her the shortages were only temporary, but try as it might, the Coast Guard just couldn't provide all the niceties of life on Anguar that were available in Abilene.

Everything would have ended there except that Jo wasn't

FRANCE, W. REICH
OUT OF SAAR VOTE

SAARBRUECKEN, Aug. 26 (AP)—The five-power Saar plebiscite commission disclosed today it has warned West Germany and France to abide by their agreement to stay out of the heated campaign on the Saar's future.

The commission said it had received complaints about recent statements by French and German officials which might be construed as interference in the campaign.

The commission, headed by Belgian Senator Fernand Dehoux, will supervise the vote Oct. 23 on a statute placing a European commissioner over the Saar but leaving it under French economic control.

When the statute was drafted 10 months ago by France and West Germany, both nations agreed to stay out of the plebiscite campaign.

KHRUSHCHEV VISITS ROMANIAN FARM AND 'GIVES ADVICE'

LONDON, Aug. 26 (UP)—Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev visited a collective farm in Romania and "gave much valuable advice on methods" of growing corn, radio Moscow said today.

"The members of the farm warmly thanked Comrade Khrushchev for his advice and said that they would definitely increase their sowing of maize (corn)," the broadcast said.

Flashes of Life

Not Much Help.

SANDWICH, Ill. (AP)—Police Chief Walter reports that Robert Dieterline had a flat tire near Sandwich. A motorist stopped to help. After they repaired the tire, the unidentified motorist kicked Dieterline in the stomach and took his wallet containing $270. Dieterline scribbled the license number of the fleeing automobile on a towel. He couldn't read his scribbling when he went to police to report the robbery.

Mission Accomplished.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Eighteen years ago Joseph Moreau, Vancouver (B.C.) carpenter, visited Los Angeles. He liked it and decided to come back. Thursday he returned, this time for good. He brought with him his wife and nine children.

"I didn't want to leave Vancouver before I got started with a family," he explained at the airport.

To the Point.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Alex Lane, was in traffic court charged with driving 60 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone.

Judge Charles Wofford asked Lane how he pleaded.

"Guilty—scared—broke—and I got four children," answered Lane, a Negro.

Judge Wofford ordered Lane to attend the court's driver training school in lieu of paying a fine.

SCOTS MAY GET MORE BOURBON IF U.S. HAS ITS WAY

LONDON, Aug. 26 (AP)—American bourbon whisky may soon be available in increased quantities to the Scots, English and Welsh.

The Board of Trade said today it was considering a three-cornered request to allow more American whisky to enter Britain.

Behind the move are: the British Travel and Holiday Association, the Scotch Whisky Association, and the Kentucky Whisky Association.

"All we want," said John Holmes, London representative of the Kentucky association, "is to be able to sell bourbon to the American tourists here."

"We are quite prepared to be paid in sterling for it. There's a principle at stake."

Only a token quantity of American whisky now enters Britain because of Board of Trade restrictions. Bourbon is allowed in at a rate of about $1500 worth a year, a Board spokesman said.

Scotch whisky producers sell about $21,000,000 ($58,800,000) worth of their product in the United States.

ROOF COLLAPSES, WEDDING GUESTS FALL IN AT WAKE

CAIRO, Aug. 26 (AP)—Scores of guests at a Nubian wedding fell through a roof yesterday and landed in the midst of a Nubian wake.

By the time the bridegroom arrived 50 or more persons had been taken to hospitals, 38 of them seriously injured.

The 300 wedding guests were celebrating on the roof with traditional dances when the rhythmic beating of feet and hands brought down the house. They tumbled to the floor below where a second group had gathered to mourn a dead friend. Persons in both groups were hurt.

The bride came through unscathed. She was in a downstairs room decorating herself for the reception.

Peck of Pickles for Free. DECKERVILLE, Mich., Aug. 26 (UP)—State Representative Herbert Clements today invited his constituents to "pick a peck of pickles" on his 55-acre farm near here. Clements said everyone in his district was invited "whether you voted for me or not," because the crop is going to waste.

HUSBAND PLANNED 17 CHILDREN, READY TO QUIT AT 14

MOLINE, Ill., Aug. 26 (AP)—On their wedding day Leo Carey of Andover spread the word around that he and his bride would have 17 children.

"I thought it was a joke," Mrs. Carey, now 44 years old, said yesterday.

Her new baby, Frances Elaine, 3 weeks old, convinced her it wasn't. Frances Elaine is their fourteenth child.

Carey, 47, who holds down two jobs for a total of 96 hours a week to support his family, said he is ready to abandon his nuptial day goal. "We've got enough now," he said.

The Careys live in a five-room house and plan to add another room. Carey is short of time to work on the project. He is a carpenter by day and a factory hand by night. He averages 14 hours work a day except Sundays when he works only 12.

Four of the children are married and have a total of nine children. The others besides Frances Elaine range in age from 4 years to 25.

EX-CONVICT RUNS CROOKED DICE GAME FOR CHILDREN

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (UP)—Police charged an ex-convict today with running a crooked dice game for 10 to 15-year-old children.

Detective Rene Moreno became suspicious when he saw a group of 15 children gathered in a stairway and found a man shaking dice in a tin can while the children bet on various numbers. Police said the dice, on which the children were betting their nickels and dimes, were "shaved," to prevent the most profitable numbers from turning up.

DREDGING FIRM EMPLOYEE CRUSHED BETWEEN BARGES

Nobel Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, 322 South Main street, St. Charles, was in serious condition at St. Joseph's Hospital in St. Charles today after he was crushed between two barges on the Missouri river yesterday.

Wilson, 17 years old, was working as a "barge spotter" for Norman Bros. Dredging Co. when he fell into the river at St. Charles and was crushed between the two barges. His pelvis and both hips were crushed. He had been employed by the firm for a week.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH HAMMARSKJOLD ASKS FOR GENEVA ATTITUDE IN U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Aug. 26 (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold says the United Nations Assembly is the place to start putting the Geneva atmosphere and philosophy into practice.

He told a news conference yesterday he hopes for positive results in the atomic field at the Assembly convening Sept. 20, and for fruitful discussion of disarmament problems.

While Washington reported President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles were trying to put a brake on too much optimism in the aftermath of Geneva, Hammarskjold suggested the United Nations would be the right place to convert the post-Geneva spirit into hard facts.

He said disarmament would be one of the dominating subjects.

Hammarskjold said the world is concerned about the bloodshed in North Africa and the possible consequences. He said he transmitted to the French delegation the views expressed

MOTHER OF 8 COMMITTED TO PRISON FOR CHECK THEFT

Mrs. Lucille Anna Williams, mother of eight children, who was sentenced last week to three years in prison for stealing two government checks from a mail box, was committed to prison today by United States District Judge Roy W. Harper. She will serve her sentence at the federal prison for women at Alderson, W. Va.

After a conference with Judge Harper Tuesday, Mrs. Williams and her husband, James O. Williams, agreed to send their children, ranging in age from 1 to 12 years, to the St. Louis Children's Home Society, 4415 Margaretta avenue, for eventual adoption.

The children had been living at their father's home at 1420 North Thirteenth street, East St. Louis, described by the federal probation office as the poorest home the probation officer had ever visited. The children's mother was not staying with them at the time of the thefts.

IN WAKE OF ARAB RIOTING

French troops, their rifles at the ready, flush an Algerian nationalist from a tent in the village of Ain Abid, Algeria. The soldiers, inflamed by the carnage of North African riots last weekend, in which men, women and children were cut down by terrorist mobs, were reported to be under orders to shoot any rebel bearing arms.

Above, the rebel begins to fall as soldiers open fire. Below, the troopers move in to inspect the body of the fallen nationalist. No quarter is given as the soldiers screen towns and villages in their search for terrorists. Pictures were taken by Columbia Broadcasting System photographer.

Pageant Performers

Aspiring young performers giving their all in the municipal playgrounds' presentation of "Cinderella" at pageant in Kiel Auditorium last night. About 1200 children, between the ages of 3 and 16 years, took part in the show, which climaxed the programs conducted on the municipal playgrounds throughout the summer season. On display in the auditorium lobby were prize-winning arts and crafts works by adults and children who attended vacation program classes held by the city's Division of Parks and Recreation. —By Buel White, a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

ATLANTIC RESCUE OPERATION

The British freighter Argobeam listing to port as a rescue launch from the Swedish liner Kungsholm pulls away from the stricken ship with survivors. The 7133-ton freighter, en route to Copenhagen from Norfolk, Va., was 300 miles off the coast of Scotland when a fire and explosion in the engine room disabled the vessel. The Kungsholm, of the Swedish-American line, responded to distress signals and steamed to the assistance of the Argobeam. After 29 crew members were rescued, the freighter was taken under tow by tugs and reached the outer Hebrides Islands yesterday with its captain and first mate aboard.

Al Capp Research About French Ships

By Art Buchwald

WE WERE walking by the Plaza the other evening when we bumped into Al Capp, the cartoonist who draws "Li'l Abner," sitting on his luggage on the curb.

AL CAPP

"Sit down," he said graciously, spreading out his confirmed reservation slip for that night.

"What happened?" we asked.

"Nothing. They just didn't have a room for me."

"But who are all these other people?"

"They have confirmed reservations, too."

"But what can you do with your slips?"

"Well, you can use them for sheets, blankets and fans, practically anything except getting a room, for which they are useless."

"What are you doing over here?"

"I'm doing some research on French ships for my cartoon strips."

"Have you learned anything about them?"

"I SHOULD SAY I have. Just on my last trip I made some very interesting discoveries. Do you know, for example, that every French ship has two sets of officers? Two chief radiomen, two chief pursers, etc. One set has the easy duty. All they have to do is run the boat through storm, squall and hurricane. The other set has rough, perilous, ugly duty. They give cocktail parties for American passengers. However, the French reward gallantry. Any officer who survives a full tourist season of giving parties for Americans is given a choice the next season of either duty on a mine sweeper off Saigon, or a tour with the French Foreign Legion in Algeria."

"I solved one of the main mysteries of trans-Atlantic travel on this trip. Has it ever occurred to you how a captain of a French ship survives the six captain's dinners they must attend every voyage?"

We said it hadn't.

"AS YOU KNOW, there is one every night for about 20 important passengers, either vice presidents of some big American corporation or cousins of any Hollywood agent. Now while there is no fatal ingredient in any single one of the 20 courses of a captain's dinner, the combination of all of them is practically fatal. But while none of the Important Passengers are ever seen again—you can, however, tell they're still alive while they keep 'Don't smoke—oxygen in use' signs in front of their staterooms—the captain's dinners go on and on. And the question I have always asked myself is 'How does he do it?'"

"Well, he doesn't do it. The French are too shrewd to risk the life of a valuable officer at a captain's dinner. The REAL captain is NEVER THERE. He's where he belongs, up on the bridge facing tempest and typhoon, perfectly safe. Six criminals condemned to death are brought along in irons, and one by one, after night, each is dressed up as a captain, and given his last meal at the captain's dinner."

"I realize this is going to be quite a shock to innumerable V.I.P.s but it is only another example of the thrift and showmanship that is so irresistibly French."

"WHAT ELSE did you find out about French boats?"

"I have a theory that the movies selected for the French boats are chosen by stockholders of the Italian Line. Why else would it be possible in a six-day period to see three Lex Barker and three Anna Magnani pictures?"

"The greatest convenience on a French boat, however, is that you never get out of touch with the latest news. Each morning on your breakfast tray is the ship's newspaper, hot off the press."

"I had left New York with the Talbot case breathlessly undecided, with the President's arms proposal still unanswered and with the Geneva Chinese talks still in flux."

"And so the lead story of my French boat newspaper was headlined: 'The Middle Period of Victor Hugo Is Most Vigorous—Savants Agree,' and below it were printed the latest on-the-spot photographs of Victor Hugo, Capt. Dreyfus and Sarah Bernhardt, flown over or possibly sent by radio from the historical section of the Louvre. By strange coincidence this issue contained four pages of ads for shops located on the Avenue Victor-Hugo."

"The only other news story was that Rocky Bastado had beaten Unknown Tanglebaum, whom nobody ever heard of, in a sizzling six-round in Toledo, Ohio. The Toledo Blade had refused to print this story, but we on the French boat knew all about it."

"THE SIDEWALK was getting crowded and Capp looked as if he wanted to get some rest. We gave him back his confirmed reservation. He folded it into a pillow and stretched out to go to sleep. Just before closing his eyes, he said to the doorman: 'I don't want to be called before 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. And would you ask the valet to shine the shoes I left over there by the tree?'"

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

NOBODY wants to be a "big mouth" or a "gossip girl," but hundreds of girls and boys write to this column with the same question:

"What to talk about on dates?"

Perhaps you know how it is when you're alone with your latest dream-date, your thoughts rush round and round, your heart thumps and your voice dies quietly after the first feeble attempt to talk. Gruesome!

BUT HERE'S WHAT TO DO: Figure out subjects that interest both of you long before he arrives at the front door. Here are some:

Questions—They'll help to start the chatter and keep it going . . . casual, yet interested.

Memories—Tell him about the first time you ever saw him or something nice you've heard about him, and he'll probably do likewise.

Future—Talk about college, vacation plans, jobs . . . and listen, too.

People—Don't gossip, but you can talk pleasantly about people you both know, exchanging news about friends ("Jack has a new job"; "Sue has gone to visit her aunt," etc.) . . . also teachers, class big-wheels, sports stars.

SCHOOL—YOUR FAVORITE or worst subjects, foreign languages, clubs.

Favorite entertainment—Radio and television; symphony, opera or jazz; concerts or mambo, movies and stage, etc.

Life Goes On Down Nantucket Way

Hurricane Threat Puts Crimp in Tourist Trade but That's All the Harm Done

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NANTUCKET, Mass., Aug. 26. WHILE hurricanes and floods wrought disaster along the Atlantic coast, this charming island off Cape Cod escaped serious damage. Hurricane Connie never quite arrived, although she inflicted grievous damage to the island's tourist trade, and Diane gave Nantucket only a gentle cuff in passing.

Nevertheless, despite the non-chance of veteran Nantucketers and the obvious fact that some of the buildings here have been standing for nearly 300 years, tourists could not get their minds off the thought that there was nothing between them and the angry Atlantic but sand dunes.

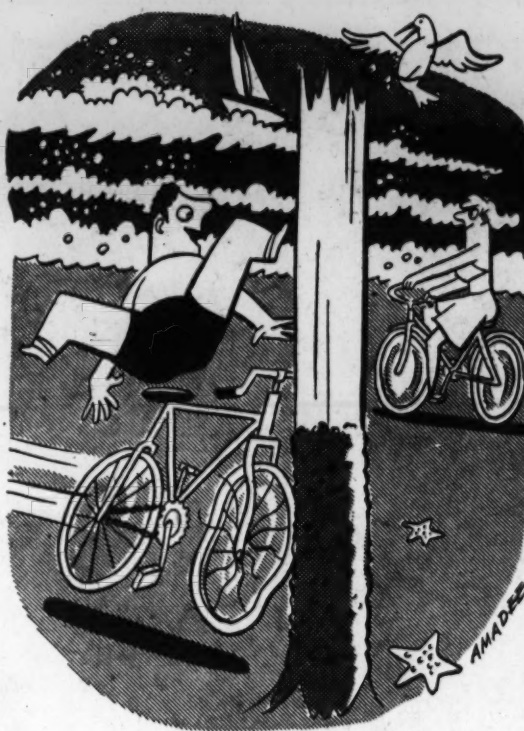

Summer trippers cut short or canceled their vacations, going home by plane or boat. Nantucket's clam chowder and hot dog emporia were well-nigh abandoned to the natives. At the height of the Connie scare, it was possible to stand opposite the Yacht Club for as long as 10 seconds without seeing a pretty girl ride by on a rented bicycle.

The old salts around here, scions of the whalers who sailed the seven seas and made this the center of a world industry, paid little attention to newspaper headlines as Connie and Diane approached. But when the Coast Guard station at Brant Point put up warning flags, owners of small craft brought them to safe harbor, and all hands made fast.

IN fairness to the landlubbers who fled, it ought to be acknowledged that there is something awesome about preparations for a storm. Sailboats are dragged ashore and shutters go up on the houses. It is an impressive sight to watch the great rollers thunder in and crash on the beaches while the wind, in sustained fury, shrieks and howls with a force no man can control.

Nantucket, 30 miles at sea, is the best place in the United States to study the situation that develops, traffic-wise, when swarms of bicyclists are loosed in narrow streets to test the patience and skill of motorists. The cyclists I saw tended to be young, enthusiastic and unskilled, while the drivers, by and large, were elderly and impatient. The result was a kind of chronic maelstrom on Main street, where people gathered to buy the New York papers and discuss the weather.

With the bicycles go shorts, in one of those curious combinations that anthropologists call a "culture complex." Nearly everybody wears shorts on Nantucket, although old-line summer residents never have become fully reconciled to brevity of attire. Police are spurred to do something about brevity, but it is a losing battle. Even the most fashionable restaurants tolerate shorts, provided they are of the so-called Bermuda style, striking the wearer just above the knee.

In the uneasy truce that prevails between the constabulary and high fashion, it is all right for a young woman to cycle to the beach in a bathing suit provided she wears a shirt or beach coat. Even thus hampered, some of Nantucket's cyclists manage to cut a figure not unpleasant to the casual observer.

A GREAT many visitors to Nantucket this summer are earnest young New Yorkers seeking relief from the heat. These are of both sexes, and it is doubtless a fact that many a life-long romance, give or take a few years, has started at the bicycle rental establishments to be found a hundred yards from the steamer wharf.

At these places, bikes are ranked up in brilliant array. The business of renting one and getting a Nantucket license for navigating same takes only a few seconds. The American kind, with coaster brake, costs about $1 a day and the English ones, with hand-operated brakes, cost $1.25. Some are equipped with a child's seat at the rear. This costs a quarter extra and offers the vacationist a much easier way of transporting Junior than carrying him on the shoulders, say, or dragging him by the collar.

The majority of people have ridden a bicycle at one time or another, even our highly motorized land. It is a skill like swimming, impossible to forget. A surprising number of the prettier girls reaching Nantucket have to be taught all over again, however, and there is no lack of volunteer instructors. From the bicycle shops, the renters fan out to the beaches, the bars, the restaurants and the rolling moors. Every eating place and guest house has its row of parked bicycles in front.

Nantucket is shaped like a sickle moon with the round side facing toward Spain. In the first half of the Nineteenth Century, it became rich with the hunting of the whale. It was the home of Captain Ahab, master of the Pequod, who searched the seas for Moby Dick. The lure of the island is that so much remains the way it was in those adventurous days, and the sea, of course, has not changed.

A Beautiful Buddha at Nara Shrine

By Eleanor Roosevelt

Nikko, Japan (Delayed)

IN the treasure house of one of the shrines at Nara, there is the most beautiful of all the Buddhas I have seen so far. You come upon it after you have seen many other lovely Buddhas but this one stands tall and slim with one hand extended palm up as though it pleaded for something, and the expression is one not of suffering but of calmness. Somehow this figure seems to me to have almost a Christian concept.

On our return to Tokyo in the early evening we found that Mr. and Mrs. Matsumoto had seats in the Kabuki theater for us to see the last scene of "Tebanashi of the August Moon." Some of the actors here are really soldiers, and the natives of Okinawa are played by Japanese. They gave explanations in both Japanese and English and the audience behaved as though they understood every word. The sets were charming and I went backstage after the play to congratulate everyone on the performance.

ON THE WAY BACK to the hotel, we passed a large open space near a shrine, hung with paper lanterns each one advertising the particular shop which had donated one or more of the lanterns.

High in the center of the space there was a three-tiered stand. On the top tier a man was beating a large drum while on both tiers below him girls and men demonstrated the steps and motions of the folk dance being danced by all the people circling slowly around the stand.

This kind of public folk dancing, they told me, is done for about two weeks in the summer and not at other times during the year. As in India, men dance together and women dance together and the two do not often dance with each other.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

1. ARE WEAK MEN USUALLY ATTRACTED TO STRONG WOMEN? YOUR OPINION

Answer to Question 1. WEAK men who feel life is too much for him usually long for a woman stronger than himself. He probably grew up leaning on his mother or maiden aunt, who protected him from the world. Some types of strong women are looking for just such a Milquetoast.

Answer to Question 2. No. A psychologist found if a woman spends $7.50 for a permanent wave, $1.21 for pleasures of sight and smell; $1.88 to attract men; $2.50 for general public approval; 93 cents to gratify feeling of doing the right thing; and 75 cents, hoping to gain domination over others. My guess is, the remaining 23 cents goes for—the privilege of hearing the latest gossip!

Answer to Question 3. One of the pleasant things about human nature seems to be an inherent tendency to remember words that recall pleasant memories rather than unpleasant. A psychologist analyzed 118,000 words used by 436 children from five to ten. He found that they used 1057 pleasant words to every 80 unpleasant ones. Another psychologist finds that children learn pleasant words earlier than unpleasant. Another study of adults showed the same tendency. I think it means we all try to find the world a pretty pleasant place to live in.

There is a book published here called "The Japanese Are Like That," which I began to read on the train today. It is written by a Japanese in an important government position, and yet this does not prevent him from being remarkably frank about his countrymen's failings, and virtues.

He explains the reasons for certain customs and habits

Here's a good spread for crackers to pass along with tomato juice. Grind or finely chop cooked cleaned shrimp and mix with mayonnaise, lemon juice, chili sauce and curry powder. You can add a dash of Worcestershire sauce, too, if you like.

AN open pan of powdered charcoal or activated carbon is great for removing odors from the inside of a refrigerator.

Don't use standard cut flooring nails to fix a squeak in a floor because if the nails fail to do the trick, its shape will make matters worse. Use either rosin coated finishing nails or spiral nails for squeak floors.

Old linoleum can often be revived with a good floor seal. First remove any wax (mild soap and fine steel wool for self-polishing wax; cloth dampened in turpentine for paste wax), rinse, let dry, then apply seal with brush or cloth.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

The New Films

By Edward Kosmal

No Angels but Plenty of Angles

WE'RE NO ANGELS which opens today at the ST. LOUIS is a most unusual but only moderately amusing Christmas story. The film, adapted from the French hit, "La Cuisine des Anges" by Albert Husson, never quite attains the heights achieved by its predecessors. (The Broadway success, "My Three Angels," was written by Sam and Bella Spewack.) Not that it didn't make several spurts in that direction, but too often the screen version by Randal MacDougall bogged down in verbiage.

The tale has as its setting Cayenne, French Guiana, and centers around three escaped convicts—embezzler Humphrey Bogart, and murderers Peter Ustinov and Aldo Ray—who literally descend like angels (from a roof they were repairing) upon the household of a meek and honest but unsuccessful shopkeeper, convincingly played by Leo Carroll. Immediately, and in their own manner, the three fugitives of Devil's Island proceed to assist virtue in its eternal struggle with evil. First they attempt to put the shop on a profitable basis with some fancy salesmanship. Along the way they eliminate a Scrooge, in the person of Basil Rathbone, who plays the short-lived role of the penny-pinching shop owner. This assignment falls upon a fourth member of the group, a snake answering to the name of Adolphe. A second bite resolves the romantic woes of the shopkeeper's daughter, who is portrayed by Gloria Talbott. The cast also includes Joan Bennett, who plays the shopkeeper's wife. This whimsical fable is enhanced immensely by Technicolor, which turns the Yuletide scenes into a VistaVision Christmas card of colorful beauty.

Humphrey plays his role ala Bogart, straight. And Ustinov and Ray do their share when the story gets moving. But, unfortunately, the cast does not include a Walter Slezak, who in the original Broadway company played his convict role with child-like glee, squeezing out every bit of laughter, and then some, for each of his lines.

The double feature is completed with "MAGNIFICENT MATADOR," starring Maureen O'Hara and Anthony Quinn. It is the romantic story of a bullfighter and was filmed in CinemaScope color in Mexico.

Small-Fry War Cry

Charlton Heston, whose repertory rests on a foundation of drama, has come up with a pleasing change of pace. He stepped into light-hearted comedy and emerged without so much as stubbing his toe. Heston executed his transition in a laugh-saturated film, "THE PRIVATE WAR OF MAJOR BENSON" at the FOX, one of the better comedies of the year.

Portraying a tough major, Heston finds himself exposed in a vulnerable position after blowing his top once too often about the treatment accorded the new army. Called on the plush Pentagon carpet, the career officer is given two choices: ROTC or resign.

Accepting what he considers the lesser of two evils, the field-grade officer is assigned to a West Coast boys school to resuscitate its waning ROTC rating and, lo, that's when the fun begins. The major finds his new command is no bed of roses. In fact, he considers his training post even more deplorable than he had anticipated; the school is run by nuns, and its 300 cadets are in the 6- to 15-year-old bracket. And as a diversionary action the school's resident doctor, aptly played by Julie Adams, supplies a love interest that actually is an asset to the story which is filmed in Technicolor.

This array of characters could readily stamp the mark of mediocrity on any production of this type, but not so here. Director Jerry Hopper guides his all-around good cast clear of the usual stereotype pitfalls, to amusing advantage.

One lady doctor, a handful of nuns and 300 boys eventually prove more than an even match for a solitary major. But the officer refuses to recognize the fact and proceeds to fight a lengthy battle that ends up with victories for both sides and scores of laughs for the audience.

Nor does Heston discover a pushover in the 9-year-old newcomer to the screen, Tim Hovey, who gives a heart-warming portrayal of a private, age 6. Little Tim gives the major a man-sized tussle in each of their scenes and for the attentions of the pretty doctor, to boot. And with just a bit more hair on his chest Tim might have won, too.

As a second feature, unfortunately, the program includes "FRANCIS IN THE NAVY," starring Donald O'Connor and Martha Hyer. For the record, this is the sixth film in the talking mule series. This time O'Connor, playing two roles, is the constant victim of a case of mistaken identity. However, the first mistake was committed, perhaps, when this picture was produced.

Road to Marriage

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

EVERYONE wants to be loved. That's natural. It also points the way to success in gaining love—just give love yourself. Everyone knows this, but a large part of the population—married or unmarried—fails to act on its knowledge. Many girls remain unmarried because they are so willing to receive, so unwilling to give. They write to me for information (and sympathy) and I'll cite the case of Antoinette to guide them.

Antoinette was 27 years old when she came to us for counseling. Her two brothers had married; she still lived with her parents, had a good job, was reasonably good looking, but an "unclaimed treasure." She couldn't understand why some man hadn't claimed her.

"I'm trying to face my situation honestly," she said. "I'm not glamorous, but I'm neat. My reputation is spotless. I'm a good homemaker. But men pass me by, and seem to be attracted by flashy and aggressive girls, some of whom certainly aren't all they ought to be. Must I change my personality and sacrifice my principles in order to get any attention? That's too high a price."

SHE CERTAINLY didn't need to sacrifice her principles; but she did need, in one sense, to change her personality. First, however, we persuaded her to get away from her childhood home and her mother. That's a "must" for many young women who want to grow up.

Then we started on her personality. This could be described, for the present purpose, as "passive and resentful." She thought that if she was a good girl, some man would come along and give her love. There was nothing she could do about it! The longer she waited, the more resentful she became that no one paid attention to her. She began to feel neglected, misunderstood and badly treated, so she became sympathetic with all sorts of underdogs and hopeless causes and hostile to the world at large. If some man loved her and married her, she told herself, he'd find her sympathetic and loving—but until he did, she'd be suspicious of him.

IT WAS NOT NECESSARY for her to become brazenly aggressive. It was necessary for her to become warm and responsive, gracious and welcoming. As she gradually changed her outlook, men began to find her interesting. She had much to offer in marriage, and when she began to date men half-way, one of them soon married her.

A Way to Get Rich—Or Break Your Neck

Rodeo Riders, Here This Week, Make Up to $40,000 a Year—A Short Ride Is Hard Work

DUDE SMITH OF BURKETT, TEX., ON TOP OF APACHE IN THE SADDLE BROMK RIDING CONTEST AT THE FIREMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP RODEO AT OAKLAND STADIUM. HIS INCOME, LIKE THOSE OF THE OTHER CONTESTANTS, DEPENDS ON THE PRIZE MONEY HE CAN WIN.

By John Keasler

JACK BUSCHBOM made himself $1420 in eight seconds out in Los Angeles a few days ago. In Waco, Tex., a few years ago, it took him even less time to break his neck. He lives a life where either event is entirely possible from week to week. He is a rodeo rider—one of the lads with the cast-iron posterior and shrug-shouldered philosophies who make up a go-for-broke breed with no real-life counterpart anywhere in the world.

They are free-lance fighters against gravity; modern-day gypsies dedicated to the proposition that life is a grab thing indeed unless one is privileged to hang onto a twisting, plunging animal for the sake of glory and cash, not necessarily in that order.

There are some 150 of these worthies gathered in St. Louis for the Firemen's Championship Rodeo, under way at Oakland Stadium through Sunday—and transient is the word for them. Their travels would make a journeyman hobo look like a land-mark, their precarious hold to security makes an inside-straight addict comparably staid.

These riders, bulldozers and ropers pursue their craft to the excited cheers of the populace; not only to the kids do they epitomize adventure and glamor, but also to adults who have never recovered fully from early-life impact of the prose purveyed by Street & Smith.

How much glamour is actually involved in their life? For that matter, who are these sombered individuals, where do they come from and why?

LIKE all glamour, theirs is based on sweat. They come from everywhere and, as for why, their motivations are as simple and direct as their speech—they wanted to be rodeo riders and now they are and that's it.

"Just decided to do a little wild-westing when I was 13," said Buschbom, a Kansas-reared man of 27 who calls Cassville, Wis., home. So, at the age of 13, he got himself in a rodeo—was resoundingly successful, he recalled, inasmuch as he was able to walk away from the arena.

That's more than he did in 1947 when he broke his neck. After this inconvenience he became national bareback champion in 1949—has since been in the nice, round income bracket of $20,000 and, despite a knee injury, thinks he might have a good chance for a championship record this year.

"Some of them make up to $40,000 a year," said Buschbom—son of a rodeo rider. We said his father must be right proud of him and asked if his father ever hit championship status. Jack parried this by saying they had a different sort of grading back then—you can't compare today's rodeo performers with those of some years ago, not accurately anyhow.

Today's point system is as simple as dollars and cents, which is precisely what it's based on. One point for each dollar won in prize money.

There can be no mistake that way—although there are plenty of mistakes and misconceptions in the public's idea of how rodeo performers operate. Many people assume the performers are part of the show, employees of the individual rodeo producer—sort of like a vaudeville troupe.

That's not right. The real rodeo performer is nobody's employee—he's on no payroll, has no boss and has nobody professionally to fall back upon except himself. He's a free-lancer in the fullest sense of the word, and his sole asset is his skill at his trade.

HE belongs to the R.C.A., the Rodeo Cowboys' Association, and he is one of some 3000 members. Nobody tells him where to go or when and he makes as many rodeos annually as he feels he can. There are about 600 rodeos a year in this country, so his own discretion, and endurance, dictate his number of performances.

"The traveling is the part that kills you," said Buschbom. "That's what wears you out, and believe me it's rough. The actual riding in the rodeo isn't near as tough as getting to the rodeos."

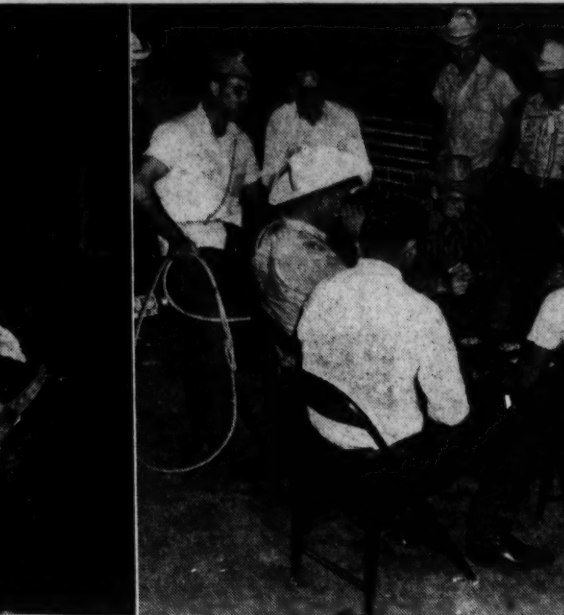

Some cowboys drive automobiles. Some fly. Some get there the best way they can. Not everybody in the trade gets up in five figures. In fact, flat-broke is a status which isn't unknown in this line of endeavor.

As for Buschbom, he makes some 50 rodeos a year. Many performers do less, a few perhaps more. Ask a cowboy "how much he gets paid a rodeo" and he will eye you as if you were not real bright—although the question shows another common misconception.

He doesn't get paid; he pays. The performer pays an entry fee to compete, a separate entry fee for each event. For instance, the fee for each event was $100 at the Los Angeles rodeo where Buschbom hit the $1420 jackpot.

If he's good enough to get into the prize money, he makes money. If not, he loses the investment. In all good rodeos the entry fee is split up, also, among the winners—in other words, the producer does not keep the money.

Tommy Steiner is a good example of the producer of a top-notch rodeo and how it operates. Steiner, a tall Texan from Austin, furnishes the stock, and the nucleus of acts which, as opposed to the cowboys, do have a guarantee. (Such as Smiley Burnette, Gene Autry's helper, who will collect $2500 for his appearances at the Fireman's Rodeo.)

Steiner's broncos, his Brahman and so on are transported from show site to show site by huge vans. With his corps of workers he gets the corals and equipment set up—the cowboys can, and do, come from everywhere. Steiner drives a new air-conditioned Cadillac.

With the exception of acts like Miss Beverly Buschbom—Jack's sister—practicing her dancing horse act, backstage at the rodeo, before a performance, has all the glamour and excitement of a rather inverted firehouse checker game on a dull day.

THE card game of pitch is preferred to checkers. The cowboys concentrate on this, or sit hunched on their heels in the shade or debate whether it's worth the energy to go back to the hotel and lie down awhile. Certainly, nobody could blame them for conserving their energy. If anybody needs energy when the chips are down, it's performers like, say, Willard Combs, 33, and his younger brother, Ben, 23.

Both of these men are bulldozers, from Checotah, Okla., where they grew up on a ranch. Willard started off in the rodeo business by calf roping, a skill learned as a boy aboard his little sorrel back home. Eventually he decided bulldozing was more to his taste, and Ben took up bulldozing partly because his older brother seemed to be doing pretty good at it.

The brothers lent a note of incongruity as they hung on a corral—each of them had an airplane ticket sticking out of a hip pocket of cowboy pants. They move often and fast.

Just in the past few weeks they have bulldozed in Iowa, Colorado, California, Oklahoma—following their urge to rattle bovines, a yen which must forever remain relatively incomprehensible to the non-bulldozer. For Combs, or Buschbom, or any of the rest of the easy-going crew of rodeo men, the local rodeo is just as important as any at Madison Square Garden—a point won in St. Louis, or in any town, is just as important; and a buck, no pun intended, is truly a buck.

INJURIES aren't talked about much among rodeo performers and an outsider gets the impression he's breaking some kind of tacit taboo when he insists on pressing the point. Buschbom, for instance, insisted he had "never been hurt bad." Faced with a newspaper clipping, and reminded that a broken neck usually required something more than out-patient treatment, he just grinned.

The Combs boys announced they hadn't been hurt bad either, although they finally did admit to a few little odd things like a busted wrist, fractured ribs and a tore-up knee.

Wandering around the rodeo grounds, we spotted a cowboy squatted in the shade, contemplating, meditating, watching the passing world, obviously a close student of human nature and a good prospect to ask why men went into the dangerous and rugged line of rodeo performing.

He considered the question at length, smiled a small smile and said, "Wal, maybe it just beats working."

It's a nice theory, that one, but it contains a slight illogic—when that chute door opens and an irascible quadruped wants to argue his rights to liberty, the man holding on to him is, of a certainty, working.

Buschbom, the past champion, couldn't explain it either, however. About rodeo performing, he said, "It's just something you want to do."

And some 3000 cowboys are doing it—roaming the country, some broke and some flush, heading on down the road to try it again, time after time. The next try fate might smile. Or, again, fate might break your leg. Either is entirely possible.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

IT IS a particularly annoying and frustrating experience for a player to bid his own hand rather daintily, only to have his partner underbid outrageously and still stop short of an easy game contract. After all, the frequent result of North's type of optimism, below, is a more or less serious penalty, and so the player is entitled to reap a reward when he actually "strikes gold."

South, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

West opened the unbid diamond suit and declarer ruffed the second round. He then led a heart to the board and took a trump finesse to his own queen. Even when this lost and South subsequently had to concede another trump trick to East, 10 tricks were cold for declarer, and he would have made five-odd via a luckier guess in the trump suit—all of which made the less-than-game contract look pretty silly.

If the game had been missed as the result of conservatism on North's part, no very severe criticism could be leveled, because the fact is that North had something of a problem on the second round. This writer thoroughly approves of his decision to bid three clubs, but there is no denying that that action could have gone very sour. Three clubs was a force, and North had no assurance that South's response would constitute a safe resting spot. (Obviously, the mere fact that South had rebid spades was no indication that he held a semi-solid seven-card suit.)

Since, however, North did take the risk of bidding three clubs, South, with such a fine fit for clubs, the singleton diamond and the fore-said seven-card suit, had an absolutely marked jump to four spades. When, remarkably, he bid only three spades, North was through.

St. Louisans in 'Follies' At Little Harbor Club

By Mildred Chamberlain

THE LITTLE HARBOR CLUB FOLLIES last Saturday night attracted many St. Louisans summering here. Dining on the terrace overlooking Little Traverse Bay, they watched the younger club members perform in a gay song and dance festival.

MISS ADAMS TAKES PART IN MUSICAL SHOW.

The cast of 72 built a special stage in the club gardens, and with a dozen rehearsals put on a lively show. Costumes were flown in from Chicago and Detroit for the chorus numbers.

Several St. Louisans helped make the Follies a success. Among them were Miss Audrey (Tollie) Wallace, Miss Marye and Miss Almira Baldwin, and Bill and Peter Heinbecker, members of the stage crew. Miss Sally Dobson assisted on set designs; Miss Salie Adams on make-up and wardrobe, and Keith Scripps wrote some of the lyrics.

Featured in the cast were Miss Betty (Bitsy) Niedringhaus, Miss Molly Johnson and Miss Shelley Bush, who sang and danced. Among the "Lola" chorus were Miss Nancy Baker and Miss Peggy Wightman. Sage Wightman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Sage Wightman Jr., and Adrian Baker Jr., disguised as popcorn, sang "Too Pooped to Pop."

Dining together at a Dutch treat table at the Follies were Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., who had as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Austin P. Leland now summering in Charlevoix; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powell Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Jones, Mrs. Whitelaw T. Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Warne Niedringhaus, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Culver Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Rolla W. Streett, Mrs. Paul A. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Harold T. Jolley.

The Richard Baldwins entertained guests at a cocktail party in their Wequetonsing cottage before going over to the Little Harbor Club. They were among guests at a dinner party given by Mrs. Patterson Bush. Among other guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Crago and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hayward. Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Baker had as their guests the Duncan C. Dobsons. The Edwin T. Stanards and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Thomas dined together.

St. Louisans Entertaining Guests.

GUESTS of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Manassa in their Roaring Brook cottage are their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold R. Wadun with Arnold Jr. and Charles Wadun. Mr. Manassa has been teaching his grandsons to fish this week out at "The Pond." The Wadun family is planning a trip next week to Sault Ste. Marie to see the locks and watch the progress on the bridge now being built across the Straits between Mackinaw and St. Ignace. A small luncheon was given today at the Little Harbor Club by Mrs. Manassa.

MRS. RUTLEDGE... VISITOR AT HARBOR POINT.

Thomas G. Rutledge will join his wife and baby daughter on Labor day weekend at the Harold T. Jolley Harbor Point cottage, where they have been spending the summer with Mrs. Rutledge's parents. Accompanying Mr. Rutledge will be Tom K. Smith Jr. of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Williams with "Penny" and Grant Jr. are guests this weekend of the Turner Peters in their Weque cottage. Mrs. Williams and the children came up last week and were joined over the weekend by Mr. Williams and Mr. Peters.

The John B. Denvir's will leave their Wequetonsing cottage Tuesday to fly to Cape Cod to visit Mrs. Denvir's brother, Karl Hohlitzelle, former St. Louisan now living in Dallas, Tex. They will visit at his summer cottage, The Lindens, during September, then go to New York for a week or so before going to St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Denvir, also former St. Louisans, live at Miami Beach, Fla.

Occupying their cottage in Wequetonsing are the Denvir's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Julius E. Pierce, former St. Louisans who now make their home in Miami. Their daughter, Miss Frances Pierce, is visiting a classmate at Nantucket this month, and Thomas M. Pierce III, their son, is a Navy flier.

Mrs. Frank O. Watts entertained a few friends at luncheon at her Wequetonsing cottage on Monday, followed by an afternoon of bridge. Returning this past week from New York was her granddaughter, Mrs. Vincent Kommer (Helen Moore Jones), whose children, Helen, Geary, Paul, Frank and Vincent, have been vacationing with Mrs. Watts all summer. Hide Away, a cottage on Burt Lake owned by the John S. Swifts, who have their summer home in Wequetonsing, is the vacation spot this month for their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hampden M. Swift.

After lengthy vacations at the Harbor Point Club House, Mrs. Arthur C. Garrison, Mrs. Albert T. Terry and Mrs. Wallace D. Simmons will return home today. Mrs. Thomas S. Maffitt, who has occupied a little Hansel and Gretel cottage near the gate of Harbor Point this summer, will leave for home the last of the month.

The Joseph Browns of Dallas, Tex. (Margaret Stanard of St. Louis), who have been the guests the past month of Mrs. Brown's parents, the Edwin Stanards, on Harbor Point, will return home soon.

Barnard Hospital Benefit Planned.

MRS. J. RUSSELL WILSON is general chairman for a benefit program to be given Nov. 10 to increase the petty cash revolving fund at Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital. Committee members are Mrs. Charles E. Caspari Jr., Mrs. Thomas M. Sayman, Mrs. Wendell G. Scott, Mrs. Frank Bradley, Mrs. Robert E. Burns and Mrs. William H. Wenzel.

The proceeds will be used for taxicab and bus fares or overnight lodging for indigent patients leaving the hospital or attending the Out-Patient Clinic.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A TYPICAL question asked at this season of the year is this one: "When taking a long journey by train, is it permissible to talk to strangers to whom one has not been introduced?"

If you are seated next to someone who responds with friendliness to your greeting, then you may continue to talk, but you should not continue any advances that are not met with definite encouragement.

Missouri University Sorority Rush Week Early Next Month

RUSH week opens at Missouri University Sunday, Sept. 4, and closes Saturday, Sept. 10.

According to the traditional procedure, all girls who plan to go through rush are to be housed in one of the dormitories on the campus, and rushing is directed by the City Panhellenic of Columbia. All sororities on the campus will have open house Sunday evening and again on Monday morning and Monday afternoon. Every rushee is required to visit each sorority house.

Tuesday and Wednesday parties are arranged so that rushees must make a selection between invitations from six sororities. Sororities rush against each other in groups of four on Thursday, and the preferential parties are scheduled for Friday when rushees must state their first and second choice. Invitations to membership are delivered through City Panhellenic on Saturday. After formal rush week closes, no more pledging is permitted until a date announced later by the college Panhellenic Association.

Fourteen national groups are represented on the University of Missouri campus, which was opened to sororities in 1875 when Kappa Kappa Gamma was established. Two chapter houses are under construction in Columbia, Phi Delta Theta on West Burnham road and Alpha Phi on Providence road. Both groups have been on the campus for many years and have outgrown their present houses.

August Holidays For Residents Of Kirkwood

ENTERTAINED informally, last weekend, were Mr. and Mrs. William Young (Virginia Proctor) who were here from Nashville, Tenn. The Youngs, who were married recently, are living in Nashville until he is called into military service in the fall.

The visitors divided their time here between her mother, Mrs. Searles Edwards, and Mr. Edwards, 626 Evans avenue, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Young, 57 Berrywood drive, Glendale.

The Paul Youngs returned earlier last week from two weeks' holiday at Malineux Inn, Crystal Lake, Mich.

Two Kirkwood families—the F. Burton Sawyers and the Warren W. Otises—have returned from a several-week motor trip, West.

The Sawyers, who live at 919 West Adams avenue, were accompanied by their three children, Miss Eleanor, Kathy and Bill Sawyer. With Mr. and Mrs. Otis, 400 Miriam avenue, were their three: Robynn, Whitney and Stephan.

The travelers spent a week at Estes Park, Colo., before heading for the southwest where they visited the Mesa Verde and other points of interest.

The Otises continued on to Houston, Tex., where they were guests for several days of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wolf. The Wolfs are expected here the end of next month for a visit.

Mrs. Sawyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Harford, 440 Bellevue avenue, Webster Groves, will return home from their cottage at Crystal Lake, Mich., after Labor day.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Powell, 336 North Woodlawn avenue, have returned home from a two-week fishing trip to Ontario, Canada. With a group of St. Louisans, including Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Neff, 625 South Skinker boulevard, and Mrs. Glenn S. Givens, 63 Berry road, Glendale, they were guests at Minaki Lodge.

Visiting here until the end of the month are the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Nicolls (Betty Stuart) and their baby son, John. The visitors, who live in Petersburg, Ind., are with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Nicolls, 311 North Woodlawn avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Nicolls moved recently from 334 East Adams avenue.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

Dear Martha:

I HOPE you can help me. I will soon be 18 and my father still doesn't think I am old enough to have dates. When I do, he doesn't ever approve of the boy. I don't think he should tell me who I can or can't go with, do you?

DISGUSTED.

Yes, I think that's a parent's privilege, even obligation, to put his foot down if he disapproves of a certain companion. Of course, I know many parents carry that too far, and they can't constantly protect their children from being hurt. Teen-agers must find out in many instances for themselves, but those who have been taught what is right, and who have high standards of conduct for themselves and their companions, can usually make the right choices. Most girls are dating at 18. In fact, they should begin to know by then the kind of man they hope to marry someday, although it isn't necessary to single him out that early. Talk it over with your parents. Ask them to tell you what qualities they admire in boys and let them know that you don't want to go against their wishes and date someone they can't approve of. It won't be too long before you are an adult, able to make your own decisions, but for the time being, don't resent your dad's interest.

Dear Martha:

NEXT MONTH a friend of mine will have a birthday. He lives next door and although we have never dated we see a lot of each other. Would it be all right for me to send him a birthday card?

PUZZLED.

If you like him and your mother okays the idea, I see nothing wrong with sending him an impersonal card. However, if he's going steady, I don't think it would be a good idea.

IN ANSWER TO Trio: Your pastor may be able to refer you to some teen-age clubs where you can meet boys of your own faith. Most of these organizations are formed within individual parishes and if there is none in your own church, your priest may know of others you can join.

Why not entertain the crowd with a scavenger hunt or picnic before school starts? Martha Carr's free leaflets will suggest games. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Untidiness in Suburbia

By Ruth Millett

WHEN the American housewife gets dolled up to go to a party she manages to look as carefully groomed and as chic as her working sisters.

But the way she looks during her working day is often a different story.

One fashion authority, who is herself a housewife, "views with alarm the state of beauty in suburbia."

Speaking before the New York Fashion Group, Mrs. Charlotte Montgomery, a New York merchandising consultant, charged: "Too many homemakers spend large pieces of their working hours looking messy, unkempt, their hair unattractively undone or in pin curls. They wear no lipstick and dress as if they were about to scrub out a hen house."

There's a lot of truth in Mrs. Montgomery's charge. You don't have to visit housewives in their own homes or yards to prove it.

All you have to do is drop by the neighborhood supermarket and take a good, long look at the women who pass by.

For every woman dressed neatly in a house dress or skirt and blouse, with hair combed and wearing fresh lipstick you'll find at least three women in shorts who don't have the figure for them, at least one in pin curls, at least one whose hair looks as though it hasn't been combed in a week, and at least one in a rumpled dress and the shoes she wears to water the lawn.

It almost seems to be that the more labor-saving devices make the job of housekeeping a relatively clean and easy job, the messier housewives look.

When grandma beat rugs by hand, scrubbed her clothes on a washboard and baked the family bread she at least put on a clean apron when she finished a messy job.

And though grandma may not have relished the sight of her in curlers at bedtime, at least the rest of the world didn't have to see her that way.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

PUT a few drops of perfume on freshly laundered towels and sheets. Wrap them in paper and store them in your linen closet. This is an especially nice idea for guest room linen.

A few drops of perfume in the last rinsing water when you launder your lingerie is a nice idea.

Make an inch-long slit in shoulder pads. Pour in a little sachet. Whip up the slits and you will have fragrant shoulders.

When you have a candlelight dinner party, add a drop or two of gardenia perfume to the finger bowls. If the party is especially handsome, float gardenias in a bowl for your table decoration.

A great bunch of artificial lilies of the valley, sprayed with lily of the valley perfume, is a perfect accent for a black dress.

Cologne is for refreshment. It cools and tones the skin and leaves it faintly fragrant.

Toilet water is perfume blended with alcohol. Toilet water is often preferred by smart women because the fragrance is more alluring than that of perfume.

Perfumes have a certain "color influence" and to some women certain perfumes seem to mean certain colors.

A drop of perfume on your lips will make them fragrant and the perfume sets your lipstick.

Perfumed deodorants play an important part in keeping your daily freshness up to par.

Make small, rich square satin sachets to sew into your hats.

Spray the inside of the top of your glove box. Your gloves will be charmingly scented.

The gardenia is often said to be the only flower with sex appeal.

Hot Sweet Rolls for Dessert

By Edith M. Barber

USE ONE OF THE PACKAGED ROLL MIXES AS THE BASE FOR THESE TASTY HOT SWEET ROLLS.

PERHAPS it is the clear, fresh day that has driven away that hot and humid weather which makes me long to stir up a batch of yeast rolls. Ever since I enjoyed the coconut pinwheels at a friend's home I have had them in mind.

With the aid of one of the packaged roll mixes they are practically no trouble at all to mix. Just read the simple directions on the carton and go ahead. You can have no better dessert than sweet rolls just out of the oven where they have been baking while the main portion of the meal is being consumed. The coconut flavor gives interest to the filling, and the texture is an asset. By the way, coconut flakes are or will be soon in your market. These are convenient to use.

The roll mix is also good spread with softened butter and sprinkled with brown sugar and perhaps a dash of cinnamon. Raisins may be added before the rectangular sheet of dough is rolled. If you like the rolls sticky, a layer of the sugar may be placed in the well-greased baking pan before the cut pieces of dough are arranged. They should be turned out of the pan as soon as it is taken from the oven.

PINWHEEL ROLLS.

One package (14 1/4 ounces) hot roll mix (with yeast). One cup warm water.

Prepare dough as directed on package. Turn out on floured board and roll to 18x12-inch rectangle. Spread with desired filling (see recipe below) and roll as for jelly roll, wetting edges to seal. Cut in one-inch slices. Place in greased pan or muffin pans. Cover with a dry towel and let rise in warm place one hour, or until doubled in bulk. Bake at 375 degrees F.

(moderate) for 20 minutes, or until done. While still warm, brush tops with glaze made of confectioners' sugar and milk. Yield: 18 rolls.

Coconut Cinnamon Filling—Pour 1/4 cup melted butter on dough and spread evenly. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup shredded coconut, and 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Jam, Jelly, or Marmalade Coconut Filling—Combine 3/4 cup jam, jelly, or marmalade and 1/2 cup shredded coconut. Spread evenly on dough.

Coconut Raisin Filling—Combine 3/4 cup raisins, round or chopped, dash of salt, 1-3 cup boiling water, and 1/4 cup sugar. Cook over low heat six to eight minutes, stirring constantly. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice, two tablespoons butter, and 3/4 cup shredded coconut. Cool before spreading on dough.

She'll Get Those Rugs---Some Day

By Clarissa Start

THIS is a sort of open letter to a certain dealer in Oriental rugs. We'd like him to know we're still interested in those two small Kerman rugs we looked at way back in May when we were thinking of moving into our new old house. It's just that when you acquire a new house or an old house, and especially a new old house, things come up. Most of them things with dollar marks, backed up by men with iron-clad union cards and hearts of steel.

We decided on Oriental rugs for our new old house for two reasons. Well, first of all, we couldn't afford carpeting but that was incidental. Reason No. 1 was that the man of the house did his overseas time in Persia and acquired a respect for Oriental craftsmanship. Reason No. 2 was that after the small-sized rug he brought home had outlasted two modern carpets, the lady of the house began to appreciate the Oriental's durability. Neither rain nor snow nor dogs nor small boys shooting Indians can make a dent in them.

Clarissa Start

WE BEGAN searching for a 30-foot rug for the grand salon but the best we could find was a 20. We planned to augment it with two smaller ones. We found the very rugs and the money had practically changed hands, when another hand reached in and intercepted it. It was the hand of the electrician.

Ah well, we thought, it's only money. We'll latch on to some more of the stuff. And sure enough, after a few weeks of austerity ("Remember, we're saving up for rugs," we gave the family with their hamburger), the bank balance coincided with two small Kerman rugs. The exact size of the two bare spots in the living room.

WE WERE SITTING there one evening discussing the merits of the pink background over the cream background. It was a damp evening. The last of a heavy rain was still dripping from the trees. Suddenly we heard a crackling sound. Then a tearing sound. Then a dull thud. We looked out in the front yard where the dead limb of a tree lay on the ground.

"Got to do something about those trees," said the man of the house. "Dangerous having those dead limbs overhead."

The tree surgeon's bill wasn't astronomical. Just about the cost of two small rugs. Trouble is, one of the limbs knocked over a brick pillar and the bricklayer who was sent out by the tree surgeon to repair it, looked over the house. A little tuckpointing here and there, he suggested. We asked him about putting up two more pillars at the entrance to the drive. The total estimate wasn't bad. Just about the price of two small rugs.

We were weighing the bare spots on the front lawn versus the bare spots in the living room when grandma came up from the basement. "I don't know whether this is anything important," she said, "but there's a drip in the basement. Not much of a drip but a steady one. It seems to be coming from the pipes."

We don't have to wait for a bid from the plumber. We know in advance what it's going to be. Ah well, it's only money. Some day we'll manage to latch on to that certain sum before it develops wings. And then we'll get a grip on those flying carpets, too.

Maddening Illegible Signatures

By Amy Vanderbilt

MY friend, Eric Sloane, the writer-artist, has asked me to write a column on illegible signatures. He points out that in our grandfathers' day, when every child was taught how to write a fine, legible, Spencerian hand, it was actually unmanly to write illegibly. Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, George Washington, to name a few, all wrote signatures anyone could read without guesswork.

While I agree with Mr. Sloane that many of us, if we take the time (which many of us are without it, seems) we can probably improve our handwriting. But I take issue with him on the point that a signature can be much improved once its pattern is fully established. However, a person with an illegible signature can't type letters, certainly have his name typed in full beneath his signature. I do this on my own letters, putting in parentheses beneath my name (Miss Amy Vanderbilt).

Choosing a New Cabinet

By Elizabeth Hillyer

THE choosing of a new tall cabinet is an important event, and it's happening in more and more families now that furniture like this grows more popular, and appears in increasing variety of style. The piece must be of excellent quality to take up its important position in a room. And it must be very well proportioned to be graceful. Bad proportion is especially displeasing on this scale, and always emphasizes bulk in the worst sort of way.

One point particularly helps you analyze the proportions of a tall cabinet. It's often in two pieces, a top and a base, or it appears to be. Look for size relationship between the two—they definitely must not be the same height. The top must be taller than the base is high, as it is in this beautiful new Italian Provincial cabinet. A top and base of the same height seem to cut the piece in two, and this is a proportion that is awkward enough to cancel out other good points. The base here is separate and can be used alone, when

Words, Wit And Wisdom

By William Morris

Ethel, Albert and the Misread Lexicon.

IT IS a pleasure to welcome back to TV the "Ethel and Albert" show—one of the few plausible situation comedies. However, I have to report that that someone over there at CBS had better take lessons in how to read a dictionary.

One of the high spots of the show one night was an argument between Ethel and a girl friend over the correct pronunciation of "secretive"—and, believe me, it was a good deal more amusing than it sounds from that flat statement. Anyhow they wisely resolved to let the dictionary decide whether they should say "SEE-kreh-tiv" or "seh-KREE-tiv."

The tome chosen for the verdict was none other than

"Webster's Collegiate" and, after a search for the entry, Ethel proudly announced her vindication—that the dictionary supported her pronunciation "SEE-kreh-tiv."

All very well, you say. What's the fuss about? Well, it just happens that "Webster's Collegiate" doesn't say any such thing. It says the preferred pronunciation (preferred, that is, by Webster's editors and consultants) is seh-KREE-tiv. It does admit that the SEE-kreh-tiv pronunciation is "also" heard—but in the shorthand used by dictionary editors, the word "also" indicates that the pronunciation in question has just about made the grade and has, indeed, been rather grudgingly entered.

So, I can hear the script writer saying, "Why make a Federal offense out of misreading a dictionary pronunciation? What's so terrible about that? People do it every day." To which I reply: "You are so right. But now, just possibly, it won't happen again on your show. And, since it is such a darlin' and literate little show, maybe even a backhanded comment like this one will help bring it to the attention of people who might otherwise miss it. . . . Or would you rather we were more seh-KREE-tiv about our enthusiasm for the show?"

Uncle Ray's Column
By Ramon Coffman

HERE and there on the British Isles, often in hedge-rows, live the small animals known as hedgehogs. They are heavy eaters, and consume frogs, toads, snails, worms, rats and mice — also slugs, snakes and fruit. They grow fat, and many animals — including foxes — would like to make meals of them.

The hedgehog is slow at running, and might become a victim of almost any flesh-eating animal except for its defense. Instead of having hair on its back, the hedgehog has pointed spines. To save itself from attack, it rolls up in a ball.

In some ways the hedgehog is like a porcupine of North America, but it differs in a few respects. The spines of a porcupine are barbed, but those of a hedgehog are without barbs. The head of a hedgehog is pointed.

Hedgehogs live on the mainland of Europe, and in most sections of Asia, including Korea. On the average they are about 10 inches long, counting the short tail.

Among the snakes which hedgehogs kill are some which are dangerous to people. A hedgehog may creep up on a sleeping adder and bite its tail. Before the snake can strike the spiny animal has rolled itself into a ball. Very likely the adder will make an effort to bite the hedgehog, but will fail. Instead of killing the hedgehog, it will suffer wounds. In one case an adder was observed laid out and covered with blood after a few minutes spent in a vain attack.

Baby hedgehogs are born without sight, but their eyes open before the passing of many days. Their bodies are covered with white spines which are too soft to cause harm to anyone for three or four weeks after birth. Then the spines become strong and dark. Brown is the usual color of a hedgehog.
